Subtitle B—Establishing a Public Option for Banking

SEC. 621. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) After the Revolutionary War, the first Secretary of the Treasury, Alexander Hamilton, established the first Bank of the United States. By consolidating debt and expanding the money supply, Hamilton was able to grow the economy by influencing the circulation of money through bank branches up and down the east coast. However, since sending letters was the fastest form of communication available to him, he was limited in how well he could manage the economy.

(2) Four generations later, during the Civil War, the U.S. Treasury introduced "greenbacks" as legal tender. This sovereign money was issued directly under Congress's Constitutional authority and created the first national currency. Abraham Lincoln also signed the National Banking Acts, regulating the banking system as well as could be done when the telegraph was the fastest form of communication.

(3) Four generations later, during the Great Depression, Franklin Roosevelt decoupled the money supply from the gold standard and addressed wealth inequality through government spending. He also signed the Banking Act of 1933, increasing oversight of the banking system now that the telephone was the fastest form of communication.

(4) In the 21st century, modern technology allows for instantaneous communication around the globe, enabling real-time payment processing. Accordingly, economist Robert Hockett has proposed The Treasury Dollar Act of 2020, upgrading the national banking system again to create a public payment infrastructure, equally and efficiently accessible to all.

(5) As previous cycles have demonstrated, it is necessary to increase the money supply in the long run to maintain stable prices and maximize growth. This dividend is the result of the evolution of the U.S. economy, and Congress finds that the systemwide profit from the economy should be distributed among its owners, the citizens of the United States. Accordingly, the money supply should be expanded to include digital legal tender issued by the U.S. Treasury.

(6) The Treasury already possesses the framework of a public payment infrastructure through its TreasuryDirect accounts, which allow account holders to conduct transactions at any time of the day or night, and can be expanded to accommodate wider use by the American people.

(b) Purpose.—The purpose of this subtitle is to promote economic prosperity in the United States while establishing the U.S. as a worldwide leader in digital currency.

SEC. 622. DEFINITIONS.

In this subtitle, the following definitions apply:

(1) Account overlay.—The term "account overlay" means an administrative designation, subaccount, tag, or record associated with a Treasury transaction account that identifies the legal capacity, fiduciary capacity, tax treatment, commercial activity, or authorized financial activity in which a person receives, holds, or transfers Treasury Dollar Bills, but does not create a separate account category or permit any amount of Treasury Dollar Bills to be recorded in more than 1 account category at any time.

(2) Adult.—The term "adult" has the meaning given the term in section 1398a(a) of title 42, United States Code.

(A) at the affirmative election of the account holder, with sealed identifying information; or

(B) without recording a transaction history.

(4) Authorized Treasury interface provider.—The term "authorized Treasury interface provider" means a person approved by the Secretary under this subtitle that, with the authorization of an account holder, may authenticate users and transmit or present instructions to the Treasury for the initiation of transfers, inquiries, or account services relating to a Treasury transaction account, but may not hold, control, intermediate, substitute, or record Treasury Dollar Bills on the person's own balance sheet.

(5) Child.—The term "child" has the meaning given the term in section 1398a(d) of title 42, United States Code.

(6) Participating financial institution.—The term "participating financial institution" means an insured depository institution, as defined in section 3(c)(2) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1813(c)(2)), or an insured credit union, as defined in section 101(7) of the Federal Credit Union Act (12 U.S.C. 1752(7)), that maintains a Treasury transaction account under section 623(b)(6) and elects to offer pass-through accounts under section 626.

(2) No separate account category.—An account overlay shall not create a separate account category, separate legal account holder, off-ledger balance, private claim against Treasury Dollar Bills, pass-through account, or account maintained by a person other than the Treasury.

(3) Natural person payments.—An account overlay may not alter the person legally entitled to receive a payment required by law to be made to a natural person or route such payment into an account or overlay of a business entity, financial institution, governmental entity, or other legal entity.

(4) Commercial and tax administration overlays.—The Secretary may permit a person engaged in commercial activity to use an account overlay in connection with an account described in subsection (b)(9) for tax administration, receipt matching, audit, payroll, customer refunds, lawful winding down, or protection of innocent parties.

(6) Rule of construction.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to prohibit an account holder from authorizing a transfer from a Treasury transaction account to an account, investment, or pass-through arrangement maintained outside the Treasury ledger.

(d) Treasury transaction accounts.—To the extent applicable to the account category and account holder, each Treasury transaction account shall—

(1) permit the real-time, fee-free transfer of Treasury Dollar Bills to other Treasury transaction accounts, with safeguards against hacking, unauthorized access, or misuse that meet or exceed applicable industry standards and legal requirements;

(3) be accessible, in coordination with the United States Postal Service, through automatic teller machines located at postal retail facilities;

(1) Treasury ledger as system of record.—The Treasury ledger shall be the exclusive system of record for the issuance, holding, transfer, and settlement of Treasury Dollar Bills in digital form.

(2) Settlement by ledger entry.—A transfer of Treasury Dollar Bills shall be made only by debiting 1 Treasury transaction account and crediting another Treasury transaction account on the Treasury ledger.

(3) Finality.—A transfer of Treasury Dollar Bills shall be final upon settlement on the Treasury ledger, subject only to reversal, correction, or remediation procedures expressly authorized by this Act or by regulations issued by the Secretary to address fraud, error, unauthorized access, or operational failure.

(4) No parallel ledger.—No person other than the Treasury may issue, settle, net, record, intermediate, or maintain Treasury Dollar Bills in a manner that creates an off-ledger balance, synthetic dollar claim, deposit substitute, private monetary instrument, or other claim represented as Treasury Dollar Bills.

(5) Operational requirements.—The Secretary shall operate the public payment infrastructure in a manner that provides secure authentication, continuous availability, redundancy, disaster recovery, fraud prevention, error correction, account recovery, public access, and auditable controls sufficient to support nationwide use, including online, mobile, automated, and point-of-sale commerce; machine-readable payment requests; immediate confirmation of final settlement; and transfers in any amount that may be denominated under section 5101 of title 31, United States Code, without a minimum transaction amount imposed by the Treasury.

(6) Nondiscrimination.—No financial institution, payment service provider, card network, digital wallet provider, or other person offering payment services in or affecting interstate commerce may refuse, degrade, delay, surcharge, or otherwise discriminate against a lawful transfer of Treasury Dollar Bills solely because the transfer is initiated, settled, or received through the public payment infrastructure established under this section.

(7) Federal use of payment infrastructure.—

(A) Acceptance and routing of public revenues.—Each department, agency, and instrumentality of the Federal Government shall accept Treasury Dollar Bills in payment of all taxes, fees, excises, debts, and other public revenues. The Secretary shall credit the amount received to the account or subaccount corresponding to the Federal fund or account to which the payment is legally payable.

(B) Preservation of legal status.—The establishment or use of an account or subaccount under this paragraph shall not alter the legal availability, dedication, purpose, or budgetary classification of any amount held for or credited to the corresponding Federal fund or account.

(1) Exclusive governance.—Treasury transaction accounts established under this section shall be governed exclusively by this subtitle and shall not be considered accounts, products, or services of a financial institution for purposes of subtitle A of title V of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act (15 U.S.C. 6801 et seq.) or any other provision of Federal law governing private financial institutions.

(2) Minimum privacy floor.—Notwithstanding paragraph (1), the Secretary shall ensure that the collection, use, safeguarding, and disclosure of information relating to Treasury transaction accounts meets or exceeds the substantive privacy protections and data security standards applicable to consumers under subtitle A of title V of the Gramm-Leach-Bliley Act, except to the extent such standards would permit disclosure or secondary use inconsistent with this subtitle.

(3) No implied exceptions.—No exception, authorization, or permitted disclosure applicable to private financial institutions under Federal or State law shall apply to Treasury transaction accounts unless expressly authorized by this Act.

(4) Purpose limitation.—Information associated with Treasury transaction accounts may be collected, accessed, or used solely for—

(A) account administration and payment settlement;

(B) prevention of fraud or security breaches;

(C) compliance with a valid court order; or

(D) other purposes expressly authorized by this Act.

(5) No commercialization.—Information associated with Treasury transaction accounts may not be sold, licensed, transferred, or otherwise used for commercial purposes, targeted advertising, credit underwriting, behavioral profiling, or any use unrelated to the administration of this Act.

(6) Construction.—Nothing in this Act shall be construed to authorize the Secretary or any other officer of the United States to create or maintain a comprehensive transaction surveillance system, except as strictly necessary to safeguard the public payment infrastructure established under this Act.

(h) Treasury interfaces.—

(1) API mandate.—The Secretary shall publish, maintain, and continuously operate standardized application programming interfaces that enable secure, real-time access to Treasury transaction accounts for purposes of balance inquiry, payment initiation, generation and presentation of machine-readable payment requests, inclusion of merchant, invoice, order, or other account-holder-approved transaction references, confirmation of final settlement, account management, and other functions expressly authorized by this Act. Such interfaces shall support online, mobile, automated, and point-of-sale transactions in any amount that may be denominated under section 5101 of title 31, United States Code.

(2) Authorized Treasury interface providers.—

(A) In general.—The Secretary shall permit any person to act as an authorized Treasury interface provider, subject to compliance with this subsection and rules issued by the Secretary, for the sole purpose of providing user-facing software or services that allow an account holder to access and manage a Treasury transaction account.

(B) Account holder authorization.—Access by an authorized Treasury interface provider shall occur only pursuant to an affirmative, revocable authorization by the account holder, and the Treasury ledger shall remain the exclusive system of record for all Treasury Dollar Bills and account balances at all times.

(B) Sovereign ledger integrity.—No transaction pursuant to this paragraph may—

(i) permit the creation, issuance, or recognition of any private monetary instrument, stablecoin, deposit substitute, or synthetic dollar claim that is recorded on, or purports to create a claim against, the Treasury ledger;

(ii) result in any obligation of the United States to redeem, backstop, or guarantee foreign currency, foreign payment instruments, or private liabilities; or

(iii) authorize any person other than the Treasury to create, net, or settle dollar-denominated obligations within the Treasury ledger.

(C) Designated exchange accounts.—The Secretary may authorize one or more designated foreign exchange accounts under subsection (b)(11), which may include accounts held by foreign governments, central banks, or international public institutions, for the limited purpose of facilitating currency exchange between Treasury Dollar Bills and foreign currencies, provided that—

(i) such facilities operate on a fully prefunded basis and do not engage in leverage, maturity transformation, or redemption on demand;

(ii) balances held in such facilities shall not be transferable as a means of payment except for the purpose of effectuating an exchange authorized under this paragraph; and

(iii) no balance held in such facility shall be represented, marketed, or used as a substitute for Treasury transaction accounts.

(D) Fees and limits.—The Secretary shall impose reasonable fees, volume limits, or both on transactions conducted pursuant to this paragraph as necessary to—

(i) prevent speculative or high-frequency use, currency arbitrage, or destabilizing capital flows;

(ii) preserve the stability and integrity of the public payment infrastructure and the adequate domestic availability of Treasury Dollar Bills; and

(iii) recover the administrative costs of operating international interoperability mechanisms.

In establishing such fees and limits, the Secretary shall distinguish ordinary payments, purchases, and personal remittances from speculative, high-frequency, or large-scale capital movements to the extent administratively practicable.

(4) Unverified loss or destruction.—The loss, theft, mutilation, or alleged destruction of a physical bearer instrument shall not entitle any person to a transfer from, or authorize a debit to, the physical bearer reserve unless the Secretary verifies the authenticity and amount of the instrument, the claimant's possession and control of the instrument immediately before the event giving rise to the claim, and its permanent removal from circulation.

(2) Federal insurance.—A pass-through account shall be federally insured to the extent provided by applicable Federal law as—

(A) a deposit, as defined in section 3(l) of the Federal Deposit Insurance Act (12 U.S.C. 1813(l)), if maintained by an insured depository institution; or

(C) the United States guarantees a balance or obligation of the participating financial institution, except to the extent of applicable Federal deposit or share insurance.

(b) Account holder instruction.—The holder of a Treasury transaction account may provide, modify, or revoke at any time a standing instruction directing the Treasury to transfer an amount of Treasury Dollar Bills determined under the instruction from the holder's Treasury transaction account to the Treasury transaction account of a participating financial institution for corresponding credit to the holder's pass-through account.

(3) Narrow tailoring.—A delay or rejection under paragraph (2) shall be narrowly tailored in scope and duration and may not be used to impose a general monetary limit on lawful pass-through transfers.

(4) Notice.—The participating financial institution shall promptly notify the account holder of a delay or rejection under paragraph (2), the reason for the delay or rejection, and the steps reasonably available to resolve the matter, except to the extent notice is prohibited by law or would materially compromise fraud prevention or security.

SEC. 636. COLLATERAL SEGREGATION AND COLLATERAL REUSE PROHIBITION.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The reuse of pledged collateral through repurchase agreements, securities lending, prime brokerage, margin lending, and similar financing arrangements permits private actors to create multiple layers of short-term funding claims on the basis of the same underlying asset, thereby expanding shadow banking and undermining the exclusive public authority of the United States to create money.

(2) Collateral reuse and title-transfer collateral practices increase leverage, obscure beneficial ownership, amplify interconnectedness, and heighten the risk of runs, fire sales, and cascading failures during periods of financial stress.

(3) To restore monetary sovereignty, reduce systemic fragility, and protect collateral providers and beneficial owners, collateral provided under a collateralized financing arrangement should remain the property of the collateral provider, should be held in segregation, and should not be reused or otherwise deployed to support additional layers of private credit creation.

(b) Definitions.—In this section:

(1) Appropriate Federal financial regulator.—The term "appropriate Federal financial regulator" means the Secretary of the Treasury, the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, the National Credit Union Administration, and the Federal Housing Finance Agency, acting within their respective jurisdictions.

(2) Collateral.—The term "collateral" means any financial asset provided as security or credit support for payment or performance of an obligation. The term does not include an asset transferred in final and irrevocable satisfaction of an obligation, to the extent of the obligation satisfied.

(3) Collateral provider.—The term "collateral provider" means a person that provides collateral under a collateralized financing arrangement.

(4) Collateral recipient.—The term "collateral recipient" means a person that receives or holds collateral under a collateralized financing arrangement.

(5) Collateralized financing arrangement.—The term "collateralized financing arrangement" means a repurchase agreement, securities lending agreement, margin loan, prime brokerage arrangement, derivatives margining arrangement, title-transfer collateral arrangement, or other financial market transaction or arrangement in which collateral is provided.

(6) Financial asset.—The term "financial asset" means property of a financial nature, including cash, an amount of Treasury Dollar Bills, a deposit or account balance, a security, a financial instrument, a commodity, a digital asset, or similar property.

(7) Reuse.—The term "reuse" means any rehypothecation, transfer, pledge, encumbrance, investment, or other deployment of collateral by or for the benefit of a collateral recipient or third party. The term does not include—

(A) holding collateral in segregation under subsection (d);

(B) returning or releasing collateral to the collateral provider;

(C) transferring collateral as permitted under subsection (d)(5); or

(D) enforcement after default under subsection (c)(4).

(8) Segregated custody account.—The term "segregated custody account" means an account maintained exclusively for collateral providers, separate from the proprietary assets of the collateral recipient, in which the interest of each collateral provider is continuously identifiable and the collateral is not subject to claims of the creditors of the collateral recipient or available for reuse.

(9) Title-transfer collateral arrangement.—The term "title-transfer collateral arrangement" means an arrangement that characterizes collateral as sold or absolutely transferred to the collateral recipient.

(c) Prohibition on collateral reuse and title-transfer treatment.—

(1) General rule.—It shall be unlawful for a collateral recipient to reuse collateral.

(2) Beneficial ownership and legal title.—Beneficial ownership of collateral provided in connection with a collateralized financing arrangement shall remain with the collateral provider, subject only to paragraph (4). Legal or record title may be held by the collateral recipient or a regulated custodian or clearing intermediary solely as necessary for custody, perfection of a security interest, clearing, settlement, or enforcement after default, but such title shall not confer beneficial ownership or authority to reuse the collateral. A repurchase agreement or reverse repurchase agreement shall be treated as secured financing, and not as an absolute sale, for purposes of this section.

(3) Limited interest of collateral recipient.—A collateral recipient may hold a security interest, possess or maintain custody of collateral as reasonably necessary to secure the obligation of the collateral provider, and exercise enforcement authority after default, subject to this section.

(4) Enforcement after default.—Following an uncured event of default expressly specified in the collateralized financing arrangement, a collateral recipient may terminate the arrangement, liquidate or sell collateral, exercise setoff or netting rights, and apply collateral or proceeds to the matured obligation, but only to the extent reasonably necessary to satisfy such obligation. The collateral recipient shall promptly account to the collateral provider and return any surplus collateral or proceeds.

(5) No duplicate recovery.—A collateral provider may not receive restitution, compensatory damages, or other compensation more than once for the same loss.

(d) Segregation and custody.—

(1) Segregated custody required.—All collateral provided by a collateral provider shall be held in 1 or more segregated custody accounts.

(2) No proprietary commingling.—Collateral may not be commingled with the proprietary assets of the collateral recipient or used to support the obligations, financing, or liquidity of the collateral recipient or any third party.

(3) Permitted omnibus segregation.—Collateral of multiple collateral providers may be held in an omnibus segregated custody account only if the account is maintained exclusively for collateral providers, the interest of each collateral provider is continuously identifiable, and the collateral is not available for reuse.

(4) Return or release.—Collateral shall be returned or released promptly upon satisfaction or termination of the underlying obligation, upon replacement of the collateral by the collateral provider, or following completion of enforcement under subsection (c)(4).

(5) Permitted custodial and clearing transfers.—Collateral may be transferred to an independent custodian, clearing agency, derivatives clearing organization, central counterparty, clearing member, or other regulated intermediary solely for custody, perfection, clearing, or settlement if—

(A) the collateral remains continuously identifiable and segregated from the proprietary assets of each recipient and intermediary;

(B) beneficial ownership remains with the collateral provider;

(C) the collateral is not subject to claims of the creditors of a recipient or intermediary; and

(D) the collateral is not available for reuse.

(e) Voidness of inconsistent terms.—Any agreement, clause, waiver, disclosure, consent, or other contractual term that purports to authorize reuse of collateral, transfer full title to collateral in violation of this section, waive segregation, or otherwise impair a protection afforded to a collateral provider under this section shall be void and without legal effect.

(f) Insolvency and bankruptcy treatment.—

(1) Exclusion from estate.—Collateral held pursuant to this section shall not become property of the estate of the collateral recipient in any case under title 11, United States Code, and shall not be subject to claims of the creditors of the collateral recipient.

(2) No safe harbor for reuse.—Notwithstanding title 11, United States Code, no contract term, liquidation authority, netting authority, or other safe harbor shall be construed to authorize, validate, or excuse reuse of collateral prohibited by this section.

(3) Turnover.—In any insolvency, receivership, resolution, or bankruptcy proceeding of a collateral recipient, collateral held pursuant to this section shall be returned or released in accordance with subsection (d)(4) and shall not be administered as property beneficially owned by the collateral recipient.

(g) Recordkeeping and reporting.—

(1) Daily records.—Each collateral recipient and custodian shall maintain records sufficient to identify each collateral provider, each item of collateral, each segregated custody account, each substitution or release of collateral, and each enforcement action after default, and to demonstrate compliance with this section.

(2) Regulatory reporting.—Each appropriate Federal financial regulator shall require persons within its jurisdiction to submit periodic reports, in the uniform form prescribed under subsection (j), concerning aggregate collateral received, segregated holdings, substitutions, releases, enforcement after default, and violations of this section.

(3) Public reporting.—The appropriate Federal financial regulators shall publish, not less frequently than annually, aggregate and non-identifying information concerning the matters reported under paragraph (2).

(h) Anti-evasion.—It shall be unlawful for any person to evade or attempt to evade this section, including through an affiliate, intermediary, agreement, transaction, offsetting position, synthetic arrangement, or other direct or indirect means.

(i) Enforcement.—

(1) Wrongful reuse or conversion.—Any person that reuses, converts, misappropriates, or knowingly permits the reuse of collateral in violation of this section shall be liable for—

(A) restitution to each affected collateral provider;

(B) disgorgement of any net profits derived from the violation;

(C) a civil penalty equal to 3 times the value of the collateral wrongfully reused, converted, misappropriated, or made available for reuse; and

(D) appropriate injunctive and declaratory relief.

(2) Other civil violations.—A person that violates this section or a rule promulgated under this section in a manner not described in paragraph (1) shall be subject to a civil penalty not exceeding the greater of $1,000,000 or the value of the collateral affected by the violation. In determining the amount of the penalty, the appropriate Federal financial regulator or court, as applicable, shall consider—

(A) the culpability of the person;

(B) the duration and severity of the violation;

(C) the harm caused;

(D) any economic benefit obtained; and

(E) the promptness and adequacy of corrective action.

(3) Public enforcement.—

(A) Administrative enforcement.—An appropriate Federal financial regulator may, after notice and opportunity for hearing, issue an order against a person within its jurisdiction requiring the person to cease and desist from a violation, comply with this section, pay restitution, disgorge net profits, pay a civil penalty authorized under paragraph (1) or (2), and take such other corrective action as the regulator determines appropriate.

(B) Civil actions.—An appropriate Federal financial regulator, the Attorney General, or an attorney general of a State may bring a civil action in an appropriate district court of the United States to enforce this section or a rule promulgated under this section. In such an action, the court may award any relief authorized under paragraph (1) or (2), including injunctive and declaratory relief.

(4) Private cause of action.—Any collateral provider aggrieved by a violation of this section may bring a civil action for damages, restitution, injunctive relief, declaratory relief, and reasonable attorney's fees and costs.

(j) Rulemaking.—Not later than 120 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Financial Stability Oversight Council established under section 111 of the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act (12 U.S.C. 5321) shall, in consultation with the appropriate Federal financial regulators, issue an interim final rule to carry out this section. The Council shall provide a public comment period of not less than 60 days and shall issue a final rule not later than 1 year after the date of enactment of this Act. Each appropriate Federal financial regulator shall administer and enforce the rule with respect to persons and activities within its jurisdiction. A delay in issuing or finalizing a rule shall not delay or limit any prohibition or duty established by this section.

(B) Restrictions during impairment.—During any period in which a capital impairment plan is in effect, the Bank may not pay dividends or discretionary returns, issue new Bank investment instruments except as part of the capital impairment plan, or approve new financial assistance unless the Board determines that such action is necessary to protect the value of existing public credit assets or complete an already-approved project.

(g) Capital, liquidity, and reserve requirements.—

(1) Capital requirement.—The Bank shall maintain loss-absorbing capital in an amount not less than 10 percent of the aggregate outstanding principal amount of loans, guarantees, insurance, participation interests, and other financial assistance provided by the Bank, calculated in such manner as the Board may prescribe by rule.

SEC. 701. FINDINGS.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The United States food system has become increasingly consolidated at multiple levels, including agricultural inputs, processing, distribution, and retail, reducing competition, driving up prices for producers and consumers, and increasing vulnerability to supply chain disruptions. Procuring food is not optional. As Americans have seen prices climb over the last 6 years, they have increasingly recognized that our food system is stacked against them.

(2) Excessive concentration can enable algorithmic coordination of higher prices, and restrictive covenants in grocery markets undermine competitive market conditions to exclude competition. This contributes to higher consumer prices, suppressed producer prices, and diminished bargaining power for farmers, ranchers, and independent processors.

(3) Public school nutrition programs ensure better outcomes for children, and universal access to school meals reduces stigma, improves child health and educational achievements. When paired with regional sourcing and investment in local and small-scale meat processing infrastructure, these programs can strengthen local agricultural economies as well.

(4) The structure of the meatpacking and poultry industries has shifted toward high levels of vertical integration and market concentration, diminishing open markets for livestock and poultry producers and limiting regional processing capacity. Updating and enforcing agricultural competition laws, including the Packers and Stockyards Act, provides a solution.

(5) Large-scale industrial agricultural operations can impose environmental, public health, and community costs not fully reflected in market prices, including water pollution, air emissions, and degradation of rural infrastructure. Other subsidies distort the food system itself in ways that do not align with the long-term well-being of our families, our communities, and our planet.

(6) Restoring field-level capacity within the Department of Agriculture is necessary to ensure timely service delivery, fair program administration, inspection integrity, and meaningful access to Federal agricultural programs for producers across regions and scales.

(b) Purpose.—The purpose of this title is to unstack the food system.

SEC. 702. UNIVERSAL FREE SCHOOL MEALS AND LOCAL FOOD SOURCING.

(a) Universal free school lunches.—Section 9 of the National School Lunch Act (42 U.S.C. 1758) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(m) Universal free lunches.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, each lunch served under this Act to a student shall be provided at no charge and shall be eligible for Federal reimbursement without regard to household income.".

(b) Universal free school breakfasts.—Section 4 of the Child Nutrition Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 1773) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(f) Universal free breakfasts.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, each breakfast served under this section to a student shall be provided at no charge and shall be eligible for Federal reimbursement without regard to household income.".

(c) Income eligibility determinations.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall not require the collection, verification, or certification of household income information solely for purposes of determining eligibility for meals under the National School Lunch Act or the School Breakfast Program.

(d) Expanding the farm to school program.—In administering the programs amended by this section, the Secretary of Agriculture shall—

(1) ensure that not less than 20 percent of total food expenditures under the National School Lunch Act and the School Breakfast Program are directed to food produced, processed, or aggregated by small and mid-sized farms and independent processors located locally or regionally;

(2) prioritize procurement arrangements that shorten supply chains, increase farmer participation, and expand access for small and mid-sized farms and independent producers; and

(3) exclude from the minimum percentage any procurement from vertically integrated or dominant firms that primarily source food through national or global supply chains.

(e) Infrastructure and coordination.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall provide technical assistance and administrative support to enable compliance with subsection (d), including support for aggregation, storage, processing, distribution, food hubs, producer-to-school coordination, and other activities traditionally carried out under the Patrick Leahy Farm to School Program (42 U.S.C. 1769(g)).

(f) Transition authority.—The Secretary may provide for phased compliance with subsection (d), waivers for demonstrated hardship, and technical assistance, but shall require each school food authority to make continuous progress toward meeting the minimum percentage.

(g) Appropriation authorization.—There are authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to carry out this section.

Subtitle A—Institutional Capacity

SEC. 711. STRENGTHENING USDA INSPECTION CAPACITY.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) the Department of Agriculture faces persistent shortages in inspection personnel necessary to carry out inspection, facility oversight, grading, and sanitation duties under the Federal Meat Inspection Act and the Poultry Products Inspection Act; and

(2) effective enforcement of the Packers and Stockyards Act by the Administrator requires a well-resourced and fully staffed inspection and grading workforce within the Department of Agriculture.

(b) Workforce expansion.—The Secretary of Agriculture (in this section referred to as the "Secretary") shall take such actions as are necessary within the Meat and Poultry Inspection Division of the Food Safety and Inspection Service to—

(1) increase the number of inspection personnel, using recruitment and retention incentives as needed;

(2) modernize inspector scheduling, deployment, and training systems;

(3) identify and train part-time inspectors and technical assistance providers; and

(4) expand the availability of processing inspectors, technical assistance, and onsite inspection for eligible processing facilities, including no-cost overtime inspections.

(c) Professional experience.—The Secretary shall determine the appropriate professional experience of inspectors and providers described in subsection (b), which shall include individuals with expertise in veterinary medicine, public health, food service management, and animal science, as applicable.

(d) Rulemaking.—The Secretary shall promulgate such regulations as are necessary to carry out this section.

(e) Funding from USDA Field Capacity Restoration Fund.—

(1) In general.—For each fiscal year, the Secretary of Agriculture may use not more than $50,000,000 from the USDA Field Capacity Restoration Fund established under section 712 to carry out this section.

(2) Priority use.—Amounts made available under paragraph (1) shall be used for inspection personnel recruitment, retention, training, deployment, and related support functions necessary to carry out the Federal Meat Inspection Act, the Poultry Products Inspection Act, and the Packers and Stockyards Act.

(3) Supplement not supplant.—Amounts made available under this subsection shall supplement and not supplant any other amounts made available for inspection or enforcement activities.

SEC. 712. REBUILDING USDA FIELD CAPACITY AND SERVICE DELIVERY.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) effective agricultural policy depends on timely, accessible, and equitable delivery of services by the Department of Agriculture;

(2) chronic understaffing, office closures, and administrative backlogs within the Department of Agriculture have impaired access to farm programs, credit, conservation assistance, and market support, particularly for small and mid-sized producers;

(3) reliance on centralized or online-only service delivery has reduced practical access for producers in rural and underserved areas; and

(4) restoring on-the-ground capacity is necessary to ensure that Federal agricultural programs operate as enacted by Congress.

(b) Covered agencies.—In this section, the term "covered agency" means—

(1) the Farm Service Agency;

(2) the Natural Resources Conservation Service;

(3) the Rural Development mission area of the Department of Agriculture;

(4) the Agricultural Marketing Service, including functions relating to agricultural input oversight, contract fairness, market conduct, and producer protection, but excluding inspection functions carried out under the Federal Meat Inspection Act and the Poultry Products Inspection Act;

(5) the National Organic Program, including organic transition assistance under section 741(f), certification assistance, or organic compliance support programs; and

(6) any successor agency or office performing substantially similar producer-facing functions.

(c) Minimum service capacity requirements.—

(1) Staffing floors.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall ensure that each covered agency maintains sufficient personnel to carry out statutory duties without unreasonable delay, including minimum staffing levels for field offices serving agricultural producers.

(2) Vacancy limits.—No covered field office position essential to producer services may remain vacant for more than 180 days unless the Secretary publicly certifies that extraordinary circumstances prevent timely hiring.

(3) Physical presence.—The Secretary shall maintain accessible physical service locations for covered agencies in agricultural regions and may not eliminate or consolidate such locations if doing so would materially impair access to services.

(d) Hiring and retention authorities.—The Secretary of Agriculture may use the following authorities to carry out this section:

(1) direct-hire authority for covered agency positions;

(2) recruitment and retention incentives, including rural pay differentials and student loan repayment;

(3) paid training, apprenticeship, and fellowship programs linked to land-grant colleges and universities; and

(4) targeted hiring initiatives for underserved and high-need agricultural regions.

(e) Service delivery benchmarks.—

(1) Timeliness.—The Secretary shall establish benchmarks for timely processing of applications, payments, determinations, and approvals administered by covered agencies.

(2) Transparency.—The Secretary shall publish annual metrics on staffing levels, vacancy duration, and average processing times for major programs administered by covered agencies.

(f) USDA Field Capacity Restoration Fund.—

(1) Establishment.—There is established in the Treasury a fund to be known as the "USDA Field Capacity Restoration Fund".

(2) Funding.—The USDA Field Capacity Restoration Fund shall consist of amounts transferred under sections 731 and 742. In addition, there is appropriated to the USDA Field Capacity Restoration Fund, out of amounts in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $500,000,000 to carry out the purposes of this section.

(3) Availability.—Amounts in the USDA Field Capacity Restoration Fund shall be available to the Secretary of Agriculture, without fiscal year limitation, solely for personnel, training and transition services, field offices, travel, core administrative systems of covered agencies, and activities authorized under section 711, and not for grants or activities unrelated to direct service delivery.

(g) Oversight.—

(1) Report.—Not later than July 1, 2028, and every 2 years thereafter, the Secretary shall submit to the Committees on Agriculture of the House of Representatives and the Senate a report describing compliance with this section.

(2) Review.—The Comptroller General of the United States may review implementation of this section and assess whether staffing and service benchmarks are being met.

(h) Rulemaking.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall promulgate such regulations as are necessary to carry out this section.

SEC. 713. PROCESSOR CAREER TRAINING PROGRAMS.

(a) Title IV of the Agricultural Research, Extension, and Education Reform Act of 1998 is amended by inserting before section 404 (7 U.S.C. 7624) the following:

"Sec. 403. Processor career training programs.

"(a) Definitions.—In this section:

"(1) Land-grant colleges and universities.—The term 'land-grant colleges and universities' has the meaning given the term in section 1404 of the National Agricultural Research, Extension, and Teaching Policy Act of 1977 (7 U.S.C. 3103).

"(2) Smaller establishment; very small establishment.—The terms 'smaller establishment' and 'very small establishment' have the meanings given those terms in the final rule entitled 'Pathogen Reduction; Hazard Analysis and Critical Control Point (HACCP) Systems', as published in the Federal Register on July 25, 1996 (61 Fed. Reg. 38806).

"(3) Structured apprenticeship.—The term 'structured apprenticeship' means an apprenticeship program that—

"(A) provides most of the training on the job in a meat or poultry processing facility;

"(B) describes in detail—

"(i) all of the competencies necessary to work in a meat or poultry processing facility; and

"(ii) the competencies that are necessary to own and operate a meat or poultry processing facility that is a smaller establishment or a very small establishment;

"(C) describes the level of knowledge, skill, and ability the apprentice ought to attain in each competency;

"(D) includes a component for someone other than the trainer—

"(i) to assess competency attainment; and

"(ii) to assure that all competencies are being addressed during the apprenticeship;

"(E) includes an individualized plan for each apprentice that—

"(i) considers prior knowledge, skill, and ability; and

"(ii) allows for apprentices to opt out of competencies irrelevant to their career goals; and

"(F) focuses on individuals who will work in or operate meat or poultry processing facilities that are smaller establishments or very small establishments.

"(b) Processor career training programs.—

"(1) In general.—The Secretary shall provide competitive grants to junior or community colleges, technical or vocational schools, nonprofit organizations, worker training centers, and land-grant colleges and universities to establish or expand career training programs, including for structured apprenticeships, relating to meat and poultry processing.

"(2) Applications for small grants.—The Secretary shall establish a separate, simplified application and reporting process for entities described in paragraph (1) applying for a grant under this subsection of not more than $100,000.

"(3) Authorization of appropriations.—There is authorized to be appropriated to the Secretary to carry out this subsection $10,000,000 for each of fiscal years 2027 through 2032.".

SEC. 714. PUBLIC INTEREST SAFEGUARDS FOR USDA-FUNDED AGRICULTURAL RESEARCH.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Federal agricultural research funded by the Department of Agriculture is a public investment intended to serve farmers, consumers, and the long-term resilience of the United States food system.

(2) Consolidation in agricultural input markets has been reinforced through proprietary control over research developed with public funds.

(3) Farmers, independent researchers, and public institutions require access to open, replicable, and nonexclusive innovations to maintain competition and resilience.

(4) Federal research funding should not be used to entrench private market power, dependency, or exclusionary control over essential agricultural inputs.

(b) Definitions.—In this section, the term "agricultural research programs" means research, extension, education, and innovation programs administered or funded by the Department of Agriculture, including programs carried out through the Agricultural Research Service, the National Institute of Food and Agriculture, land-grant colleges and universities, cooperative extension services, and any successor or substantially similar programs.

(c) Research funding priorities.—In carrying out agricultural research programs, the Secretary of Agriculture shall prioritize funding for research that—

(1) reduces producer reliance on purchased, monopolized, or proprietary agricultural inputs;

(2) improves soil health, fertility, and long-term agricultural productivity;

(3) supports region-specific, climate-resilient, and diversified farming systems;

(4) advances open-source seed development, including publicly accessible germplasm, breeding lines, and varietal improvements available for unrestricted research, breeding, and farmer use;

(5) supports farmer transition to regenerative and organic production systems;

(6) promotes input-reducing agronomic practices, biological alternatives, and agroecological approaches; and

(7) supports farmer-led, public, or cooperative research and innovation models.

(d) Nonexclusive licensing requirement.—Any intellectual property, germplasm, biological material, data, or technical innovation developed in whole or in part using funds provided under agricultural research programs shall—

(1) be made available under nonexclusive, fair, and reasonable licensing terms; and

(2) not be licensed, transferred, or restricted in a manner that materially limits farmer access, independent research, replication, breeding, or competitive market entry.

(e) Prohibited licensing and agreement terms.—Funds provided under agricultural research programs may not be used for grants, cooperative agreements, or contracts that—

(1) require exclusive licenses or exclusive field-of-use restrictions for resulting research outputs;

(2) prohibit independent testing, evaluation, replication, or breeding;

(3) condition access to research outputs on the purchase or use of proprietary inputs, technologies, or services; or

(4) impose downstream restrictions that limit farmer reuse, seed saving, or further development of research outputs, except as consistent with subsection (d).

(f) Transparency and reporting.—The Secretary of Agriculture shall publish an annual public report describing—

(1) categories of research funded under agricultural research programs;

(2) licensing status of resulting research outputs;

(A) a de minimis threshold of revenue, slaughter volume, processing volume, market share, or a comparable measure by line of protein and relevant meat market below which a person may be excluded from the definition of a covered meatpacking enterprise, except that no such threshold may exclude a person that has annual net sales or total assets of more than $160,000,000, and any exclusion under this subparagraph shall be construed narrowly and shall not permit the preservation, recreation, or continuation of ownership or control of more than 1 line of protein inconsistent with the purposes of this section;

(2) Divestiture plan approval.—A divestiture plan required under this section may not be approved if the plan preserves, recreates, or transfers a vertical control arrangement described in paragraph (1).

(3) Ordinary contracts.—A nonexclusive spot-market contract or short-term supply contract shall not be treated as a vertical control arrangement solely because the contract provides for the purchase or sale of livestock, poultry, meat food products, or poultry products at commercially reasonable terms.

(e) Notice and judicial review.—

(1) Notice of divestiture requirement.—

(A) In general.—Not later than 60 days after the date of enactment of this Act, the Commission and the Antitrust Division shall, using the best information available, identify each person that the Commission and the Antitrust Division jointly determine is required to divest under subsection (b) or (c) and notify such person of the determination.

(c). Notice issued under paragraph (1) after receipt of a request under subparagraph (A) shall satisfy this requirement.

(C) No admission or tolling.—Submission of a request under subparagraph (A) shall not—

(i) constitute an admission that the person is subject to subsection (b) or required to divest under subsection (c); or

(ii) toll or extend any prohibition, duty, enforcement authority, divestiture obligation, or deadline under this section.

(3) Judicial review.—

(A) Petition for review.—

(C) Expedited consideration.—The court shall expedite consideration of a petition filed under subparagraph (A) to the greatest extent practicable.

(f) Divestiture.—

(1) Deadline.—Not later than July 1, 2028, any covered meatpacking enterprise required to divest under subsection (b) or (c) shall divest such interests, assets, operations, facilities, contracts, business units, or other property as are necessary to comply with this section.

(2) Standards.—A divestiture required under this section shall, to the maximum extent practicable, be structured to—

(A) avoid reconcentration of meatpacking assets;

(B) preserve or expand regional processing capacity;

(C) promote ownership and control of divested assets by independent businesses, farmer-owned cooperatives, worker-owned enterprises, and small or mid-sized businesses;

(D) preserve employment and operational continuity where consistent with competition; and

(E) prevent the preservation, recreation, or transfer of market power through a vertical control arrangement.

(g) FTC and DOJ review.—

(1) Divestiture plan required.—Not later than April 1, 2027, any covered meatpacking enterprise required to divest under subsection (f) shall submit to the Commission and the Antitrust Division a divestiture plan. Such plan—

(A) shall be submitted to the Commission and the Antitrust Division in the same manner, and containing substantially similar information, as a transaction filing under section 7A of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C. 18a), without respect to any threshold, exemption, or other limitation of such section; and

(ii) identification of the proposed acquiring person, if known;

(iii) a timetable for execution;

(A) Lead agency.—The Commission and the Antitrust Division may designate 1 agency to take the lead in conducting the review and communicating with the person submitting the plan.

(B) Review criteria.—The lead agency shall review the effect on competition, financial viability, regional processing capacity, independent market access, and the public interest—

(i) of the divestiture; and

(ii) of the subsequent acquisition of the divested business, assets, operations, facilities, contracts, or interests by the acquiring person.

(C) Additional information.—Any request for additional information by an agency shall be made within 30 days of receipt of the plan.

(D) Acquiring person.—

(i) A divestiture plan that identifies a proposed acquiring person may be approved only if the lead agency determines that—

(I) the proposed acquisition of the divested business, assets, operations, facilities, contracts, or interests by such acquiring person is consistent with the structural separation and deconcentration required by this section;

(II) the proposed acquisition would not materially harm competition or otherwise undermine the purposes of this section;

(III) the proposed acquisition would not preserve, recreate, or transfer a vertical control arrangement described in subsection (d); and

(IV) any statutory reporting, waiting period, or approval requirement applicable to the proposed acquisition will be satisfied before consummation.

(ii) A divestiture plan may be submitted and reviewed without identifying a proposed acquiring person, but no sale, transfer, assignment, or other disposition to an acquiring person may be consummated if either the Commission or the Antitrust Division disapproves in writing.

(E) Notice of decision.—Not later than the end of the review period, the lead agency shall notify the person in writing—

(i) whether the plan is approved, approved with conditions, or disapproved; and

(ii) the reasons for any disapproval or conditions.

(F) Approval standard.—A divestiture plan shall be treated as approved only if, before the end of the review period, the lead agency has approved the plan in writing, whether unconditionally or subject to conditions accepted in writing by the person submitting the plan, and neither the Commission nor the Antitrust Division has disapproved the plan in writing.

(3) Revised plan following disapproval.—If a plan is disapproved under paragraph (2), the person shall submit a revised divestiture plan not later than 60 days after receipt of the disapproval notice.

(A) Review deadline.—Not later than 150 days after receipt of a revised plan, but in no case later than May 1, 2028, the lead agency shall review the revised plan under the procedures set forth in paragraph (2).

(4) No tolling.—No submission, resubmission, agency review, negotiation, request for additional information, waiting period, court proceeding, or other matter shall toll or extend any deadline under this section.

(5) Consequences of noncompliance.—A person required to divest under subsection (f) shall be subject to subsection (h)(3), subsection (h)(4), or both, if such person fails to—

(A) submit a divestiture plan under paragraph (1);

(B) submit a revised plan under paragraph (3), if required to do so;

(C) obtain approval of either—

(i) a plan under paragraph (2); or

(ii) a revised plan under paragraph (3);

(D) conform to agreed-upon conditions of an approved plan; or

(E) conclude the divestiture required by subsection (f).

(6) Blocking of actions.—The Commission and the Antitrust Division, jointly or separately, may bring a civil action in any court of competent jurisdiction to block any action that would materially harm competition, reduce open market access or regional processing capacity, or otherwise undermine the purposes of this section.

(h) Enforcement.—

(1) In general.—When the Commission, the Antitrust Division, or an attorney general of a State has reason to believe that a person is in violation of this section or a rule promulgated under this section, the Commission, the Antitrust Division, or the attorney general of the State may bring a civil action in an appropriate district court of the United States.

(2) Injunctive and equitable relief.—In any action described in paragraph (1), the applicable court, on a finding that a person is in violation of this section or a rule promulgated under this section, shall issue an order requiring such person—

(A) to cease and desist from such violation and, if applicable, divest such interests as are necessary to comply with this section; and

(B) to pay an amount equal to the profits derived from any business, asset, operation, or interest subject to divestiture during the period of the violation.

(3) Penalties.—

(A) Written determination and transfer.—If a person knowingly and willfully fails to comply with a milestone specified under subsection (b)(2)(D), the Commission and the Antitrust Division, acting jointly, or the lead agency designated under subsection (g)(2)(A), shall issue a written determination identifying the missed milestone, the month for which escrow is required, the amount required to be transferred, and the method used to calculate such amount. Beginning not later than 15 days after receipt of such written determination, the person shall transfer into escrow on a monthly basis 10 percent of the profits of the person, to be—

(i) returned to the person if divestiture occurs by the deadline under subsection (f); or

(ii) deposited into the USDA Field Capacity Restoration Fund established under section 712 if divestiture does not occur by the deadline under subsection (f).

(B) Escrow administration and certification.—Any transfer into escrow under subparagraph (A) shall be deposited with the Secretary of the Treasury into a segregated account established for purposes of this section.

(i) Not later than 15 days after the end of each month for which a transfer is required, the person shall submit to the Chair of the Commission and the Antitrust Division a certification, signed by the chief executive officer and chief financial officer, attesting to the calculation of profits and gross revenues for such month and the amount transferred.

SEC. 801. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The Constitution of the United States establishes a duty to promote the general welfare. That duty includes building an economy in which work supports health, happiness, family stability, civic participation, and meaningful liberty.

(2) Employment is stacked against ordinary people who rely entirely on selling their labor to meet their basic needs. As Mahatma Gandhi observed in 1918, "Many of us become permanent slaves through fear of what might happen to us if we lost our jobs."

(3) Employment is stacked against ordinary people when fear of losing a job compels them to accept unsafe conditions, abusive treatment, unpredictable schedules, poverty wages, or unlawful conduct. Unconditional basic income, a public option for employment, and paid family leave can reduce economic coercion.

(4) Employment is stacked against ordinary people when employers use non-compete clauses, training repayment agreement provisions, or similar restraints to prevent workers from accepting better jobs or starting their own businesses. In 2023, a proposed ban on non-competes drew more than 26,000 public comments, with more than 95 percent in favor.

(5) Employment is stacked against ordinary people when wage theft costs workers as much as $50,000,000,000 each year—more than 3 times the FBI's 2019 estimate of all property-crime losses nationwide.

(6) Employment is stacked against ordinary people when surveillance-based wage setting and algorithmic management allow employers to individualize coercion, suppress wages, and manipulate workers in ways that weaken solidarity and ordinary market competition.

(7) Employment is stacked against ordinary people when workers are restrained from organizing, striking, bargaining, or acting collectively. Even when workers unionize, employer delay can delay delivery of tangible benefits, as demonstrated by the first Amazon warehouse to unionize in 2022, which still has no first contract.

(8) Employment is stacked against ordinary people when employers receive public money and then use that support to finance layoffs or outsourcing that hollows out the communities the public money was supposed to strengthen.

(9) Maritime capacity illustrates the broader industrial problem. In 2023, shipyards in the People's Republic of China had more than 1,700 shipbuilding orders for oceangoing vessels, while shipyards in the United States had fewer than 5, demonstrating the interconnectedness of industrial policy, workforce policy, and national security.

(10) Public production and predictable demand can reduce public costs, limit monopoly markups, create meaningful employment, and rebuild domestic capacity in shipbuilding, semiconductors, medicines, energy infrastructure, transportation equipment, food system infrastructure, and other strategic sectors.

(b) Purpose.—The purpose of this title is to unstack employment by making work in the United States more secure, fair, accessible, democratic, and productive as part of promoting the general welfare.

Subtitle A—Public Employment and Income Security

SEC. 811. AMERICAN UNION JOBS PROGRAM.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) America has sufficient resources to ensure that none of its citizens must live in poverty. The easiest, simplest way to do so is with universal, unconditional basic income (UBI), a regular amount of cash distributed to all citizens. In The Road to Serfdom, Hayek advocated for assuring "some minimum of food, shelter, and clothing" to everyone. However, individuals are best suited to decide what their specific needs are; providing fungible cash gives people the liberty to make their own choices.

(2) It is the unconditionality and universality that brings many of the intangible benefits of UBI. Finland's 2018 basic income experiment found recipients experienced increased trust—something America could benefit from—when they felt supported by those around them. Many societal benefits of addressing wealth inequality have been well documented in the book The Spirit Level: Why Greater Equality Makes Societies Stronger.

(3) As a form of UBI, the American Union Jobs Program will establish a safety floor that no one can fall beneath, at $20,000 annually for adults, plus $8,000 for children. Allowing tens of millions of our fellow citizens to fall into poverty through the holes in our existing safety net demonstrates that we are failing in our Constitutional duty to promote the general welfare—health, happiness, and prosperity. When combined with Treasury Dollar Bills and a public payment infrastructure, it will also bring millions into the banking system and reduce demand for predatory lending.

(4) The health of the nation will benefit from ending poverty with UBI. In her book Hand to Mouth: Living in Bootstrap America, Linda Tirado observed, "Being healthy and being poor are generally mutually exclusive conditions. We all have physical weaknesses, but a rich person gets these tended to before they get out of control. Poor people don't have that luxury."

(5) Consequently, poverty is a tremendous driver of health care usage, although it has not always been that way. 50 years ago, average costs for poor patients were less than those for wealthy patients. In 1992, they reached parity, and by 2008, Medicare spending was 30 percent to 40 percent higher for low-income beneficiaries.

(6) Dr. Richard "Buz" Cooper examined usage rates within the Wisconsin Hospital Referral Regions, where Milwaukee has a 35 percent higher usage rate than the rest of the state, measured in days used per 1,000 people. However, that usage was not uniform within the city. When usage rates were broken out by zip codes, he discovered that the poorest ones had an 85 percent above-average utilization rate, and concluded that lifting up the poor and near-poor residents could decrease hospital utilization by as much as 35 percent. He wrote: "Most of this increment was due to very high rates of admission and readmission for chronic illnesses, such as congestive heart failure, chronic obstructive pulmonary disease, and diabetes, which were fourfold to sevenfold more frequent among residents of the poverty corridor than among those residing in Milwaukee's affluent suburbs."

(7) Children will gain some of the largest health benefits from UBI. When pregnant mothers are stressed, studies show they can pass along epigenetic hardships to their unborn children, leading to increased risk of many of the health issues Dr. Cooper identified in Milwaukee.

(8) Childhood development is also impacted by economic stress in a household. Adults concerned about issues like rent are less talkative, and the amount of verbal engagement children receive is a key indicator of future success. A 2018 study, Estimating the Economic Cost of Childhood Poverty in the United States, found that poverty also increases child maltreatment, which then drives foster care services and other child welfare programs. Their research suggested poverty was the direct cause of 30 percent of the children in the child welfare system.

(9) The lifetime costs of childhood poverty are tremendous: the same study estimated them at $1,030 billion for the cohort of children born in a given year. More than one-third was attributed to crime and incarceration, with another 29 percent coming from reduced lifetime earnings. The authors concluded that "children being raised in poverty do not have the same chances for success as children who are raised in middle- or upper-income families. This contradicts our belief in 'liberty and justice for all.'"

(10) During the 1990s, researchers in the Great Smoky Mountains of North Carolina were studying the long-term psychological impacts of poverty on children there. A few years into the study, profit sharing from a new casino boosted the family incomes of about a quarter of the participants. The resulting control group provided an insight into the familial effects of reducing poverty. Parents reported one-third fewer arguments, less drug and alcohol use, and a 27 percent reduction in the children's behavioral disorder symptoms. When they grew up, they were 22 percent more likely to find a full-time job.

(11) Many of the health benefits are directly attributable to empowering parents to make better decisions for their children; parents all across the economic spectrum tend to spend extra money on their kids when they can. Fruits, vegetables, and other healthier foods in the house are one common result of basic income experiments. In Alaska, babies who got a $1,000 oil dividend in their first year of life were 4.5 percent less likely to be obese, compared to those who first benefited as toddlers.

(12) American Union Jobs recognize the value in the work that everyone does, even if it is not employment. UBI will allow many families to consider having a parent stay home during a child's formative years, further strengthening families. Proposals to address poverty with a higher minimum wage miss important boons like this one, because they only benefit those who work for financial compensation. UBI is an unconditional $20,000 annual raise for every adult. It offers greater freedom to decide for oneself how to allocate time between work and leisure.

(13) The cliche of the starving artist is well known. With UBI to provide a minimum level of income, it is easy to imagine art colonies springing up, with people pooling their incomes and sharing a house while they pursue their art. Others will form cooperatives around different businesses or industries. One can picture artisans working together to run small factories or farms, video game studios, or boutique offerings of all sorts. With America enmeshed in the world wide web, the demand for global entrepreneurial services can be provided from anywhere.

(14) For those engaged in traditional employment, American Union Jobs will provide greater liberty in choosing an employer, freeing people to seek right livelihood. They will also enable greater civic engagement. In 2011, Occupy Wall Street needed about $1,000 each day for food in Zuccotti Park. While people made sacrifices to be there, it was unsustainable. American Union Jobs bring the power to petition our government for redress of grievances. At $55 a day per adult, campaigns could literally occupy Washington.

(15) UBI unlocks large amounts of human potential that is currently trapped by poverty. The impact of economic stress has been tested in many ways, such as evaluating farmers in India before and after the harvest. The distraction of insecurity has been found to lower IQ by 13 points, and to increase the number of errors factory workers make.

(16) Unsurprisingly, poverty is also a driver of crime. Basic economic principles suggest people commit crimes if the benefits outweigh the cost, so poor people have a higher rate of return. Alaska discovered that property crimes fell about 8 percent in the 2 weeks after their annual oil dividend was distributed.

(17) This influence works in both directions: the criminal justice system disproportionately includes people in the lower quintiles of income. A 2009 Villanova University study concluded mass incarceration has increased the US poverty rate by an estimated 20 percent. A family's probability of being poor is 40 percent greater if the father is imprisoned.

(18) Many Americans would use their UBI to pay down student loans or other debt. As productivity has increased since the 1970s, wages have not kept up with those gains, resulting in an economic gap between the amount of wages earned in the economy and the value of goods produced for sale. That structural deficit, which has been temporarily filled in with increasing consumer debt, can only be permanently bridged by an external source of income—or, alternately, negated by widespread defaults. American Union Jobs are essential to the continued prosperity of our nation.

(19) Although they are unconditional—no one can be fired from an American Union Job any more than they can be fired from being an American—they do include job duties. They are a regular reminder of the 5 duties enumerated in the Preamble: establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, provide for the common defence, promote the general welfare, and secure the blessings of liberty to ourselves and our posterity.

(20) Even the rare individual who does nothing productive in a given week is promoting the general welfare [prosperity] by spending their UBI, bridging that structural gap between wage income and productive output. This will rejuvenate local economies all around the nation, as small businesses reap the rewards of new paying customers. An economy powered by UBI is a trickle-up economy; money is spent multiple times as it works its way up the economic ladder.

(21) As Americans, we can cooperate to ensure all of us have enough to meet our basic needs. That gives us greater freedom from economic coercion, providing the ability to walk away from abusive or exploitative relationships. The liberty to make meaningful choices about our lives is a critical component of happiness.

(b) Purpose.—The purpose of the American Union Jobs Program is to—

(1) promote the general health, happiness, and prosperity;

(2) remind every citizen of the United States of our duties to each other; and

(3) end poverty.

SEC. 814. PAID FAMILY LEAVE.

(a) Findings and purpose.—

(1) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(A) The United States is one of only a handful of nations that does not protect new mothers by providing paid maternal leave, which is a demonstrated way to reduce the infant mortality rate. Such monthly report shall be filed with the Commissioner not later than 15 days after the end of each month.

(ii) Review.—If the Commissioner determines that payment will not be made to an individual for a month, or if the Commissioner determines that payment shall be made based on a number of caregiving days in the month inconsistent with the number of caregiving days in the monthly benefit claim report of the individual for such month, the individual may request review of such determination at any time before the end of the 20-day period that begins on the date notice of such determination is received, except

(8) Prohibited acts; enforcement.—

(A) Employment and benefits protection.—

(i) Interference with protections.—It shall be unlawful for any person to interfere with, restrain, or deny the exercise of, or the attempt to exercise, any protection, benefit, or option provided under this section, including by using the application for, receipt of, or exercise of protections relating to family and medical leave insurance benefits as a negative factor in an employment action.

If either party shall apply to the court for leave to adduce additional evidence and shall show to the satisfaction of the court that such additional evidence is material and that there were reasonable grounds for the failure to adduce such evidence in the hearing before the Board, its member, agent, or agency, the court may order such additional evidence to be taken before the Board, its member, agent, or agency, and to be made a part of the record. The Board may modify its findings as to the facts, or make new findings, by reason of additional evidence so taken and filed, and it shall file such modified or new findings, which findings with respect to questions of fact if supported by substantial evidence on the record considered as a whole shall be conclusive, and shall file its recommendations, if any, for the modification or setting aside of its original order. If, after such investigation, the officer or regional attorney to whom the matter may be referred has reasonable cause to believe such charge is true and that a complaint should issue, such officer or attorney shall bring a petition for appropriate temporary relief or restraining order as set forth in paragraph (1). Such a complaint must be filed not later than either—

"(iv) opportunities that will be afforded to such person under paragraph (2).

"(2) Investigation by Secretary of Labor.—

"(A) In general.—Not later than 60 days after the date of receipt of a complaint filed under paragraph (1), and after affording the complainant and the person named in the complaint who is alleged to have committed the violation that is the basis for the complaint an opportunity to submit to the Secretary of Labor a written response to the complaint and an opportunity to meet with a representative of the Secretary of Labor to present statements from witnesses, the Secretary of Labor shall—

"(i) initiate an investigation and determine whether there is reasonable cause to believe that the complaint has merit; and

"(ii) notify the complainant and the person alleged to have committed the violation of subsection (a), in writing, of such determination.

"(B) Grounds for determination of complaints.—The Secretary of Labor shall dismiss a complaint filed under this subsection, and shall not conduct an investigation otherwise required under subparagraph (A), unless the complainant makes a prima facie showing that any behavior described in paragraphs (1) through (5) of subsection (a) was a contributing factor in the unfavorable personnel action alleged in the complaint.

"(3) Burdens of proof.—

"(A) Criteria for determination.—In making a determination or adjudicating a complaint pursuant to this subsection, the Secretary, an administrative law judge, or a court may determine that a violation of subsection (a) has occurred only if the complainant demonstrates that any conduct described in subsection (a) with respect to the complainant was a contributing factor in the adverse action alleged in the complaint.

"(B) Prohibition.—Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), a decision or order that is favorable to the complainant shall not be issued in any administrative or judicial action pursuant to this subsection if the respondent demonstrates by clear and convincing evidence that the respondent would have taken the same adverse action in the absence of such conduct.

"(C) Notice of relief available.—If the Secretary of Labor concludes that there is reasonable cause to believe that a violation of subsection (a) has occurred, the Secretary of Labor shall, together with the notice under paragraph (2)(A)(ii), issue a preliminary order providing the relief prescribed by paragraph (4)(B).

The filing of such objections shall not operate to stay any reinstatement remedy contained in the preliminary order. Any such hearing shall be conducted expeditiously, and if a hearing is not requested in such 30-day period, the preliminary order shall be deemed a final order that is not subject to judicial review.

"(E) Procedures.—

"(i) In general.—A hearing requested under this paragraph shall be conducted expeditiously and in accordance with rules established by the Secretary for hearings conducted by administrative law judges.

"(ii) Subpoenas; production of evidence.—In conducting any such hearing, the administrative law judge may issue subpoenas. "(4) Issuance of final orders; review procedures.—

"(A) Timing.—Not later than 120 days after the date of conclusion of any hearing under paragraph (2), the Secretary of Labor shall issue a final order providing the relief prescribed by this paragraph or denying the complaint. At any time before issuance of a final order, a proceeding under this subsection may be terminated on the basis of a settlement agreement entered into by the Secretary of Labor, the complainant, and the person alleged to have committed the violation.

"(B) Available relief.—

"(i) Order of Secretary of Labor.—If, in response to a complaint filed under paragraph (1), the Secretary of Labor determines that a violation of subsection (a) has occurred, the Secretary of Labor shall order the person who committed such violation—

"(I) to take affirmative action to abate the violation;

"(II) to reinstate the complainant to their former position, together with compensation (including back pay with interest) and restore the terms, conditions, and privileges associated with their employment;

"(III) to provide compensatory damages to the complainant; and

"(IV) expungement of all warnings, reprimands, or derogatory references that have been placed in paper or electronic records or databases of any type relating to the actions by the complainant that gave rise to the unfavorable personnel action, and, at the complainant's direction, transmission of a copy of the decision on the complaint to any person whom the complainant reasonably believes may have received such unfavorable information.

"(ii) Costs and expenses.—If an order is issued under clause (i), the Secretary of Labor, at the request of the complainant, shall assess against the person against whom the order is issued, a sum equal to the aggregate amount of all costs and expenses (including attorney fees and expert witness fees) reasonably incurred, as determined by the Secretary of Labor, by the complainant for, or in connection with, the bringing of the complaint upon which the order was issued.

"(C) Frivolous claims.—If the Secretary of Labor finds that a complaint under paragraph (1) is frivolous or has been brought in bad faith, the Secretary of Labor may award to the prevailing employer or labor organization a reasonable attorney fee, not exceeding $1,000, to be paid by the complainant.

"(D) De novo review.—

"(i) Failure of the Secretary to act.—If the Secretary of Labor has not issued a final order within 270 days after the date of filing of a complaint under this subsection, or within 90 days after the date of receipt of a written determination, the complainant may bring an action at law or equity for de novo review in the appropriate district court of the United States having jurisdiction, which shall have jurisdiction over such an action without regard to the amount in controversy, and which action shall, at the request of either party to such action, be tried by the court with a jury.

"(ii) Procedures.—A proceeding under clause (i) shall be governed by the same legal burdens of proof specified in paragraph (3). The court shall have jurisdiction to grant all relief necessary to make the employee whole, including injunctive relief and compensatory damages, including—

"(I) reinstatement with the same seniority status that the employee would have had, but for the discharge or discrimination;

"(II) the amount of back pay, with interest;

"(III) compensation for any special damages sustained as a result of the discharge or discrimination, including litigation costs, expert witness fees, and reasonable attorney fees; and

"(IV) expungement of all warnings, reprimands, or derogatory references that have been placed in paper or electronic records or databases of any type relating to the actions by the complainant that gave rise to the unfavorable personnel action, and, at the complainant's direction, transmission of a copy of the decision on the complaint to any person whom the complainant reasonably believes may have received such unfavorable information.

"(E) Other appeals.—Unless the complainant brings an action under subparagraph (D), any person adversely affected or aggrieved by a final order issued under subparagraph (A) may file a petition for review of the order in the United States Court of Appeals for the circuit in which the violation with respect to which the order was issued, allegedly occurred or the circuit in which the complainant resided on the date of such violation, not later than 60 days after the date of the issuance of the final order of the Secretary of Labor under subparagraph (A). Review shall conform to chapter 7 of title 5, United States Code. The commencement of proceedings under this subparagraph shall not, unless ordered by the court, operate as a stay of the order. An order of the Secretary of Labor with respect to which review could have been obtained under this subparagraph shall not be subject to judicial review in any criminal or other civil proceeding.

"(5) Failure to comply with order.—

"(A) Actions by the Secretary.—If any person has failed to comply with a final order issued under paragraph (4), the Secretary of Labor may file a civil action in the United States district court for the district in which the violation was found to have occurred, or in the United States district court for the District of Columbia, to enforce such order. In actions brought under this paragraph, the district courts shall have jurisdiction to grant all appropriate relief including injunctive relief, compensatory and punitive damages.

"(B) Civil actions to compel compliance.—A person on whose behalf an order was issued under paragraph (4) may commence a civil action against the person to whom such order was issued to require compliance with such order. The appropriate United States district court shall have jurisdiction, without regard to the amount in controversy or the citizenship of the parties, to enforce such order.

"(C) Award of costs authorized.—The court, in issuing any final order under this paragraph, may award costs of litigation (including reasonable attorney and expert witness fees) to any party, whenever the court determines such award is appropriate.

(6) Preservation of enforcement authority.—Nothing in this subsection shall limit the authority of the Administrator or the Secretary to investigate or enforce any requirement under the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (29 U.S.C. 201 et seq.) based on information obtained independently of an application or amendment, or with respect to any alleged retaliation, failure to make a settlement payment, failure to correct a practice identified in a self-audit, violation occurring after the settlement, or violation outside the scope of the settlement.

(e) Retaliation.—Section 15(a)(3) of the Fair Labor Standards Act of 1938 (29 U.S.C. 215(a)(3)) is amended by inserting before the semicolon the following: ", or has accepted or declined to accept an offer for settlement under section 833(c) of the POPULIST Act".

(1) furnish employment and a place of employment free from conditions that may reasonably be anticipated to cause death or serious physical harm from heat stress; and

(2) comply with standards, regulations, rules, and orders promulgated under this section.

(c) Worker heat protection standards.—

(1) In general.—The Secretary shall promulgate a worker heat protection standard that, in accordance with the best available evidence, establishes the maximum protective program of measures an employer shall implement to regulate employees' exposure to heat stress and prevent heat-related illness and injury that attains the highest degree of health and safety protection to the extent feasible.

(2) Considerations.—

(A) Demonstrably achievable measures.—The Secretary may presume that any requirement substantially equivalent to a requirement adopted by a State plan approved by the Occupational Safety and Health Administration pursuant to section 18(c) of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (29 U.S.C. 667(c)) and that has been in effect for at least 1 year is feasible.

(3) Protective programs.—

(A) In general.—In addition to measures specified by this section, the Secretary may develop a worker heat protection standard with such additional requirements that, in the Secretary's reasonable judgment, are necessary or appropriate to achieve the purposes of this section. Such measures may include the following:

(i) Engineering controls.—Requirements to eliminate hazardous levels of heat stress through engineering controls, such as isolation or shielding of employees from sources of heat, exhaust ventilation, insulation of hot surfaces, or climate-control technologies, as well as technology-based standards that encourage the development of such controls.

(ii) Administrative controls.—Requirements to limit exposure to hazardous levels of heat stress by adjustment of work procedures, work schedules, or other work practices.

(B) Innovative solutions.—As the relevant scientific evidence develops, technological solutions improve, and environmental conditions or new work practices aggravate the risk of heat-related illness or injury, the Secretary may modify, supplement, or revise a worker heat protection standard by rule in order to improve such standard in light of such changes, even if it departs from long-standing past practice, provided that the resulting standard is consistent with this section.

(C) Core practices.—The Secretary shall establish criteria under which an employer who exposes or may reasonably be anticipated to expose an employee to heat or heat stress that is not reduced below hazardous levels by engineering controls or personal protective equipment shall implement a reasonable program that includes—

(i) suitably cool potable water or appropriate hydration, provided at employer expense;

(ii) periodic paid rest breaks scheduled to reduce heat stress below hazardous levels;

Not later than 18 months after receipt of a petition, the Secretary shall either grant or deny the petition by publishing a written explanation of the reasons for the Secretary's decision; provided the Secretary may consolidate substantially similar petitions and may deny a petition by a brief written explanation if the Secretary determines that the petition is frivolous, duplicative, immaterial, unsupported by substantial information, or inconsistent with the purposes of this section. The Secretary may not deny a petition solely on the basis of inadequate resources or insufficient time for review.

(3) Timelines.—Except as otherwise provided in subsection (d), the Secretary shall observe the following schedule for rulemaking:

(h) Whistleblower protections.—

(1) Complaint.—Any employee who believes that such employee has been discharged or otherwise discriminated against by any person in violation of section 11(c)(1) of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (29 U.S.C. 660(c)(1)) with regard to any matter under or related to this section may, not later than 180 days after such violation occurs, file a complaint with the Secretary following the procedures in section 11(c)(2) of the Occupational Safety and Health Act of 1970 (29 U.S.C. 660(c)(2)) alleging such discrimination.

Subtitle D—Industrial Policy

SEC. 841. FINDINGS.

Congress finds the following:

(1) The United States has allowed essential industrial capacity, supply chains, production infrastructure, and skilled workforce pipelines to weaken through offshoring, consolidation, underinvestment, financial extraction, and dependence on fragile private markets.

(2) Concentrated control over strategic industrial sectors has reduced domestic resilience, weakened regional production capacity, limited new entry, increased dependence on foreign and domestic chokepoints, and reduced the ability of the United States to respond to emergencies, shortages, and national needs.

(3) A durable industrial policy requires public investment, long-term demand signals, workforce development, domestic production commitments, anti-offshoring safeguards, industrial deconcentration, public ownership where appropriate, and public interest conditions on the use of public money.

(4) Public money used to rebuild industrial capacity should support high-wage employment, registered apprenticeship, credential attainment, worker retention, cooperative and public ownership, small and medium-sized producers, regional industrial capacity, and long-term productive use of domestic facilities.

(5) Maritime industrial capacity is a critical example of the broader industrial reconstruction challenge. Decades of neglect have weakened the shipbuilding capacity, maritime workforce, commercial fleet, and maritime logistics position of the United States.

(6) The People's Republic of China has made shipbuilding and maritime logistics a strategic priority, while the United States has become dependent on too few oceangoing vessels of the United States, too few domestic shipbuilders, and too little domestic capacity to build, repair, crew, and operate vessels needed for commerce, emergencies, and national security.

(7) Demand signals, including cargo preference requirements, domestic use commitments, reserve purchasing, forward purchase commitments, public procurement, and strategic fleet requirements, can help rebuild domestic production capacity by creating predictable markets for goods and services produced in the United States.

(8) Industrial reconstruction should rebuild domestic capacity in shipbuilding, maritime logistics, ports, rail equipment, machine tools, steel, critical minerals processing, semiconductors, telecommunications equipment, grid equipment, transformers, energy storage, pharmaceuticals, active pharmaceutical ingredients, medical countermeasures, modular housing, construction materials, agricultural processing, food system infrastructure, and other strategic industrial sectors.

(9) Strategic public production and public manufacturing can address market failures, supply shortages, concentrated control, emergency needs, unaffordable essential medicines, and public interest production gaps by allowing the United States to own, finance, lease, operate, or support productive assets under enforceable public interest safeguards.

(10) Strategic reserves, export controls, ocean innovation clusters, public research infrastructure, artificial intelligence resources, credential modernization, and workforce frameworks are necessary parts of industrial policy because modern production depends on secure technology supply chains, regional industrial networks, computing capacity, and workers trained for critical and emerging technologies.

"(d) Avoidance via reclassification of labor.—If an individual provides personal services to a FAT-CAT or any member of the consolidated financial group of such FAT-CAT and at least 80 percent of the compensation of such individual for the taxable year is attributable to such FAT-CAT or group, such compensation shall be treated as covered remuneration regardless of whether such individual is classified as an employee, independent contractor, partner, or owner.

"(e) Coordination with other taxes.—No amount taken into account as 'covered remuneration' or 'covered profits' shall be excluded from the financial activities tax base solely by reason of being deductible or nondeductible under chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986. "(2) Undercapitalization, offshoring, and fragmentation.—The Secretary may prescribe rules to prevent the artificial shifting of profits, assets, remuneration, or financial activity outside the United States, outside a consolidated financial group, outside a person, or outside a significant financial line of business, and to ensure that persons or lines of business that are FAT-CATs in substance are treated as FAT-CATs. Such rules may aggregate financial activity conducted by persons under common control if such activity is separated, fragmented, assigned, transferred, booked, or characterized with a principal purpose of avoiding treatment as a FAT-CAT.

"(d) Returns, payments, and regulations.—

SEC. 862. VALUE ADDED TAX.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The utilization of America's productive capacity has trended downward over the last 50 years, as wages have not kept up with increases in productivity. The issuance of Treasury

Dollar Bills will enable an increase in purchasing power and drive further economic development by bridging the gap between wage income and productive output.

(2) Issuing Treasury Dollar Bills in sufficient quantities to end poverty will free up additional resources that are currently being diverted to address problems spurred by poverty, such as crime and increased health care usage. However, these quantities may cause inflation beyond normal targets; therefore, some of the increase should be taxed back ("clawed back") to remove it from circulation and fund government expenditures without borrowing money at interest.

(3) Wealth inequality distorts the marketplace and decreases the quality of life for citizens. A value added tax (VAT) is a consumption tax; those who spend the most will pay the most. Combined with unconditional basic income, it is a progressive tax.

(4) A 2011 report by the Congressional Research Service concluded, "The imposition of a VAT would cause a one-time increase in this country's price level. But a VAT would not necessarily affect this country's future rate of inflation if the Federal Reserve offset the contractionary effects of a VAT with a more expansionary monetary policy."

(5) The United States is the only member country of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development (OECD) without a VAT.

(6) Modern tax administration systems in other nations, including the Faroe Islands, reduce the need for taxpayers to prepare and file duplicative records. Administering a value added tax through Treasury transaction accounts could similarly enable the lifting of recordkeeping, paperwork, and other compliance burdens from business entities.

(b) Purpose.—The purpose of the value added tax is to address wealth inequality while clawing back some of the increase in the money supply.

"(B) No election.—If a business entity that has a 52–53 week taxable year that ends in December 2027, does not make the election under subparagraph (A) or is prohibited from making such election by subparagraph (C), the business entity's taxable year under the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 that would end in December 2027 shall end on December 31, 2027.

"(C) Anti-abuse rule.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to any taxpayer that enters into business transactions in 2027 following the scheduled end of its fiscal year with business entities that are not subject to the value added tax at the time of such transactions if such transactions deviate from the normal course of business in order to achieve some tax benefit.

"(c) New business entity.—The taxable year of a business entity that begins business activity after December 31, 2026, shall be the calendar year (or a 52–53 week fiscal year ending in December) unless the business entity can demonstrate a business reason for selecting an accounting period other than the calendar year.

"Sec. 1614. Long-term contracts.

"(a) In general.—In the case of a long-term contract—

"(1) Contractor expenses.—The contractor shall be entitled to deduct its business purchases when paid or incurred.

"(2) Contractor receipts.—The contractor shall recognize taxable receipts—

"(A) in the case of a project in which the acquirer has no ownership interest in the project until delivery—

"(i) upon delivery of the project, in the case of an accrual basis contractor; or

"(ii) upon the later of delivery of the project or the receipt of payment, in the case of a cash-basis contractor.

"(B) in the case of a project in which the acquirer obtains an ownership interest as the project is constructed—

"(i) when the contractor is entitled to payments, in the case of an accrual basis contractor; or

"(ii) upon the later of when the contractor receives the cash or is entitled to payments, in the case of a cash basis contractor.

"(3) Acquirer expenses.—The acquirer that is a business entity shall be entitled to deduct its costs of the business purchase—

"(A) in the case of a cash-basis acquirer, at such time as a cash basis contractor would be required to treat the amounts paid as taxable receipts; or

"(B) in the case of an accrual-basis acquirer, at such time as an accrual basis contractor would be required to treat the amounts paid or due as taxable receipts.

"(b) Claim on payments.—

"(1) In general.—A contractor shall be treated as having a just claim to payments with respect to a project at any time to the extent that the contractor would not be required to return payments received (or would be entitled to collect payments not yet received) if the project were terminated at such time by the contractor.

"(2) Contractual provisions.—If a long-term contract includes a procedure for paying the contractor as work is completed (for example, by reason of a draw down from a trust account), the contractual provisions shall generally govern when a contractor may claim a payment.

"(3) Percentage completion method of accounting.—If a long-term contract does not include a mechanism for paying the contractor as work is completed, the percentage-of-completion method of accounting shall be used to determine the timing of taxable receipts of the contractor and business purchases of the acquirer.

"(c) Long-term contract.—

"(1) In general.—'Long-term contract' means—

"(A) any contract that covers service or production through parts of 2 different calendar years if the contract includes a formal deposit and draw-down mechanism; and

"(B) any contract for the manufacture, building, installation, or construction of property or real property if such contract is not completed within the taxable year of the contractor in which such contract is entered into.

"(2) Exception.—A contract for the manufacture of property shall not be treated as a long-term contract unless such contract involves the manufacture of—

"(A) any unique item of a type which is not normally included in the finished goods inventory of the taxpayer; or

"(B) any item which normally requires more than 12 calendar months to complete.

"(d) Consistency.—The Secretary may require business entities to file statements containing such information with respect to long-term contracts as the Secretary may prescribe to ensure consistency in reporting.

"(e) Foreign contracts.—This section shall not be construed to permit a deduction for a business purchase for the cost of property produced outside the United States pursuant to a long-term contract at any time prior to the import of such property into the United States.

"Sec. 1615. Post-sale price adjustments and refunds.

"(a) Receipt of price adjustment.—In the case of a post-sale price adjustment attributable to a business purchase which was taken into account in computing gross profits for a prior taxable year, the amount of such adjustment shall be treated as a reduction or increase, as the case may be, in the cost of business purchases for the taxable year in which the adjustment is made or incurred.

"(b) Issuance of price adjustment.—In the case of a post-sale price adjustment attributable to a sale the receipts from which were taken into account in determining taxable receipts for a prior taxable year, the amount of such adjustment shall be treated as a reduction or increase, as the case may be, in taxable receipts for the taxable year in which the adjustment is made or incurred.

"(c) Post-sale price adjustment.—'Post-sale price adjustment' means a refund, rebate, or other price allowance attributable to a sale of property or services or an upward adjustment in price that was not previously taken into account under the business entity's method of accounting.

"Sec. 1616. Bad debts.

"(a) Seller.—If an amount owed to an accrual basis business entity for property or services sold—

"(1) was taken into account as a taxable receipt in a prior taxable year; and

"(2) becomes wholly or partially uncollectible during the taxable year, then the seller shall treat the amount as a reduction in taxable receipts for the taxable year in which it becomes wholly or partially uncollectible.

"(b) Notice requirement.—No reduction shall be allowed under subsection (a) unless the seller notifies the purchaser of the amount which the seller has treated as wholly or partially uncollectible.

"(c) Subsequent collection.—If an amount which was treated as uncollectible under subsection (a) is subsequently collected, it shall be treated as a taxable receipt when collected.

"(d) Purchaser.—If a purchaser receives notice under subsection (b) from a seller and the purchaser has treated the amount labeled uncollectible as a business purchase in a prior taxable year, then the purchaser shall treat such amount as a reduction in the cost of business purchases in the taxable year to which the notice relates. If the purchaser subsequently repays such amount, the repayment shall constitute the cost of a business purchase.

"Sec. 1617. Transition rules.

"(a) No double deductions.—A business entity shall not be entitled to treat as a cost of business purchase any amount that was paid or incurred, and was taken into account as a deduction, credit, or capitalized cost, for purposes of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 in a taxable year ending before January 1, 2028.

"(b) No double inclusion.—A business entity shall not be required to include in taxable receipts any receipt that was received or accrued, and was taken into account in gross income, for purposes of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 in a taxable year ending before January 1, 2028.

"(c) No loss of deduction.—If an amount is paid or incurred after December 31, 2027, and such amount would constitute a cost of business purchase under this chapter, such amount shall be treated as a cost of business purchase when paid or incurred under the accounting method applicable under this chapter, notwithstanding that the amount may relate to activities occurring before January 1, 2028.

"(d) All taxable receipts taxed.—If a receipt is received or accrued after December 31, 2027, and such receipt would constitute taxable receipts under this chapter, such receipt shall be treated as taxable receipts when received or accrued under the accounting method applicable under this chapter, notwithstanding that the receipt may relate to activities occurring before January 1, 2028.

"(e) Regulations.—The Secretary shall prescribe regulations as necessary to carry out this section, including regulations to prevent avoidance, duplication, or omission of taxable receipts or costs of business purchases by reason of the transition to this chapter.

"SUBCHAPTER C—CAPITAL CONTRIBUTIONS, MERGERS, ACQUISITIONS, AND DISTRIBUTIONS

"SEC. 1621. Contributions to a business entity.

"SEC. 1622. Distributions of property.

"SEC. 1623. Asset acquisitions.

"SEC. 1624. Mergers and stock acquisitions.

"SEC. 1625. Spin-offs, split-offs, etc.

"SEC. 1626. Allocation of certain tax attributes.

"Sec. 1621. Contributions to a business entity.

"(a) By business entity.—

"(1) Cash.—If a business entity contributes cash to a business entity of which it is or becomes a partial or full owner, the amount contributed is not a deductible amount to the contributor or a taxable receipt to the recipient.

"(2) Property or services.—If a business entity contributes property or services to a business entity of which it is or becomes a partial or full owner, the transaction will not result in taxable receipts to the contributor or a deduction for a business purchase for the recipient and will not constitute a sale resulting in taxable receipts to the contributor.

"(b) By individual.—

"(1) Cash.—If an individual contributes cash to a business entity, the cash received is not a taxable receipt.

"(2) New property.—If an individual contributes to a business entity property that the individual purchased for the business entity but which was not used by any person after its purchase, the property shall be considered purchased by such business entity from the person from which the individual purchased the property.

"(3) Personal use property.—

"(A) In general.—If an individual contributes personal use property to a business entity in which the individual has an ownership interest or for which the individual receives an ownership interest, the business entity shall not be permitted to deduct the value of the property received as a business expense. For purposes of this subchapter, the contributed property shall be treated as having a carried cost equal to the amount paid or incurred by the contributor to acquire such property.

"(B) Personal use property.—'Personal use property' means any property used by an individual at any time other than in a business activity.

"(4) Services.—If an individual contributes services to a business entity in which the individual has an ownership interest or receives an ownership interest, the business entity shall not be permitted to deduct the value of the services received (or the value of the equity interest provided to the services provider).

"Sec. 1622. Distributions of property.

"(a) Distributions other than to controlling business.—If a business entity distributes all or a portion of its assets to its owners (other than a controlling business entity), the business entity will be treated as if it sold the assets to its owners at fair market value. The fair market value will be determined by the distributing business entity and those determinations, unless unreasonable, will be binding on the recipients.

"(b) Distributions to a controlling business.—If a business entity distributes all or a portion of its assets to a controlling business, the controlling business will assume the distributing entity's tax attributes with respect to the assets and neither entity will have taxable receipts or a deduction as a result of the transaction.

"(c) Distribution of personal use property.—If personal use property is distributed to the individual who contributed the personal use property to a business entity, then, solely for purposes of subsection (a), the fair market value of the property shall be treated as not less than—

"(1) the carried cost of such property (as determined under section 1621(b)(3)(A)); plus

"(2) any enhancement in value of the property attributable to business purchases with respect to the property.

"(d) Controlling business entity.—A business entity is a 'controlling business entity' with respect to another business entity if it owns directly or indirectly more than 50 percent of the profits or capital interest in the other business entity.

"(e) Application of this section.—This section applies to both liquidating and nonliquidating distributions. Property shall be treated as distributed if the property is used for a purpose other than use in a business activity for more than an insubstantial period of time during a taxable year.

"Sec. 1623. Asset acquisitions.

"(a) In general.—If a business entity transfers some or all of its assets, the consideration received for such assets shall be allocated among the assets transferred in the same manner as was required by section 1060 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986. If the transferee and transferor agree in writing on the allocation of any consideration, or as to the fair market value of any of the assets, such agreement shall be binding on both the transferor and transferee unless the Secretary determines that such allocation (or fair market value) is not appropriate.

"(b) Tax consequences.—The tax consequences of an asset acquisition shall be determined in accordance with the rules of this chapter and shall be dependent upon allocations made under subsection (a). In general, consideration allocable to savings assets, such as stock in another business entity, would not be included in taxable receipts of the transferor and would not be a business purchase of the purchaser, but consideration allocable to the sale of tangible property and intangible property (other than savings assets) will constitute taxable receipts of the seller and a business purchase of the purchaser.

"(c) Election to treat asset acquisition as a stock acquisition.—In the case of the sale of substantially all of the assets of a business entity or substantially all of the assets of a line of business or a separately standing business of a business entity, the transferee and transferor can jointly elect to treat the acquisition as if it were an acquisition of the ownership interests of a business entity holding the assets so transferred. In such case, the rules of section 1624 shall apply.

"(d) Authority to require allocation agreement and notice to the Secretary.—If the Secretary determines that certain types of asset acquisitions have significant possibilities of tax avoidance, the Secretary may require—

"(1) parties to such types of acquisitions to enter into agreements allocating consideration;

"(2) parties to acquisitions involving certain kinds of assets to enter into agreements allocating part of the consideration to those assets; or

"(3) parties to certain acquisitions to report information to the Secretary.

"(e) Asset acquisition rules do not apply if consideration includes equity in purchaser.—

"(1) In general.—If a business entity issues its own equity or equity in a subsidiary or other controlled entity as part of the consideration for the transfer of assets to it, the transaction shall not be treated as an asset acquisition and shall be treated in accordance with rules prescribed by the Secretary.

"(2) Equity.—For purposes of this subsection, equity means—

"(A) stock, in the case of a corporation;

"(B) partnership or similar interest, in the case of a partnership or limited liability company; and

"(C) an ownership interest or interest in profits in the case of any other business entity.

"Sec. 1624. Mergers and stock acquisitions.

"(a) Mergers.—A merger of 1 business entity into another or 2 business entities into a third business entity or any other similar transaction shall have no direct consequences under the tax imposed by this chapter. The surviving entity shall assume the tax attributes of the merged business entities.

"(b) Stock acquisition.—The acquisition of all or substantially all of the ownership interest in 1 business entity shall have no direct consequences under the tax imposed by this chapter if the acquisition is made—

"(1) for cash; or

"(2) in exchange for an ownership interest in the acquiring entity or an entity controlled by the acquiring entity.

"Sec. 1625. Spin-offs, split-offs, etc.

"A spin-off, split-off, or split-up of a business entity shall have no direct consequences under the tax imposed by this chapter.

"Sec. 1626. Allocation of certain tax attributes.

"The Secretary shall prescribe rules for allocation of tax attributes in cases of substantial shifts of assets from 1 business entity to another business entity. Under such rules, a portion of a business entity's tax attributes may be deemed transferred when assets are transferred.

"SUBCHAPTER D—COOPERATIVES

"(2) Supply cooperative.—The term 'supply cooperative' means a cooperative that sells goods or services to patrons and provides patronage dividends with respect to the quantity of purchases of the patrons.

"(3) Marketing cooperative.—The term 'marketing cooperative' means a cooperative that sells goods produced by its members and provides patronage dividends to the members based on the quantities of goods sold or provided for sale.

"(b) Patronage dividends paid by supply cooperatives.—A qualified patronage dividend paid by a supply cooperative to a patron shall be treated as if it is a refund of a portion of the amounts paid by the patron for goods, services, or use of capital. In general, if the supply cooperative included the amount received from the patron in taxable receipts, the dividend shall reduce taxable receipts in the taxable year in which the dividend is paid or incurred. If the recipient of the dividend is a business entity that deducted the cost of business purchases to which the dividend related, the recipient shall reduce its cost of business purchases by the amount of the dividend in the taxable year in which the dividend is paid or incurred.

"(c) Patronage dividends paid by marketing cooperatives.—A qualified patronage dividend paid to a patron by a marketing cooperative shall be treated as an upward price adjustment in the amount received by the patron for its goods marketed by the cooperative. In general, the cooperative shall increase its cost of business purchases by the amount of the qualified patronage dividend and the recipient shall increase its taxable receipts by the amount of the qualified patronage dividend.

"(d) Limitation.—Only the portion of a patronage dividend that is a qualified patronage dividend may—

"(1) reduce taxable receipts under subsection (b); or

"(2) increase the cost of business purchases under subsection (c).

"(e) Special rules.—

"(1) Notices of allocation and per-unit retain certificates.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), a notice of allocation, per-unit retain certificate, or other similar document shall not be treated as a patronage dividend until it is redeemed in cash or property.

"(2) Opportunity to receive cash.—If a patron is given an opportunity to receive a patronage dividend in cash, but instead chooses to accept a per-unit retain certificate or a qualified notice of allocation, the patron shall be treated as receiving cash and simultaneously contributing to the capital of the cooperative.

"(3) Application limited to qualified cooperatives.—Under rules to be prescribed by the Secretary, this section shall apply only to cooperatives to which 1 of the following provisions of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 would have applied:

"(A) section 501(c)(12) (relating to cooperative telephone companies and similar organizations);

"(B) section 501(c)(14) (relating to certain cooperative banks);

"(C) section 521 (relating to farm cooperatives); or

"(D) section 1381 (relating to cooperatives generally).

"(4) Regulations.—The Secretary shall prescribe regulations for the application of this section. The regulations shall generally be consistent with subchapter T of chapter 1 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 except to the extent that such rules are inconsistent with provisions of this chapter.

"(a) Mixed transactions.—The Secretary shall prescribe regulations for the treatment of transactions that include both financial activities and nonfinancial activities.

"(b) Anti-avoidance.—The Secretary shall prescribe regulations to prevent avoidance of this chapter or chapter 50C through bundling, recharacterization, related-party arrangements, artificial separation of financial and nonfinancial activities, allocation of shared expenses, or any other transaction, structure, or arrangement having a principal purpose of avoiding tax under this chapter or chapter 50C.

"Sec. 1644. Coordination with chapter 50C.

"(2) the benefit will be realized solely in connection with the activities of the purchaser occurring outside the United States.

"(d) Services acquired from service provider that provides services in and outside the United States.—

"(1) In general.—If a business entity acquires services from a service provider that provides services both in and outside the United States and the service provider shows on the invoice where the services are provided—

SEC. 901. FINDINGS.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Although immigration is not among Congress's expressly enumerated powers under the Constitution, it has long exercised primary responsibility for national immigration policy through statute. That responsibility has been only sporadically and incompletely exercised since the Immigration Reform and Control Act of 1986, despite major changes in global migration, labor markets, humanitarian displacement, and administrative capacity.

(2) For most of the 21st century, Congress has acknowledged the need to modernize the immigration system but has failed to enact necessary reforms, leaving core immigration policy to be shaped by litigation, executive discretion, and agency backlog rather than clear statutory direction. As a result, a person seeking to immigrate lawfully to the United States could reasonably conclude that the current immigration system is stacked against them.

(3) The United States immigration system is characterized by chronic backlogs and prolonged adjudication timelines caused by structural underinvestment in U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services and the Executive Office for Immigration Review.

(4) Demand for unauthorized labor within the United States, combined with inadequate enforcement of worker eligibility verification laws, encourages unlawful migration and enables exploitation of both unauthorized and lawful workers.

(5) An immigration system that emphasizes enforcement without commensurate investment in courts, adjudicators, counsel, and timely case resolution increases detention costs, undermines due process, and delays lawful outcomes.

(6) Farmworkers and other essential workers perform labor critical to national food security and economic stability, and immigration policies affecting such workers must ensure workforce continuity, lawful employment authorization, and protection against exploitation.

(7) Millions of noncitizens residing in the United States have lived in their communities for many years, established family and employment ties, and contributed to the economic growth of the United States; public polling consistently shows broad support for providing lawful status to long-term residents.

(b) Purpose.—The purposes of this title are as follows:

(1) To reassert Congress's responsibility for establishing national immigration policy through clear, durable statutory law rather than reliance on litigation, executive action, or administrative backlog.

(2) To improve fairness, accountability, and efficiency in the immigration system by expanding adjudicatory capacity, reducing backlogs, strengthening due process, and aligning enforcement with lawful pathways.

(3) To unstack the immigration system by restoring timely adjudication, lawful employment verification, humane treatment of vulnerable populations, and workable legal pathways consistent with the national interest.

Subtitle A—Employment Eligibility Verification Required

SEC. 911. MANDATORY USE OF VERIFICATION SYSTEM.

Section 274A of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1324a) is amended by striking subsections (a) through (h) and inserting the following:

"(a) Making employment of unauthorized aliens unlawful.—

"(1) In general.—It is unlawful for a person or other entity—

"(A) to hire, or to recruit or refer, for employment in the United States an alien knowing the alien is an unauthorized alien (as defined in subsection (i)(8)) with respect to such employment, or

"(B) to hire, continue to employ, or to recruit or refer, for employment in the United States an individual without complying with the requirements of subsection (b).

"(2) Continuing employment.—It is unlawful for a person or other entity, after complying with paragraph (1), to continue to employ the alien in the United States knowing the alien is (or has become) an unauthorized alien with respect to such employment.

"(3) Defense.—A person or entity that establishes that it has used the verification system (as provided in subsection (d)) or otherwise complied in good faith with the requirements of subsection (b) with respect to the hiring, continuation of employment, recruiting, or referral for employment of an alien in the United States has established an affirmative defense that the person or entity has not violated paragraph (1) with respect to such hiring, continuation of employment, recruiting, or referral, absent a showing by the Secretary, by clear and convincing evidence, that the employer had knowledge that an employee is an unauthorized alien.

"(4) Use of labor through contract.—For purposes of this section, a person or other entity who uses a contract, subcontract, or exchange, entered into, renegotiated, or extended after November 6, 1986, to obtain the labor of an alien in the United States knowing that the alien is an unauthorized alien (as defined in subsection (i)(8)) with respect to performing such labor, shall be considered to have hired the alien for employment in the United States in violation of paragraph (1)(A).

"(5) Use of State employment agency documentation.—For purposes of paragraphs (1)(B) and (3), a person or entity shall be deemed to have complied with the requirements of subsection (b) with respect to the hiring of an individual who was referred for such employment by a State employment agency (as defined by the Secretary), if the person or entity has and retains, for the period and in the manner described in subsection (b)(1)(C), appropriate documentation of such referral by that agency, which documentation certifies that the agency has complied with the procedures specified in subsection (b) with respect to the individual's referral.

"(6) Treatment of documentation for certain employees.—

"(A) In general.—For purposes of this section, if—

"(i) an individual is a member of a collective-bargaining unit and is employed, under a collective bargaining agreement entered into between 1 or more employee organizations and an association of 2 or more employers, by an employer that is a member of such association, and

"(ii) within the period specified in subparagraph (B), another employer that is a member of the association (or an agent of such association on behalf of the employer) has complied with the requirements of subsection (b) with respect to the employment of the individual,

"the subsequent employer shall be deemed to have complied with the requirements of subsection (b) with respect to the hiring of the employee and shall not be liable for civil penalties described in subsection (e)(5).

"(B) Period.—The period described in this subparagraph is 3 years, or, if less, the period of time that the individual is authorized to be employed in the United States.

"(C) Liability.—

"(i) In general.—If any employer that is a member of an association hires for employment in the United States an individual and relies upon the provisions of subparagraph (A) to comply with the requirements of subsection (b) and the individual is an alien not authorized to work in the United States, then for the purposes of paragraph (1)(A), subject to clause (ii), the employer shall be presumed to have known at the time of hiring or afterward that the individual was an alien not authorized to work in the United States.

"(ii) Rebuttal of presumption.—The presumption established by clause (i) may be rebutted by the employer only through the presentation of clear and convincing evidence that the employer did not know (and could not reasonably have known) that the individual at the time of hiring or afterward was an alien not authorized to work in the United States.

"(iii) Exception.—Clause (i) shall not apply in any prosecution under subsection (f)(1).

"(b) Employment verification process.—

"(1) New hires, recruitment, and referral.—The requirements referred to in paragraphs (1)(B) and (3) of subsection (a) are, in the case of a person or other entity hiring, recruiting, or referring an individual for employment in the United States, the following:

"(A) Attestation after examination of documentation.—

"(i) Attestation.—During the verification period (as defined in subsection (i)(9)), the person or entity must attest, under penalty of perjury and on a form, including electronic and telephonic formats, designated or established by the Secretary by regulation not later than March 1, 2027, that it has verified that the individual is not an unauthorized alien by—

"(I) obtaining from the individual the individual's social security account number or United States passport number and recording the number on the form (if the individual claims to have been issued such a number), and, if the individual does not attest to United States nationality under subparagraph (B), obtaining such identification or authorization number established by the Department of Homeland Security for the alien as the Secretary of Homeland Security may specify, and recording such number on the form; and

"(II) examining—

"(aa) a document relating to the individual presenting it described in clause (ii); or

"(bb) a document relating to the individual presenting it described in clause (iii) and a document relating to the individual presenting it described in clause (iv).

"(ii) Documents establishing both employment authorization and identity.—A document described in this clause is an individual's—

"(I) unexpired United States passport or passport card;

"(II) unexpired permanent resident card that contains a photograph;

"(III) unexpired employment authorization card that contains a photograph;

"(IV) in the case of a nonimmigrant alien authorized to work for a specific employer incident to status, a foreign passport with Form I–94 or Form I–94A, or other documentation as designated by the Secretary specifying the alien's nonimmigrant status as long as the period of status has not yet expired and the proposed employment is not in conflict with any restrictions or limitations identified in the documentation;

"(V) passport from the Federated States of Micronesia (FSM) or the Republic of the Marshall Islands (RMI) with Form I–94 or Form I–94A, or other documentation as designated by the Secretary, indicating nonimmigrant admission under the Compact of Free Association Between the United States and the FSM or RMI; or

"(VI) other document designated by the Secretary, if the document—

"(aa) contains a photograph of the individual and biometric identification data from the individual and such other personal identifying information relating to the individual as the Secretary finds, by regulation, sufficient for purposes of this clause;

"(bb) is evidence of authorization of employment in the United States, and

"(cc) contains security features to make it resistant to tampering, counterfeiting, and fraudulent use.

"(iii) Documents evidencing employment authorization.—A document described in this clause is an individual's—

"(I) social security account number card (other than such a card which specifies on the face that the issuance of the card does not authorize employment in the United States); or

"(II) other documentation evidencing authorization of employment in the United States which the Secretary finds, by regulation, to be acceptable for purposes of this section.

"(iv) Documents establishing identity of individual.—A document described in this clause is—

"(I) an individual's unexpired State-issued driver's license or identification card, if it contains a photograph of the individual and information such as name, date of birth, gender, height, eye color, and address;

"(II) an individual's unexpired United States military identification card;

"(III) an individual's unexpired Native American tribal identification document issued by a tribal entity recognized by the Bureau of Indian Affairs; or

"(IV) in the case of an individual under 18 years of age, a parent or legal guardian's attestation under penalty of law as to the identity and age of the individual.

"(v) Authority to prohibit use of certain documents.—If the Secretary finds, by regulation, that any document described in clause (ii), (iii), or (iv), as establishing employment authorization or identity does not reliably establish such authorization or identity or is being used fraudulently to an unacceptable degree, the Secretary may prohibit or place conditions on its use for purposes of this subsection.

"(vi) Signature.—Such attestation may be manifested by either a handwritten or electronic signature.

"(B) Individual attestation of employment authorization.—During the verification period (as defined in subsection (i)(9)), the individual must attest, under penalty of perjury on the form designated or established for purposes of subparagraph (A), that the individual is a citizen or national of the United States, an alien lawfully admitted for permanent residence, or an alien who is authorized under this chapter or by the Secretary to be hired, recruited, or referred for such employment. Such attestation may be manifested by either a handwritten or an electronic signature. The individual shall also provide that individual's social security account number or United States passport number (if the individual claims to have been issued such a number), and, if the individual does not attest to United States nationality under this subparagraph, such identification or authorization number established by the Department of Homeland Security for the alien as the Secretary may specify.

"(C) Retention of verification form and verification.—

"(i) In general.—After completion of such form in accordance with subparagraphs (A) and (B), the person or entity must—

"(I) retain a paper or electronic version of the form and make it available for inspection by officers of the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of Justice, or the Department of Labor during a period—

"(aa) in the case of the recruiting or referral of an individual, ending 3 years after the date of the recruiting or referral, and

"(bb) in the case of the hiring of an individual, ending 3 years after the date on which the verification is completed, or 1 year after the date the individual's employment is terminated, whichever is later; and

"(II) if required by subparagraph (D), make an inquiry (as provided in subsection (d)) using the verification system, during the verification period, to seek verification of the identity and employment eligibility of an individual.

"(ii) Confirmation.—

"(I) Confirmation received.—If the person or other entity receives an appropriate confirmation of an individual's identity and work eligibility under the verification system within the time period specified, the person or entity shall record on the form an appropriate code that is provided under the system and that indicates a final confirmation of such identity and work eligibility of the individual.

"(II) Tentative nonconfirmation received.—If the person or other entity receives a tentative nonconfirmation of an individual's identity or work eligibility under the verification system within the time period specified, the person or entity shall so inform the individual for whom the verification is sought. If the individual does not contest the nonconfirmation within the time period specified, the nonconfirmation shall be considered final. The person or entity shall then record on the form an appropriate code which has been provided under the system to indicate a final nonconfirmation. If the individual does contest the nonconfirmation, the individual shall utilize the process for secondary verification provided under subsection (d). The nonconfirmation will remain tentative until a final confirmation or nonconfirmation is provided by the verification system within the time period specified. In no case shall an employer terminate employment of an individual because of a failure of the individual to have identity and work eligibility confirmed under this section until a nonconfirmation becomes final. Nothing in this clause shall apply to a termination of employment for any reason other than because of such a failure. In no case shall an employer rescind the offer of employment to an individual because of a failure of the individual to have identity and work eligibility confirmed under this subsection until a nonconfirmation becomes final. Nothing in this subclause shall apply to a rescission of the offer of employment for any reason other than because of such a failure.

"(III) Final confirmation or nonconfirmation received.—If a final confirmation or nonconfirmation is provided by the verification system regarding an individual, the person or entity shall record on the form an appropriate code that is provided under the system and that indicates a confirmation or nonconfirmation of identity and work eligibility of the individual.

"(IV) Extension of time.—If the person or other entity in good faith attempts to make an inquiry during the time period specified and the verification system has registered that not all inquiries were received during such time, the person or entity may make an inquiry in the first subsequent working day in which the verification system registers that it has received all inquiries. If the verification system cannot receive inquiries at all times during a day, the person or entity merely has to assert that the entity attempted to make the inquiry on that day for the previous sentence to apply to such an inquiry, and does not have to provide any additional proof concerning such inquiry.

"(V) Consequences of nonconfirmation.—

"(aa) Termination or notification of continued employment.—If the person or other entity has received a final nonconfirmation regarding an individual, the person or entity may terminate employment of the individual (or decline to recruit or refer the individual). If the person or entity does not terminate employment of the individual or proceeds to recruit or refer the individual, the person or entity shall notify the Secretary of such fact through the verification system or in such other manner as the Secretary may specify.

"(bb) Failure to notify.—If the person or entity fails to provide notice with respect to an individual as required under item (aa), the failure is deemed to constitute a violation of subsection (a)(1)(A) with respect to that individual.

"(VI) Continued employment after final nonconfirmation.—If the person or other entity continues to employ (or to recruit or refer) an individual after receiving final nonconfirmation, a rebuttable presumption is created that the person or entity has violated subsection (a)(1)(A).

"(D) Staggered mandate for new hires, recruitment, and referral.—

"(i) Use required.—Use of the verification system (as provided in subsection (d)) is required for purposes of this paragraph—

"(I) with respect to employers having 10,000 or more employees in the United States, beginning on April 1, 2027;

"(II) with respect to employers having 1,000 or more employees in the United States, beginning on October 1, 2027;

"(III) with respect to employers having 100 or more employees in the United States, beginning on April 1, 2028;

"(IV) with respect to all other employers in the United States, beginning on January 1, 2029; and

"(V) with respect to a person or other entity recruiting or referring an individual for employment in the United States, beginning on August 1, 2027.

"(ii) Transition rule.—Subject to paragraph (4), the following shall apply to a person or other entity hiring, recruiting, or referring an individual for employment in the United States until the effective date or dates applicable under clause (i):

"(I) This subsection, as in effect on the day before the date of enactment of this Act.

"(II) Subtitle A of title IV of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (8 U.S.C. 1324a note), as in effect on the day before the date of enactment of this Act.

"(III) Any other provision of Federal law requiring the person or entity to participate in the E-Verify Program, as in effect on the day before the date of enactment of this Act, including Executive Order 13465 (8 U.S.C. 1324a note; relating to Government procurement).

"(iii) Existing workforce.—Verification of individuals employed before the applicable date under clause (i) shall be governed by paragraph (3).

"(E) Job offer may be conditional.—A person or other entity may offer a prospective employee an employment position that is conditioned on final verification of the identity and employment eligibility of the employee using the procedures established under this paragraph, even if such verification is not required by law.

"(2) Reverification for individuals with limited work authorization.—

"(A) In general.—A person or entity required by paragraph (1)(D) to make an inquiry (as provided in subsection (d)) shall use the verification system to seek reverification of the identity and employment eligibility of all individuals with a limited period of work authorization employed by the person or entity during the 3 business days before the date on which the employee's work authorization expires.

"(B) Reverification.—Clause (ii) of paragraph (1)(C) shall apply to reverifications pursuant to this paragraph on the same basis as it applies to verifications pursuant to paragraph (1), except that employers shall—

"(i) use a form designated or established by the Secretary by regulation for purposes of this paragraph; and

"(ii) retain a paper or electronic version of the form and make it available for inspection by officers of the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of Justice, or the Department of Labor during the period beginning on the date the reverification commences and ending on the date that is the later of 3 years after the date of such reverification or 1 year after the date the individual's employment is terminated.

"(3) Previously hired individuals.—

"(A) On a mandatory basis for certain employees.—

"(i) In general.—Not later than July 1, 2027, an employer shall make an inquiry, as provided in subsection (d), using the verification system to seek verification of the identity and employment eligibility of any individual described in clause (ii) employed by the employer whose employment eligibility has not been verified under the E-Verify Program.

"(ii) Individuals described.—An individual described in this clause is any of the following:

"(I) An employee of any unit of a Federal, State, or local government.

"(II) An employee who requires a Federal security clearance working in a Federal, State, or local government building, a military base, a nuclear energy site, a weapons site, or an airport or other facility that requires workers to carry a Transportation Worker Identification Credential.

"(III) An employee assigned to perform work in the United States under a Federal contract, except that this subclause—

"(aa) is not applicable to individuals who have a clearance under Homeland Security Presidential Directive 12, are administrative or overhead personnel, or are working solely on contracts that provide commercial off-the-shelf goods or services as set forth by the Federal Acquisition Regulatory Council, unless they are subject to verification under subclause (II); and

"(bb) only applies to contracts over the simple acquisition threshold as defined in section 2.101 of title 48, Code of Federal Regulations.

"(B) On a mandatory basis for existing workforce.—

"(i) Employers with 10 or more employees.—Not later than July 1, 2028, an employer having 10 or more employees in the United States shall make an inquiry, as provided in subsection (d), using the verification system to seek verification of the identity and employment eligibility of each individual employed by the employer in the United States whose employment eligibility has not been verified under the E-Verify Program.

"(ii) All other employers.—Not later than January 1, 2029, each employer not described in clause (i) shall make an inquiry, as provided in subsection (d), using the verification system to seek verification of the identity and employment eligibility of each individual employed by the employer in the United States whose employment eligibility has not been verified under the E-Verify Program.

"(C) On a mandatory basis for multiple users of same Social Security account number.—In the case of an employer who is required by this subsection to use the verification system described in subsection (d), or has elected voluntarily to use such system, the employer shall make inquiries to the system in accordance with the following:

"(i) The Commissioner of Social Security shall notify annually employees, at the employee address listed on the Wage and Tax Statement, who submit a social security account number to which more than 1 employer reports income and for which there is a pattern of unusual multiple use. The notification letter shall identify the number of employers to which income is being reported as well as sufficient information notifying the employee of the process to contact the Social Security Administration Fraud Hotline if the employee believes the employee's identity may have been stolen. The notice shall not share information protected as private, in order to avoid any recipient of the notice from being in the position to further commit or begin committing identity theft.

"(ii) If the person to whom the social security account number was issued by the Social Security Administration has been identified and confirmed by the Commissioner, and indicates that the social security account number was used without their knowledge, the Secretary and the Commissioner shall lock the social security account number for employment eligibility verification purposes and shall notify the employers of the individuals who wrongfully submitted the social security account number that the employee may not be work eligible.

"(iii) Each employer receiving such notification of an incorrect social security account number under clause (ii) shall use the verification system described in subsection (d) to check the work eligibility status of the applicable employee within 10 business days of receipt of the notification.

"(D) On a voluntary basis before applicable deadline.—Subject to subparagraphs (A), (B), and (C), beginning on November 2, 2026, and before the applicable deadline under subparagraph (B), an employer may seek verification of the identity and employment eligibility of any individual employed by the employer using the E-Verify Program, the verification system described in subsection (d), or any successor system designated by the Secretary.

"(E) Verification.—Clause (ii) of paragraph (1)(C) shall apply to verifications pursuant to this paragraph on the same basis as it applies to verifications pursuant to paragraph (1), except that employers shall—

"(i) use a form designated or established by the Secretary by regulation for purposes of this paragraph; and

"(ii) retain a paper or electronic version of the form and make it available for inspection by officers of the Department of Homeland Security, the Department of Justice, or the Department of Labor during the period beginning on the date the verification commences and ending on the date that is the later of 3 years after the date of such verification or 1 year after the date the individual's employment is terminated.

"(4) Early compliance.—

"(A) Former E-Verify required users, including Federal contractors.—The Secretary is authorized to commence requiring employers required to participate in the E-Verify Program, including employers required to participate in such program by reason of Federal acquisition laws (and regulations promulgated under those laws, including the Federal Acquisition Regulation), to commence compliance with the requirements of this subsection (and any additional requirements of such Federal acquisition laws and regulation) in lieu of any requirement to participate in the E-Verify Program.

"(B) Former E-Verify voluntary users and others desiring early compliance.—The Secretary shall provide for the voluntary compliance with the requirements of this subsection by employers voluntarily electing to participate in the E-Verify Program, as well as by other employers seeking voluntary early compliance.

"(5) Copying of documentation permitted.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, the person or entity may copy a document presented by an individual pursuant to this subsection and may retain the copy, but only (except as otherwise permitted under law) for the purpose of complying with the requirements of this subsection.

"(6) Limitation on use of forms.—A form designated or established by the Secretary under this subsection and any information contained in or appended to such form, may not be used for purposes other than for enforcement of this chapter and sections 1001, 1028, 1546, and 1621 of title 18.

"(7) Good faith compliance.—

"(A) In general.—Except as provided in subparagraphs (B) and (C), a person or entity is considered to have complied with a requirement of subsection (b) notwithstanding a technical or procedural failure to meet such requirement if there was a good faith attempt to comply with the requirement.

"(B) Exception if failure to correct after notice.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply if—

"(i) the Secretary has explained to the person or entity the basis for the failure,

"(ii) the person or entity has been provided a period of not less than 30 calendar days (beginning after the date of the explanation) within which to correct the failure, and

"(iii) the person or entity has not corrected the failure voluntarily within such period.

"(C) Exception for pattern or practice violators.—Subparagraph (A) shall not apply to a person or entity that has or is engaging in a pattern or practice of violations of subsection (a)(1)(A) or (a)(2).

"(8) Single extension of initial deadline upon certification.—In a case in which the Secretary of Homeland Security has certified to Congress that the employment eligibility verification system required under subsection (d) will not be fully operational by April 1, 2027, the deadline established under paragraph (1)(D)(i)(I) shall be extended to July 1, 2027. No other deadline established under this section shall be extended under this paragraph.

"(c) No authorization of national identification cards.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to authorize, directly or indirectly, the issuance or use of national identification cards or the establishment of a national identification card.

"(d) Employment eligibility verification system.—

"(1) In general.—Patterned on the employment eligibility confirmation system established under section 404 of the Illegal Immigration Reform and Immigrant Responsibility Act of 1996 (8 U.S.C. 1324a note), the Secretary of Homeland Security shall establish and administer a verification system through which the Secretary (or a designee of the Secretary, which may be a nongovernmental entity)—

"(A) responds to inquiries made by persons at any time through a toll-free electronic media concerning an individual's identity and whether the individual is authorized to be employed; and

"(B) maintains records of the inquiries that were made, of verifications provided (or not provided), and of the codes provided to inquirers as evidence of their compliance with their obligations under this section.

"(2) Initial response.—The verification system shall provide confirmation or a tentative nonconfirmation of an individual's identity and employment eligibility within 3 working days of the initial inquiry. If providing confirmation or tentative nonconfirmation, the verification system shall provide an appropriate code indicating such confirmation or such nonconfirmation.

"(3) Secondary confirmation process in case of tentative nonconfirmation.—In cases of tentative nonconfirmation, the Secretary shall specify, in consultation with the Commissioner of Social Security, an available secondary verification process to confirm the validity of information provided and to provide a final confirmation or nonconfirmation not later than 10 working days after the date on which the notice of the tentative nonconfirmation is received by the employee. The Secretary, in consultation with the Commissioner, may extend this deadline once on a case-by-case basis for a period of 10 working days, and if the time is extended, shall document such extension within the verification system. The Secretary, in consultation with the Commissioner, shall notify the employee and employer of such extension. The Secretary, in consultation with the Commissioner, shall create a standard process of such extension and notification and shall make a description of such process available to the public. When final confirmation or nonconfirmation is provided, the verification system shall provide an appropriate code indicating such confirmation or nonconfirmation.

"(4) Design and operation of system.—The verification system shall be designed and operated—

"(A) to maximize its reliability and ease of use by persons and other entities consistent with insulating and protecting the privacy and security of the underlying information;

"(B) to respond accurately to all inquiries made by such persons and entities on whether individuals are authorized to be employed, to register all times when the system is unable to receive such inquiries, and to verify records maintained by the Secretary, other Federal departments, States, the Commonwealth of the Northern Mariana Islands, or an outlying possession of the United States, as determined necessary by the Secretary, including—

"(i) records maintained by the Social Security Administration;

"(ii) birth and death records maintained by vital statistics agencies of any State or other jurisdiction in the United States;

"(iii) passport and visa records (including photographs) maintained by the Department of State; and

"(iv) State driver's license or identity card information (including photographs) maintained by State department of motor vehicles;

"(C) with appropriate administrative, technical, and physical safeguards to prevent unauthorized disclosure of personal information;

"(D) to preserve the security of the information in the system by—

"(i) developing and using algorithms to detect potential identity theft, such as multiple uses of the same identifying information or documents;

"(ii) developing and using algorithms to detect misuse of the system by employers and employees;

"(iii) developing capabilities to detect anomalies in the use of the system that may indicate potential fraud or misuse of the system;

"(iv) auditing documents and information submitted by potential employees to employers, including authority to conduct interviews with employers and employees; and

"(v) allowing for auditing use of the system to detect fraud, misuse, or identity theft;

"(E) to have reasonable safeguards against the system's resulting in unlawful discriminatory practices based on national origin or citizenship status, including—

"(i) the selective or unauthorized use of the system to verify eligibility; or

"(ii) the exclusion of certain individuals from consideration for employment as a result of a perceived likelihood that additional verification will be required, beyond what is required for most job applicants;

"(F) to limit the subjects of verification to the following individuals:

"(i) Individuals hired, referred, or recruited, in accordance with paragraph (1) or (4) of subsection (b);

"(ii) Employees and prospective employees, in accordance with paragraph (1), (2), (3), or (4) of subsection (b); or

"(iii) Individuals seeking to confirm their own employment eligibility on a voluntary basis.

"(5) Responsibilities of Commissioner of Social Security.—As part of the verification system, the Commissioner of Social Security, in consultation with the Secretary of Homeland Security (and any designee of the Secretary selected to establish and administer the verification system), shall establish a reliable, secure method, which, within the time periods specified under paragraphs (2) and (3), compares the name and social security account number provided in an inquiry against such information maintained by the Commissioner in order to validate (or not validate) the information provided regarding an individual whose identity and employment eligibility must be confirmed, the correspondence of the name and number, and whether the individual has presented a social security account number that is not valid for employment. The Commissioner shall not disclose or release social security information (other than such confirmation or nonconfirmation) under the verification system except as provided for in this section or section 205(c)(2)(I) of the Social Security Act (42 U.S.C. 405(c)(2)(I)).

"(6) Responsibilities of Secretary of Homeland Security.—As part of the verification system, the Secretary of Homeland Security (in consultation with any designee of the Secretary selected to establish and administer the verification system), shall establish a reliable, secure method, which, within the time periods specified under paragraphs (2) and (3), compares the name and alien identification or authorization number (or any other information as determined relevant by the Secretary) which are provided in an inquiry against such information maintained or accessed by the Secretary in order to validate (or not validate) the information provided, the correspondence of the name and number, whether the alien is authorized to be employed in the United States, or to the extent that the Secretary determines to be feasible and appropriate, whether the records available to the Secretary verify the identity or status of a national of the United States.

"(7) Updating information.—The Commissioner of Social Security and the Secretary of Homeland Security shall update their information in a manner that promotes the maximum accuracy and shall provide a process for the prompt correction of erroneous information, including instances in which it is brought to their attention in the secondary verification process described in paragraph (3).

"(8) Critical infrastructure.—The Secretary may authorize or direct any person or entity responsible for granting access to, protecting, securing, operating, administering, or regulating part of the critical infrastructure (as defined in section 1016(e) of the Critical Infrastructure Protection Act of 2001 (42 U.S.C. 5195c(e))) to use the verification system to the extent the Secretary determines that such use will assist in the protection of the critical infrastructure.

"(9) Remedies.—If an individual alleges that the individual would not have been dismissed from a job or would have been hired for a job but for an error of the verification mechanism, the individual may seek compensation only through the mechanism of the Federal Tort Claims Act, and injunctive relief to correct such error. No class action may be brought under this paragraph.

"(e) Compliance.—

"(1) Complaints and investigations.—The Secretary shall establish procedures—

"(A) for individuals and entities to file written, signed complaints respecting potential violations of subsection (a) or (g)(1);

"(B) for the investigation of those complaints which, on their face, have a substantial probability of validity;

"(C) for the investigation of such other violations of subsection (a) or (g)(1) as the Secretary determines to be appropriate; and

"(2) Enjoining of pattern or practice violations.—Whenever the Secretary has reasonable cause to believe that a person or entity is engaged in a pattern or practice of employment, recruitment, or referral in violation of paragraph (1)(A) or (2) of subsection (a), the Secretary may bring a civil action in the appropriate district court of the United States requesting such relief, including a permanent or temporary injunction, restraining order, or other order against the person or entity, as the Secretary deems necessary.

"(g) Prohibition of indemnity bonds.—

"(1) Prohibition.—It is unlawful for a person or other entity, in the hiring, recruiting, or referring for employment of any individual, to require the individual to post a bond or security, to pay or agree to pay an amount, or otherwise to provide a financial guarantee or indemnity, against any potential liability arising under this section relating to such hiring, recruiting, or referring of the individual.

"(B) State enforcement of Federal law.—

Such State may collect any fines assessed under this section. An employer may not be subject to enforcement, including audit and investigation, by both a Federal agency and a State for the same violation under this section. (1) In general.—The Secretary may revoke certified agricultural worker or certified agricultural dependent status if, after providing notice to the alien and the opportunity to provide evidence to contest the proposed revocation, the Secretary determines that the alien no longer meets the eligibility requirements for such status under section 922(b).

(2) Invalidation of documentation.—Upon the Secretary's final determination to revoke an alien's certified agricultural worker or certified agricultural dependent status, any documentation issued by the Secretary to such alien under subsection (a) shall automatically be rendered invalid for any purpose except for departure from the United States.

(4) Notice.—Prior to denying an application to extend certified agricultural worker status, the Secretary shall provide the alien with—

(A) written notice that describes the basis for ineligibility or the deficiencies of the evidence submitted; and

(B) at least 90 days to contest ineligibility or submit additional evidence.

(f) Status for workers with pending applications.—

(1) In general.—Certified agricultural worker status of an alien who timely files an application to extend such status under subsection (e) or whose untimely application is accepted under subsection (e)(3) (and the status of the alien's dependents) shall be automatically extended or, if necessary, restored without interruption through the date on which the Secretary makes a final administrative decision regarding such application.

(2) Documentation of employment authorization.—As soon as practicable after receipt of an application to extend certified agricultural worker status under subsection (e), the Secretary shall issue a document to the alien acknowledging the receipt of such application. An employer of the worker may not refuse to accept such document as evidence of employment authorization under section 274A(b)(1)(A)(iii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1324a(b)(1)(A)(iii)), pending a final administrative decision on the application.

SEC. 924. GENERAL PROVISIONS.

(a) Background checks.—

(1) Submission of biometric and biographic data.—The Secretary may not grant or extend certified agricultural worker or certified agricultural dependent status under section 922 or 923, or grant adjustment of status to that of a lawful permanent resident under section 926, unless the alien submits biometric and biographic data, in accordance with procedures established by the Secretary. The Secretary shall provide an alternative procedure for aliens who cannot provide all required biometric or biographic data because of a physical impairment.

(2) Conduct of background checks.—The Secretary shall use biometric, biographic, and other data that the Secretary determines appropriate to conduct security and law enforcement background checks and to determine whether there is any criminal, national security, or other factor that would render the alien ineligible for status under this part. An alien may not be granted any such status under this part unless security and law enforcement background checks are completed to the satisfaction of the Secretary.

(b) Protection for children.—

(1) In general.—Except as provided in paragraph (2), for purposes of eligibility for certified agricultural dependent status or lawful permanent resident status under this part, a determination of whether an alien is a child shall be made using the age of the alien on the date on which the initial application for certified agricultural worker status is filed with the Secretary of Homeland Security.

(2) Limitation.—Paragraph (1) shall apply for no more than 10 years after the date on which the initial application for certified agricultural worker status is filed with the Secretary of Homeland Security.

(c) Burden of proof.—An alien applying for certified agricultural worker status under this part has the burden of proving by a preponderance of the evidence that the alien has worked the requisite number of hours or days required under sections 922, 923, or 926, as applicable.

(1) Evidence.—An alien may meet the burden of proof under this subsection by producing sufficient evidence to show the extent of such employment as a matter of just and reasonable inference. Such evidence may include—

(A) an annual record of certified agricultural worker employment as described in section 925(a), or other employment records from employers;

(B) employment records maintained by collective bargaining associations;

(C) tax records or other government records;

(D) sworn affidavits from individuals who have direct knowledge of the alien's work history; or

(E) any other documentation designated by the Secretary for such purpose.

(2) The Secretary shall establish special procedures to properly credit work in cases in which an alien was employed under an assumed name.

(d) Limitation on removal.—

(1) In general.—An alien who appears to be prima facie eligible for status under this part shall be given a reasonable opportunity to apply for such status. Such an alien may not be placed in removal proceedings or removed from the United States until a final administrative decision establishing ineligibility for such status is rendered.

(2) Aliens in removal proceedings.—Notwithstanding any other provision of the law, the Attorney General shall (upon motion by the Secretary with the consent of the alien, or motion by the alien) terminate removal proceedings, without prejudice, against an alien who appears to be prima facie eligible for status under this part, and provide such alien a reasonable opportunity to apply for such status.

(3) Effect of final order.—An alien present in the United States who has been ordered removed or has been permitted to depart voluntarily from the United States may, notwithstanding such order or permission to depart, apply for status under this part. Such alien shall not be required to file a separate motion to reopen, reconsider, or vacate the order of removal. If the Secretary approves the application, the Secretary shall notify the Attorney General of such approval, and the Attorney General shall cancel the order of removal. If the Secretary renders a final administrative decision to deny the application, the order of removal or permission to depart shall be effective and enforceable to the same extent as if the application had not been made, only after all available administrative and judicial remedies have been exhausted.

(4) Effect of departure.—Section 101(g) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101(g)) shall not apply to an alien who departs the United States—

(A) with advance permission to return to the United States granted by the Secretary under this part; or

(B) after having been granted certified agricultural worker status or lawful permanent resident status under this part.

(e) Penalties for fraud.—

(1) Criminal penalty.—Any person who—

(A) files an application for certified agricultural worker status or adjustment of status under this part and knowingly falsifies, conceals, or covers up a material fact or makes any false, fictitious, or fraudulent statements or representations, or makes or uses any false writing or document knowing the same to contain any false, fictitious, or fraudulent statement or entry; or

(B) creates or supplies a false writing or document for use in making such an application, shall be fined in accordance with title 18, United States Code, imprisoned not more than 5 years, or both.

(2) Inadmissibility.—An alien who is convicted under paragraph (1) shall be deemed inadmissible to the United States under section 212(a)(6)(C)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(6)(C)(i)).

(3) Deposit.—Fines collected under paragraph (1) shall be deposited into the Immigration Examinations Fee Account pursuant to section 286(m) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1356(m)).

SEC. 925. EMPLOYER OBLIGATIONS AND PROTECTIONS.

(a) Obligation to provide records.—

(1) Record of employment.—An employer of an alien in certified agricultural worker status shall provide such alien with a written record of employment each year during which the alien provides agricultural labor or services to such employer as a certified agricultural worker.

(2) Civil penalties.—

(A) In general.—If the Secretary determines, after notice and an opportunity for a hearing, that an employer of an alien with certified agricultural worker status has knowingly failed to provide the record of employment required under paragraph (1), or has provided a false statement of material fact in such a record, the employer shall be subject to a civil penalty in an amount not to exceed $500 per violation.

(B) Limitation.—The penalty under subparagraph (A) for failure to provide employment records shall not apply unless the alien has provided the employer with evidence of employment authorization described in section 922 or 923.

(C) Deposit of civil penalties.—Civil penalties collected under this paragraph shall be deposited into the Immigration Examinations Fee Account under section 286(m) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1356(m)).

(b) Employer protections.—

(1) Continuing employment.—An employer that continues to employ an alien knowing that the alien intends to apply for certified agricultural worker status under section 922 shall not violate section 274A(a)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1324a(a)(2)) by continuing to employ the alien for the duration of the application period under section 922(c), and with respect to an alien who applies for certified agricultural worker status, for the duration of the period during which the alien's application is pending final determination.

(2) Use of employment records.—Copies of employment records or other evidence of employment provided by an alien or by an alien's employer in support of an alien's application for certified agricultural worker or adjustment of status under this part may not be used in a civil or criminal prosecution or investigation of that employer under section 274A of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1324a) or the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 for the prior unlawful employment of that alien regardless of the outcome of such application.

(3) Additional protections.—Employers that provide unauthorized aliens with copies of employment records or other evidence of employment in support of an application for certified agricultural worker status or adjustment of status under this part shall not be subject to civil and criminal liability pursuant to such section 274A for employing such unauthorized aliens. Records or other evidence of employment provided by employers in response to a request for such records for the purpose of establishing eligibility for status under this part may not be used for any purpose other than establishing such eligibility.

(4) Limitation on protection.—The protections for employers under this section shall not apply if the employer provides employment records to the alien that are determined to be fraudulent.

SEC. 926. OPTIONAL EARNED RESIDENCE FOR LONG-TERM WORKERS.

(a) Requirements for adjustment of status.—

(1) Principal aliens.—The Secretary may adjust the status of an alien from that of a certified agricultural worker to that of a lawful permanent resident if the alien submits a completed application, including the required processing and penalty fees, and the Secretary determines that—

(A) except as provided in section 927(d), the alien performed agricultural labor or services for not less than 575 hours (or 100 work days) each year—

(i) for at least 10 years prior to the date of the enactment of this Act and for at least 4 years in certified agricultural worker status; or

(2) Dependent aliens.—

(A) In general.—The spouse and each child of an alien described in paragraph (1) whose status has been adjusted to that of a lawful permanent resident may be granted lawful permanent residence under this part if—

(i) the qualifying relationship to the principal alien existed on the date on which such alien was granted adjustment of status under this part; and

(ii) the spouse or child is not ineligible for certified agricultural dependent status under section 922(b).

(B) Protections for spouses and children.—The Secretary shall establish procedures to allow the spouse or child of a certified agricultural worker to self-petition for lawful permanent residence under this part in cases involving—

(i) the death of the certified agricultural worker, so long as the spouse or child submits a petition not later than 2 years after the date of the worker's death; or

(ii) the spouse or a child being battered or subjected to extreme cruelty by the certified agricultural worker.

(3) Documentation of work history.—An applicant for adjustment of status under this section shall not be required to resubmit evidence of work history that has been previously submitted to the Secretary in connection with an approved extension of certified agricultural worker status.

(c) Effect of pending application.—During the period beginning on the date on which an alien applies for adjustment of status under this part, and ending on the date on which the Secretary makes a final administrative decision regarding such application, the alien and any dependents included on the application—

(1) may apply for advance parole, which shall be granted upon demonstrating a legitimate need to travel outside the United States for a temporary purpose;

(2) may not be detained by the Secretary or removed from the United States unless the Secretary makes a prima facie determination that such alien is, or has become, ineligible for adjustment of status under subsection (a);

(3) may not be considered unlawfully present under section 212(a)(9)(B) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1182(a)(9)(B)); and

(4) may not be considered an unauthorized alien (as defined in section 274A(i)(8) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1324a(i)(8))).

(d) Evidence of application filing.—As soon as practicable after receiving an application for adjustment of status under this part, the Secretary shall provide the applicant with a document acknowledging the receipt of such application. Such document shall serve as interim proof of the alien's authorization to accept employment in the United States and shall be accepted by an employer as evidence of employment authorization under section 274A(b)(1)(A)(iii) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1324a(b)(1)(A)(iii)), pending a final administrative decision on the application.

(e) Withdrawal of application.—The Secretary shall, upon receipt of a request to withdraw an application for adjustment of status under this part, cease processing of the application, and close the case. Withdrawal of the application shall not prejudice any future application filed by the applicant for any immigration benefit under this subtitle or under the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1101 et seq.).

(f) Payment of taxes.—

(1) In general.—An alien may not be granted adjustment of status under this part unless the applicant has satisfied any applicable Federal tax liability.

(g) Adjudication and decision; review.—

(1) In general.—Subject to the requirements of section 924, the Secretary shall render a decision on an application for adjustment of status under this part not later than 180 days after the date on which the application is filed.

(4) Administrative review.—The Secretary shall establish a process by which an applicant may seek administrative review of a denial of an application for adjustment of status under this part.

(5) Judicial review.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, an alien may seek judicial review of a denial of an application for adjustment of status under this part in an appropriate United States district court.

SEC. 927. RESPONSIBILITIES OF THE SECRETARY.

(B) Clarification.—Nothing in this section shall be read to prohibit an employer from paying any fee or penalty that the Secretary may assess under this part on behalf of an alien and the alien's spouse or children.

(c) Disclosures and privacy.—

(1) Use limitations.—The Secretary may not disclose or use information provided in an application for certified agricultural worker status or adjustment of status under this part (including information provided during administrative or judicial review) for the purpose of immigration enforcement.

(2) Referrals prohibited.—The Secretary, based solely on information provided in an application for certified agricultural worker status or adjustment of status under this part (including information provided during administrative or judicial review), may not refer an applicant to U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement, U.S. Customs and Border Protection, or any designee of either such entity.

(3) Exceptions.—Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2), information provided in an application for certified agricultural worker status or adjustment of status under this part may be shared with Federal security and law enforcement agencies—

(A) for assistance in the consideration of an application under this part;

(iv) request reconsideration or appeal of agency decisions; and

(D) provide information to the Secretary of State and U.S. Customs and Border Protection necessary for the efficient and secure processing of H–2A visas and applications for admission.

(2) Objectives.—In developing the platform described in paragraph (1), the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of Labor, the Secretary of Agriculture, the Secretary of State, and the United States Digital Service, shall streamline and improve the H–2A process, including by—

(A) eliminating the need for employers to submit duplicate information and documentation to multiple agencies;

(B) eliminating redundant processes, where a single matter in a petition is adjudicated by more than 1 agency;

(C) reducing the occurrence of common petition errors, and otherwise improving and expediting the processing of H–2A petitions; and

(D) ensuring compliance with H–2A program requirements and the protection of the wages and working conditions of workers.

(b) Online job registry.—The Secretary of Labor shall maintain a national, publicly accessible online job registry and database of all job orders submitted by H–2A employers. The registry and database shall—

(1) be searchable using relevant criteria, including the types of jobs needed to be filled, the date(s) and location(s) of need, and the employer(s) named in the job order;

(2) provide an interface for workers in English, Spanish, and any other language that the Secretary of Labor determines to be appropriate; and

(3) provide for public access to job orders approved under section 218(i)(2) of the Immigration and Nationality Act.

SEC. 932. H–2A PROGRAM REQUIREMENTS.

Section 218 of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1188) is amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 218. Admission of temporary H–2A workers.

"(a) Definitions.—In this section:

"(1) Displace.—The term 'displace' means to lay off a similarly employed United States worker, other than for lawful job-related reasons, in the occupation and area of intended employment for the job for which H–2A workers are sought.

"(2) H–2A worker.—The term 'H–2A worker' means a nonimmigrant described in section 101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(a).

"(3) Job order.—The term 'job order' means the document containing the material terms and conditions of employment, including obligations and assurances required under this section or any other law.

"(4) Online job registry.—The term 'online job registry' means the online job registry of the Secretary of Labor required under section 931(b) of the POPULIST Act (or similar successor registry).

"(5) Similarly employed.—The term 'similarly employed', in the case of a worker, means a worker in the same occupational classification as the classification or classifications for which the H–2A worker is sought.

"(6) United States worker.—The term 'United States worker' means any worker who is—

"(A) a citizen or national of the United States;

"(B) an alien who is lawfully admitted for permanent residence, is admitted as a refugee under section 207, is granted asylum under section 208, or is an immigrant otherwise authorized to be employed in the United States;

"(C) an alien granted certified agricultural worker status under part I of title IX of the POPULIST Act; or

"(D) an individual who is not an unauthorized alien (as defined in section 274A(i)(8)) with respect to the employment in which the worker is engaging."

"(b) Labor certification conditions.—The Secretary of Homeland Security may not approve a petition to admit an H–2A worker unless the Secretary of Labor has certified that—

"(1) there are not sufficient United States workers who are able, willing and qualified, and who will be available at the time and place needed, to perform the agricultural labor or services described in the petition; and

"(2) the employment of the H–2A worker in such labor or services will not adversely affect the wages and working conditions of workers in the United States who are similarly employed.

"(c) H–2A petition requirements.—An employer filing a petition for an H–2A worker to perform agricultural labor or services shall attest to and demonstrate compliance, as and when appropriate, with all applicable requirements under this section, including the following:

"(1) Need for labor or services.—The employer has described the need for agricultural labor or services in a job order that includes a description of the nature and location of the work to be performed, the material terms and conditions of employment, the anticipated period or periods (expected start and end dates) for which the workers will be needed, and the number of job opportunities in which the employer seeks to employ the workers.

"(2) Nondisplacement of United States workers.—The employer has not and will not displace United States workers employed by the employer during the period of employment of the H–2A worker and during the 60-day period immediately preceding such period of employment in the job for which the employer seeks approval to employ the H–2A worker.

"(3) Strike or lockout.—Each place of employment described in the petition is not, at the time of filing the petition and until the petition is approved, subject to a strike or lockout in the course of a labor dispute.

"(4) Recruitment of United States workers.—The employer shall engage in the recruitment of United States workers as described in subsection (d) and shall hire such workers who are able, willing and qualified, and who will be available at the time and place needed, to perform the agricultural labor or services described in the petition. The employer may reject a United States worker only for lawful, job-related reasons.

"(5) Wages, benefits, and working conditions.—The employer shall offer and provide, at a minimum, the wages, benefits, and working conditions required by this section to the H–2A worker and all workers who are similarly employed. The employer—

"(A) shall offer such similarly employed workers not less than the same benefits, wages, and working conditions that the employer is offering or will provide to the H–2A worker; and

"(B) may not impose on such similarly employed workers any restrictions or obligations that will not be imposed on the H–2A worker.

"(6) Workers' compensation.—If the job opportunity is not covered by or is exempt from the State workers' compensation law, the employer shall provide, at no cost to the worker, insurance covering injury and disease arising out of, and in the course of, the worker's employment which will provide benefits at least equal to those provided under the State workers' compensation law.

"(7) Compliance with labor and employment laws.—The employer shall comply with all applicable Federal, State and local employment-related laws and regulations.

"(8) Compliance with worker protections.—The employer shall comply with section 934 of the POPULIST Act.

"(9) Compliance with foreign labor recruitment laws.—The employer shall comply with part III of title IX of the POPULIST Act.

"(d) Recruiting requirements.—

"(1) In general.—The employer may satisfy the recruitment requirement described in subsection (c)(4) by satisfying all of the following:

"(A) Job order.—As provided in subsection (i)(1), the employer shall complete a job order for posting on the electronic job registry maintained by the Secretary of Labor and for distribution by the appropriate State workforce agency. Such posting shall remain on the job registry as an active job order through the period described in paragraph (2)(B).

"(B) Former workers.—At least 45 days before each start date identified in the petition, the employer shall—

"(i) make reasonable efforts to contact any United States worker the employer employed in the previous year in the same occupation and area of intended employment for which an H–2A worker is sought (excluding workers who were terminated for cause or abandoned the worksite); and

"(ii) post such job opportunity in a conspicuous location or locations at the place of employment.

"(C) Positive recruitment.—During the period of recruitment, the employer shall complete any other positive recruitment steps within a multi-State region of traditional or expected labor supply where the Secretary of Labor finds that there are a significant number of qualified United States workers who, if recruited, would be willing to make themselves available for work at the time and place needed.

"(2) Period of recruitment.—

"(A) In general.—For purposes of this subsection, the period of recruitment begins on the date on which the job order is posted on the online job registry and ends on the date that H–2A workers depart for the employer's place of employment. For a petition involving more than 1 start date under subsection (i)(1)(C), the end of the period of recruitment shall be determined by the date of departure of the H–2A workers for the final start date identified in the petition.

"(B) Requirement to hire U.S. workers.—

"(i) In general.—Notwithstanding the limitations of subparagraph (A), the employer will provide employment to any qualified United States worker who applies to the employer for any job opportunity included in the petition until the later of—

"(I) the date that is 30 days after the date on which work begins; or

"(II) the date on which—

"(aa) if the employer is not a labor contractor, 33 percent of the work contract for the job opportunity has elapsed; or

"(bb) if the employer is a labor contractor, 50 percent of the work contract for the job opportunity has elapsed.

"(ii) Staggered entry.—For a petition involving more than 1 start date under subsection (i)(1)(C), each start date designated in the petition shall establish a separate job opportunity. An employer may not reject a United States worker because the worker is unable or unwilling to fill more than 1 job opportunity included in the petition.

"(iii) Exception.—Notwithstanding clause (i), the employer may offer a job opportunity to an H–2A worker instead of an alien granted certified agricultural worker status under part I of title IX of the POPULIST Act if the H–2A worker was employed by the employer in each of 3 years during the most recent 4-year period.

"(3) Recruitment report.—

"(A) In general.—The employer shall maintain a recruitment report through the applicable period described in paragraph (2)(B) and submit regular updates through the electronic platform on the results of recruitment. The employer shall retain the recruitment report, and all associated recruitment documentation, for a period of 3 years from the date of certification.

"(B) Burden of proof.—If the employer asserts that any eligible individual who has applied or been referred is not able, willing or qualified, the employer bears the burden of proof to establish that the individual is not able, willing or qualified because of a lawful, employment-related reason.

"(e) Wage requirements.—

"(1) In general.—Each employer under this section will offer the worker, during the period of authorized employment, wages that are at least the greatest of—

"(A) the agreed-upon collective bargaining wage;

"(B) the adverse effect wage rate;

"(C) the prevailing wage (hourly wage or piece rate); or

"(D) the Federal or State minimum wage.

"(2) Adverse effect wage rate determinations.—

"(A) In general.—Except as provided under subparagraph (B), the applicable adverse effect wage rate for each State and occupational classification for a calendar year shall be as follows:

"(i) The annual average hourly wage for the occupational classification in the State or region as reported by the Secretary of Agriculture based on a wage survey conducted by such Secretary.

"(ii) If a wage described in clause (i) is not reported, the national annual average hourly wage for the occupational classification as reported by the Secretary of Agriculture based on a wage survey conducted by such Secretary.

"(iii) If a wage described in clause (i) or (ii) is not reported, the Statewide annual average hourly wage for the standard occupational classification as reported by the Secretary of Labor based on a wage survey conducted by such Secretary.

"(iv) If a wage described in clause (i), (ii), or (iii) is not reported, the national average hourly wage for the occupational classification as reported by the Secretary of Labor based on a wage survey conducted by such Secretary.

"(B) Limitations on wage fluctuations.—

"(i) Wage freeze for calendar year 2027.—For calendar year 2027, the adverse effect wage rate for each State and occupational classification under this subsection shall be the adverse effect wage rate that was in effect for H–2A workers in the applicable State on June 1, 2026.

"(ii) Calendar years after 2027.—For each calendar year after 2027, the adverse effect wage rate for each State and occupational classification under this subsection shall be the wage calculated under subparagraph (A), except that such wage may not—

"(I) be more than 1.5 percent lower than the wage in effect for H–2A workers in the applicable State and occupational classification in the immediately preceding calendar year;

"(II) except as provided in clause (III), be more than 3.25 percent higher than the wage in effect for H–2A workers in the applicable State and occupational classification in the immediately preceding calendar year; and

"(III) if the application of clause (II) results in a wage that is lower than 110 percent of the applicable Federal or State minimum wage, be more than 4.25 percent higher than the wage in effect for H–2A workers in the applicable State and occupational classification in the immediately preceding calendar year.

"(3) Multiple occupations.—If the primary job duties for the job opportunity described in the petition do not fall within a single occupational classification, the applicable wage rates under subparagraphs (B) and (C) of paragraph (1) for the job opportunity shall be based on the highest such wage rates for all applicable occupational classifications.

"(4) Publication; wages in effect.—

"(A) Publication.—Prior to the start of each calendar year, the Secretary of Labor shall publish the applicable adverse effect wage rate (or successor wage rate, if any), and prevailing wage if available, for each State and occupational classification through notice in the Federal Register.

"(B) Job orders in effect.—Except as provided in subparagraph (C), publication by the Secretary of Labor of an updated adverse effect wage rate or prevailing wage for a State and occupational classification shall not affect the wage rate guaranteed in any approved job order for which recruitment efforts have commenced at the time of publication.

"(C) Exception for year-round jobs.—If the Secretary of Labor publishes an updated adverse effect wage rate or prevailing wage for a State and occupational classification concerning a petition described in subsection (j), and the updated wage is higher than the wage rate guaranteed in the work contract, the employer shall pay the updated wage not later than 14 days after publication of the updated wage in the Federal Register.

"(5) Workers paid on a piece rate or other incentive basis.—If an employer pays by the piece rate or other incentive method and requires 1 or more minimum productivity standards as a condition of job retention, such standards shall be specified in the job order and shall be no more than those normally required (at the time of the first petition for H–2A workers) by other employers for the activity in the area of intended employment, unless the Secretary of Labor approves a higher minimum standard resulting from material changes in production methods.

"(6) Guarantee of employment.—

"(A) Offer to worker.—The employer shall guarantee the worker employment for the hourly equivalent of at least 3/4ths of the work days of the total period of employment, beginning with the first work day after the arrival of the worker at the place of employment and ending on the date specified in the job offer. For purposes of this subparagraph, the hourly equivalent means the number of hours in the work days as stated in the job offer and shall exclude the worker's Sabbath and Federal holidays. If the employer affords the worker less employment than that required under this paragraph, the employer shall pay the worker the amount which the worker would have earned had the worker, in fact, worked for the guaranteed number of hours.

"(B) Failure to work.—Any hours which the worker fails to work, up to a maximum of the number of hours specified in the job offer for a work day, when the worker has been offered an opportunity to do so, and all hours of work actually performed (including voluntary work in excess of the number of hours specified in the job offer in a work day, on the worker's Sabbath, or on Federal holidays) may be counted by the employer in calculating whether the period of guaranteed employment has been met.

"(C) Abandonment of employment; termination for cause.—If the worker voluntarily abandons employment without good cause before the end of the contract period, or is terminated for cause, the worker is not entitled to the guarantee of employment described in subparagraph (A).

"(D) Contract impossibility.—If, before the expiration of the period of employment specified in the job offer, the services of the worker are no longer required for reasons beyond the control of the employer due to any form of natural disaster before the guarantee in subparagraph (A) is fulfilled, the employer may terminate the worker's employment. In the event of such termination, the employer shall fulfill the employment guarantee in subparagraph (A) for the work days that have elapsed from the first work day after the arrival of the worker to the termination of employment. The employer shall make efforts to transfer a worker to other comparable employment acceptable to the worker. If such transfer is not affected, the employer shall provide the return transportation required in subsection (g)(2).

"(f) Housing requirements.—Employers shall furnish housing in accordance with regulations established by the Secretary of Labor. Such regulations shall be consistent with the following:

"(1) In general.—The employer shall be permitted at the employer's option to provide housing meeting applicable Federal standards for temporary labor camps or to secure housing which meets the local standards for rental and/or public accommodations or other substantially similar class of habitation: Provided, That in the absence of applicable local standards, State standards for rental and/or public accommodations or other substantially similar class of habitation shall be met: Provided further, That in the absence of applicable local or State standards, Federal temporary labor camp standards shall apply.

"(2) Family housing.—Except as otherwise provided in subsection (j)(5), the employer shall provide family housing to workers with families who request it when it is the prevailing practice in the area and occupation of intended employment to provide family housing.

"(3) United States workers.—Notwithstanding paragraphs (1) and (2), an employer is not required to provide housing to United States workers who are reasonably able to return to their residence within the same day.

"(4) Timing of inspection.—

"(A) In general.—The Secretary of Labor or designee shall make a determination as to whether the housing furnished by an employer for a worker meets the requirements imposed by this subsection prior to the date on which the Secretary of Labor is required to make a certification with respect to a petition for the admission of such worker.

"(B) Timely inspection.—The Secretary of Labor shall provide a process for—

"(i) an employer to request inspection of housing up to 60 days before the date on which the employer will file a petition under this section; and

"(ii) annual inspection of housing for workers who are engaged in agricultural employment that is not of a seasonal or temporary nature.

"(g) Transportation requirements.—

"(1) Travel to place of employment.—A worker who completes 50 percent of the period of employment specified in the job order shall be reimbursed by the employer for the cost of the worker's transportation and subsistence from the place from which the worker came to work for the employer (or place of last employment, if the worker traveled from such place) to the place of employment.

"(2) Travel from place of employment.—For a worker who completes the period of employment specified in the job order or who is terminated without cause, the employer shall provide or pay for the worker's transportation and subsistence from the place of employment to the place from which the worker, disregarding intervening employment, came to work for the employer, or to the place of next employment, if the worker has contracted with a subsequent employer who has not agreed to provide or pay for the worker's transportation and subsistence to such subsequent employer's place of employment.

"(3) Limitation.—

"(A) Amount of reimbursement.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), the amount of reimbursement provided under paragraph (1) or (2) to a worker need not exceed the lesser of—

"(i) the actual cost to the worker of the transportation and subsistence involved; or

"(ii) the most economical and reasonable common carrier transportation charges and subsistence costs for the distance involved.

"(B) Distance traveled.—For travel to or from the worker's home country, if the travel distance between the worker's home and the relevant consulate is 50 miles or less, reimbursement for transportation and subsistence may be based on transportation to or from the consulate.

"(h) Heat illness prevention plan.—

"(1) In general.—The employer shall maintain a reasonable plan that describes the employer's procedures for the prevention of heat illness, including appropriate training, access to water and shade, the provision of breaks, and the protocols for emergency response. Such plan shall—

"(A) be in writing in English and, to the extent necessary, any language common to a significant portion of the workers if they are not fluent in English; and

"(B) be posted at a conspicuous location at the worksite and provided to employees prior to the commencement of labor or services.

"(2) Clarification.—Nothing in this subsection is intended to limit any other Federal or State authority to promulgate, enforce, or maintain health and safety standards related to heat-related illness.

"(i) H–2A petition procedures.—

"(1) Submission of petition and job order.—

"(A) In general.—The employer shall submit information required for the adjudication of the H–2A petition, including a job order, through the electronic platform no more than 75 calendar days and no fewer than 60 calendar days before the employer's first date of need specified in the petition.

"(B) Filing by agricultural associations.—An association of agricultural producers that use agricultural services may file an H–2A petition under subparagraph (A). If an association is a joint or sole employer of workers who perform agricultural labor or services, H–2A workers may be used for the approved job opportunities of any of the association's producer members and such workers may be transferred among its producer members to perform the agricultural labor or services for which the petition was approved.

"(C) Petitions involving staggered entry.—

"(i) In general.—Except as provided in clause (ii), an employer may file a petition involving employment in the same occupational classification and same area of intended employment with multiple start dates if—

"(I) the petition involves temporary or seasonal employment and no more than 10 start dates;

"(II) the multiple start dates share a common end date;

"(III) no more than 120 days separate the first start date and the final start date listed in the petition; and

"(IV) the need for multiple start dates arises from variations in labor needs associated with the job opportunity identified in the petition.

"(ii) Labor contractors.—A labor contractor may not file a petition described in clause (i) unless the labor contractor—

"(I) is filing as a joint employer with its contractees, or is operating in a State in which joint employment and liability between the labor contractor and its contractees is otherwise established; or

"(II) has posted and is maintaining a premium surety bond as described in subsection (m)(1).

"(2) Labor certification.—

"(A) Review of job order.—

"(i) In general.—The Secretary of Labor, in consultation with the relevant State workforce agency, shall review the job order for compliance with this section and notify the employer through the electronic platform of any deficiencies not later than 7 business days from the date the employer submits the necessary information required under paragraph (1)(A). The employer shall be provided 5 business days to respond to any such notice of deficiency.

"(ii) Standard.—The job order must include all material terms and conditions of employment, including the requirements of this section, and must be otherwise consistent with the minimum standards provided under Federal, State or local law. In considering the question of whether a specific qualification is appropriate in a job order, the Secretary of Labor shall apply the normal and accepted qualification required by non-H–2A employers in the same or comparable occupations and crops.

"(iii) Emergency procedures.—The Secretary of Labor shall establish emergency procedures for the curing of deficiencies that cannot be resolved during the period described in clause (i).

"(B) Approval of job order.—

"(i) In general.—Upon approval of the job order, the Secretary of Labor shall immediately place for public examination a copy of the job order on the online job registry, and the State workforce agency serving the area of intended employment shall commence the recruitment of United States workers.

"(ii) Referral of United States workers.—The Secretary of Labor and State workforce agency shall keep the job order active until the end of the period described in subsection (d)(2) and shall refer to the employer each United States worker who applies for the job opportunity.

"(C) Review of information for deficiencies.—Within 7 business days of the approval of the job order, the Secretary of Labor shall review the information necessary to make a labor certification and notify the employer through the electronic platform if such information does not meet the standards for approval. Such notification shall include a description of any deficiency, and the employer shall be provided 5 business days to cure such deficiency.

"(D) Certification and authorization of workers.—Not later than 30 days before the date that labor or services are first required to be performed, the Secretary of Labor shall issue the requested labor certification if the Secretary determines that the requirements set forth in this section have been met.

"(E) Expedited administrative appeals of certain determinations.—The Secretary of Labor shall by regulation establish a procedure for an employer to request the expedited review of a denial of a labor certification under this section, or the revocation of such a certification. Such procedure shall require the Secretary to expeditiously, but no later than 72 hours after expedited review is requested, issue a de novo determination on a labor certification that was denied in whole or in part because of the availability of able, willing and qualified workers if the employer demonstrates, consistent with subsection (d)(3)(B), that such workers are not actually available at the time or place such labor or services are required.

"(3) Petition decision.—

"(A) In general.—Not later than 7 business days after the Secretary of Labor issues the certification, the Secretary of Homeland Security shall issue a decision on the petition and shall transmit a notice of action to the petitioner via the electronic platform.

"(B) Approval.—Upon approval of a petition under this section, the Secretary of Homeland Security shall ensure that such approval is noted in the electronic platform and is available to the Secretary of State and U.S. Customs and Border Protection, as necessary, to facilitate visa issuance and admission.

"(C) Partial approval.—A petition for multiple named beneficiaries may be partially approved with respect to eligible beneficiaries notwithstanding the ineligibility, or potential ineligibility, of 1 or more other beneficiaries.

"(D) Post-certification amendments.—The Secretary of Labor shall provide a process for amending a request for labor certification in conjunction with an H–2A petition, subsequent to certification by the Secretary of Labor, in cases in which the requested amendment does not materially change the petition (including the job order).

"(4) Roles of agricultural associations.—

"(A) Member's violation does not necessarily disqualify association or other members.—If an individual producer member of a joint employer association is determined to have committed an act that results in the denial of a petition with respect to the member, the denial shall apply only to that member of the association unless the Secretary of Labor determines that the association or other member participated in, had knowledge of, or reason to know of, the violation.

"(B) Association's violation does not necessarily disqualify members.—

"(i) If an association representing agricultural producers as a joint employer is determined to have committed an act that results in the denial of a petition with respect to the association, the denial shall apply only to the association and does not apply to any individual producer member of the association unless the Secretary of Labor determines that the member participated in, had knowledge of, or reason to know of, the violation.

"(ii) If an association of agricultural producers certified as a sole employer is determined to have committed an act that results in the denial of a petition with respect to the association, no individual producer member of such association may be the beneficiary of the services of H–2A workers in the commodity and occupation in which such aliens were employed by the association which was denied during the period such denial is in force, unless such producer member employs such aliens in the commodity and occupation in question directly or through an association which is a joint employer of such workers with the producer member.

"(5) Special procedures.—The Secretary of Labor, in consultation with the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Homeland Security, may by regulation establish alternate procedures that reasonably modify program requirements under this section, when the Secretary determines that such modifications are required due to the unique nature of the work involved.

"(6) Construction occupations.—An employer may not file a petition under this section on behalf of a worker if the majority of the worker's duties will fall within a construction or extraction occupational classification.

"(j) Non-temporary or non-seasonal needs.—

"(1) In general.—Notwithstanding the requirement in section 101(a)(15)(H)(ii)(a) that the agricultural labor or services performed by an H–2A worker be of a temporary or seasonal nature, the Secretary of Homeland Security may, consistent with the provisions of this subsection, approve a petition for an H–2A worker to perform agricultural services or labor that is not of a temporary or seasonal nature.

"(2) Numerical limitations.—

"(A) First 3 fiscal years.—The total number of aliens who may be issued visas or otherwise provided H–2A nonimmigrant status under paragraph (1) for the first fiscal year during which the first visa is issued under such paragraph and for each of the following 2 fiscal years may not exceed 20,000.

"(B) Fiscal years 4 through 10.—

"(i) In general.—The total number of aliens who may be issued visas or otherwise provided H–2A nonimmigrant status under paragraph (1) for the first fiscal year following the fiscal years referred to in subparagraph (A) and for each of the following 6 fiscal years may not exceed a numerical limitation jointly imposed by the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Labor in accordance with clause (ii).

"(ii) Annual adjustments.—For each fiscal year referred to in clause (i), the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Labor, in consultation with the Secretary of Homeland Security, shall establish a numerical limitation for purposes of clause (i). Such numerical limitation may not be lower than 20,000 and may not vary by more than 12.5 percent compared to the numerical limitation applicable to the immediately preceding fiscal year. In establishing such numerical limitation, the Secretaries shall consider appropriate factors, including—

"(I) a demonstrated shortage of agricultural workers;

"(II) the level of unemployment and underemployment of agricultural workers during the preceding fiscal year;

"(III) the number of H–2A workers sought by employers during the preceding fiscal year to engage in agricultural labor or services not of a temporary or seasonal nature;

"(IV) the number of such H–2A workers issued a visa in the most recent fiscal year who remain in the United States in compliance with the terms of such visa;

"(V) the estimated number of United States workers, including workers who obtained certified agricultural worker status under part I of title IX of the POPULIST Act, who worked during the preceding fiscal year in agricultural labor or services not of a temporary or seasonal nature;

"(VI) the number of such United States workers who accepted jobs offered by employers using the online job registry during the preceding fiscal year;

"(VII) any growth or contraction of the United States agricultural industry that has increased or decreased the demand for agricultural workers; and

"(VIII) any changes in the real wages paid to agricultural workers in the United States as an indication of a shortage or surplus of agricultural labor.

"(C) Subsequent fiscal years.—For each fiscal year following the fiscal years referred to in subparagraph (B), the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Labor shall jointly determine, in consultation with the Secretary of Homeland Security, and after considering appropriate factors, including those factors listed in subclauses (I) through (VIII) of subparagraph (B)(ii), whether to establish a numerical limitation for that fiscal year. If a numerical limitation is so established—

"(i) such numerical limitation may not be lower than the highest number of aliens admitted under this subsection in any of the 3 fiscal years immediately preceding the fiscal year for which the numerical limitation is to be established; and

"(ii) the total number of aliens who may be issued visas or otherwise provided H–2A nonimmigrant status under paragraph (1) for that fiscal year may not exceed such numerical limitation.

"(D) Emergency procedures.—The Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Labor, in consultation with the Secretary of Homeland Security, shall jointly establish by regulation procedures for immediately adjusting a numerical limitation imposed under subparagraph (B) or (C) to account for significant labor shortages.

"(3) Allocation of visas.—

"(A) Biannual allocation.—The annual allocation of visas described in paragraph (2) shall be evenly allocated between 2 halves of the fiscal year unless the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of Agriculture and the Secretary of Labor, determines that an alternative allocation would better accommodate demand for visas. Any unused visas in the first half of the fiscal year shall be added to the allocation for the subsequent half of the same fiscal year.

"(B) Reserve for dairy labor or services.—

"(i) In general.—Of the visa numbers made available in each half of the fiscal year pursuant to subparagraph (A), 50 percent of such visas shall be reserved for employers filing petitions seeking H–2A workers to engage in agricultural labor or services in the dairy industry.

"(ii) Exception.—If, after 4 months have elapsed in one half of the fiscal year, the Secretary of Homeland Security determines that application of clause (i) will result in visas going unused during that half of the fiscal year, clause (i) shall not apply to visas under this paragraph during the remainder of such half of the fiscal year.

"(C) Limited allocation for certain special procedures industries.—

"(i) In general.—Notwithstanding the numerical limitations under paragraph (2), up to 500 aliens may be issued visas or otherwise provided H–2A nonimmigrant status under paragraph (1) in a fiscal year for range sheep or goat herding.

"(ii) Limitation.—The total number of aliens in the United States in valid H–2A status under clause (i) at any one time may not exceed 500.

"(iii) Clarification.—Any visas issued under this subparagraph may not be considered for purposes of the annual adjustments under subparagraphs (B) and (C) of paragraph (2).

"(4) Annual round trip home.—

"(A) In general.—In addition to the other requirements of this section, an employer shall provide H–2A workers employed under this subsection, at no cost to such workers, with annual round trip travel, including transportation and subsistence during travel, to their homes in their communities of origin. The employer must provide such travel within 14 months of the initiation of the worker's employment, and no more than 14 months can elapse between each required period of travel.

"(B) Limitation.—The cost of travel under subparagraph (A) need not exceed the lesser of—

"(i) the actual cost to the worker of the transportation and subsistence involved; or

"(ii) the most economical and reasonable common carrier transportation charges and subsistence costs for the distance involved.

"(5) Family housing.—An employer seeking to employ an H–2A worker pursuant to this subsection shall offer family housing to workers with families if such workers are engaged in agricultural employment that is not of a seasonal or temporary nature. The worker may reject such an offer. The employer may not charge the worker for the worker's housing, except that if the worker accepts family housing, a prorated rent based on the fair market value for such housing may be charged for the worker's family members.

"(6) Workplace safety plan for dairy employees.—

"(A) In general.—If an employer is seeking to employ a worker in agricultural labor or services in the dairy industry pursuant to this subsection, the employer must report incidents consistent with the requirements under section 1904.39 of title 29, Code of Federal Regulations, and maintain an effective worksite safety and compliance plan to prevent workplace accidents and otherwise ensure safety. Such plan shall—

"(i) be in writing in English and, to the extent necessary, any language common to a significant portion of the workers if they are not fluent in English; and

"(ii) be posted at a conspicuous location at the worksite and provided to employees prior to the commencement of labor or services.

"(B) Contents of plan.—The Secretary of Labor, in consultation with the Secretary of Agriculture, shall establish by regulation the minimum requirements for the plan described in subparagraph (A). Such plan shall include measures to—

"(i) require workers (other than the employer's family members) whose positions require contact with animals to complete animal care training, including animal handling and job-specific animal care;

"(ii) protect against sexual harassment and violence, resolve complaints involving harassment or violence, and protect against retaliation against workers reporting harassment or violence; and

"(iii) contain other provisions necessary for ensuring workplace safety, as determined by the Secretary of Labor, in consultation with the Secretary of Agriculture.

"(C) Clarification.—Nothing in this paragraph is intended to apply to persons or entities that are not seeking to employ workers under this section. Nothing in this paragraph is intended to limit any other Federal or State authority to promulgate, enforce, or maintain health and safety standards related to the dairy industry.

"(k) Eligibility for H–2A status and admission to the United States.—

"(1) Disqualification.—An alien shall be ineligible for admission to the United States as an H–2A worker pursuant to a petition filed under this section if the alien was admitted to the United States as an H–2A worker within the past 5 years of the date the petition was filed and—

"(A) violated a material provision of this section, including the requirement to promptly depart the United States when the alien's authorized period of admission has expired, unless the alien has good cause for such failure to depart; or

"(B) otherwise violated a term or condition of admission into the United States as an H–2A worker.

The maximum continuous period of authorized stay for an H–2A worker is 36 months.

"(B) Requirement to remain outside the United States.—In the case of an H–2A worker whose maximum continuous period of authorized stay (including any extensions) has expired, the alien may not again be eligible for such stay until the alien remains outside the United States for a cumulative period of at least 45 days.

"(C) Exceptions.—The Secretary of Homeland Security shall deduct absences from the United States that take place during an H–2A worker's period of authorized stay from the period that the alien is required to remain outside the United States under subparagraph (B), if the alien or the alien's employer requests such a deduction, and provides clear and convincing proof that the alien qualifies for such a deduction. Such proof shall consist of evidence including, but not limited to, arrival and departure records, copies of tax returns, and records of employment abroad.

"(D) Admission.—In addition to the maximum continuous period of authorized stay, an H–2A worker's authorized period of admission shall include an additional period of 10 days prior to the beginning of the period of employment for the purpose of traveling to the place of employment and 45 days at the end of the period of employment for the purpose of traveling home or seeking an extension of status based on a subsequent offer of employment if the worker has not reached the maximum continuous period of authorized stay under subparagraph (A) (subject to the exceptions in subparagraph (C)).

"(4) Continuing H–2A workers.—

"(A) Successive employment.—An H–2A worker is authorized to start new or concurrent employment upon the filing of a nonfrivolous H–2A petition, or as of the requested start date, whichever is later if—

"(B) Protection due to immigrant visa backlogs.—Notwithstanding the limitations on the period of authorized stay described in paragraph (3), any H–2A worker who—

"(i) is the beneficiary of an approved petition, filed under section 204(a)(1)(E) or (F) for preference status under section 203(b)(3)(A)(iii); and

"(ii) is eligible to be granted such status but for the annual limitations on visas under section 203(b)(3)(A), may apply for, and the Secretary of Homeland Security may grant, an extension of such nonimmigrant status until the Secretary of Homeland Security issues a final administrative decision on the alien's application for adjustment of status or the Secretary of State issues a final decision on the alien's application for an immigrant visa.

"(5) Abandonment of employment.—

"(A) In general.—Except as provided in subparagraph (B), an H–2A worker who abandons the employment which was the basis for the worker's authorized stay, without good cause, shall be considered to have failed to maintain H–2A status and shall depart the United States or be subject to removal under section 237(a)(1)(C)(i).

"(B) Grace period to secure new employment.—An H–2A worker shall not be considered to have failed to maintain H–2A status solely on the basis of a cessation of the employment on which the alien's classification was based for a period of 45 consecutive days, or until the end of the authorized validity period, whichever is shorter, once during each authorized validity period.

"(l) Required disclosures.—

"(1) Disclosure of work contract.—Not later than the time the H–2A worker applies for a visa, the employer shall provide the worker with a copy of the work contract that includes the disclosures and rights under this section (or in the absence of such a contract, a copy of the job order and proof of the certification described in subparagraphs (B) and (D) of subsection (i)(2)). An H–2A worker moving from one H–2A employer to a subsequent H–2A employer shall be provided with a copy of the new employment contract no later than the time an offer of employment is made by the subsequent employer.

"(m) Labor contractors; foreign labor recruiters; prohibition on fees.—

"(1) Labor contractors.—

"(A) Surety bond.—An employer that is a labor contractor who seeks to employ H–2A workers shall maintain a surety bond in an amount required under subparagraph (B). Such bond shall be payable to the Secretary of Labor or pursuant to the resolution of a civil or criminal proceeding, for the payment of wages and benefits, including any assessment of interest, owed to an H–2A worker or a similarly employed United States worker, or a United States worker who has been rejected or displaced in violation of this section.

"(B) Amount of bond.—The Secretary of Labor shall annually publish in the Federal Register a schedule of required bond amounts that are determined by such Secretary to be sufficient for labor contractors to discharge financial obligations under this section based on the number of workers the labor contractor seeks to employ and the wages such workers are required to be paid.

"(C) Premium bond.—A labor contractor seeking to file a petition involving more than 1 start date under subsection (i)(1)(C) shall maintain a surety bond that is at least 15 percent higher than the applicable bond amount determined by the Secretary under subparagraph (B).

"(D) Use of funds.—Any sums paid to the Secretary under subparagraph (A) that are not paid to a worker because of the inability to do so within a period of 5 years following the date of a violation giving rise to the obligation to pay shall remain available to the Secretary without further appropriation until expended to support the enforcement of this section.

"(2) Prohibition against employees paying fees.—Neither the employer nor its agents shall seek or receive payment of any kind from any worker for any activity related to the H–2A process, including payment of the employer's attorneys' fees, application fees, or recruitment costs. An employer and its agents may receive reimbursement for costs that are the responsibility and primarily for the benefit of the worker, such as government-required passport fees.

"(3) Third-party contracts.—The contract between an employer and any labor contractor or any foreign labor recruiter (or any agent of such labor contractor or foreign labor recruiter) whom the employer engages shall include a term providing for the termination of such contract for cause if the contractor or recruiter, either directly or indirectly, in the placement or recruitment of H–2A workers seeks or receives payments or other compensation from prospective employees. Upon learning that a labor contractor or foreign labor recruiter has sought or collected such payments, the employer shall so terminate any contracts with such contractor or recruiter.

"(n) Enforcement authority.—

"(1) In general.—The Secretary of Labor is authorized to take such actions against employers, including imposing appropriate penalties and seeking monetary and injunctive relief and specific performance of contractual obligations, as may be necessary to ensure compliance with the requirements of this section and with the applicable terms and conditions of employment.

"(C) Complaint not exclusive.—A complaint filed under this paragraph is not an exclusive remedy and the filing of such a complaint does not waive any rights or remedies of the aggrieved party under this section or other laws.

"(D) Decision and remedies.—If the Secretary of Labor finds, after notice and opportunity for a hearing, that the employer failed to comply with the requirements of this section or the terms and conditions of employment, the Secretary of Labor may require payment of unpaid wages, unpaid benefits, fees assessed in violation of this section, damages, and civil money penalties. The Secretary is also authorized to impose other administrative remedies, including disqualification of the employer from utilizing the H–2A program for a period of up to 5 years in the event of willful or multiple material violations. The Secretary is authorized to permanently disqualify an employer from utilizing the H–2A program upon a subsequent finding involving willful or multiple material violations.

"(E) Disposition of penalties.—Civil penalties collected under this paragraph shall be deposited into the H–2A Labor Certification Fee Account established under section 933(c) of the POPULIST Act.

"(3) Statutory construction.—Nothing in this subsection may be construed as limiting the authority of the Secretary of Labor to conduct an investigation—

"(B) in the absence of a complaint.

"(4) Retaliation prohibited.—It is a violation of this subsection for any person to intimidate, threaten, restrain, coerce, blacklist, discharge, or in any other manner discriminate against, or to cause any person to intimidate, threaten, restrain, coerce, blacklist, or in any manner discriminate against, an employee, including a former employee or an applicant for employment, because the employee—

"(o) Fees; authorization of appropriations.—

"(1) Fees.—

Such fee shall be set at a level that is sufficient to recover the reasonable costs of processing the petition, including the reasonable costs of providing labor certification by the Secretary of Labor.

"(B) Distribution.—Fees collected under subparagraph (A) shall be deposited as offsetting receipts into the immigration examinations fee account in section 286(m), except that the portion of fees assessed for the Secretary of Labor shall be deposited into the H–2A Labor Certification Fee Account established pursuant to section 933(c) of the POPULIST Act.

(a) Establishment of pilot program.—

(1) In general.—Not later than 18 months after the date of the enactment of this Act, the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Agriculture, shall establish through regulation a 6-year pilot program to facilitate the free movement and employment of temporary or seasonal H–2A workers to perform agricultural labor or services for agricultural employers registered with the Secretary of Agriculture. Notwithstanding the requirements of section 218 of the Immigration and Nationality Act, such regulation shall establish the requirements for the pilot program, consistent with subsection (b). For purposes of this section, such a worker shall be referred to as a portable H–2A worker, and status as such a worker shall be referred to as portable H–2A status. The 6-year period shall begin on the date on which the first portable H–2A visa is issued or portable H–2A status is conferred under the program.

(2) Online platform.—The Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Agriculture, shall maintain an online electronic platform to connect portable H–2A workers with registered agricultural employers seeking workers to perform temporary or seasonal agricultural labor or services. Employers shall post on the platform available job opportunities, including a description of the nature and location of the work to be performed, the anticipated period or periods of need, and the terms and conditions of employment. Such platform shall allow portable H–2A workers to search for available job opportunities using relevant criteria, including the types of jobs needed to be filled and the dates and locations of need.

(3) Limitation.—Notwithstanding the issuance of the regulation described in paragraph (1), the Secretary of State may not issue a portable H–2A visa and the Secretary of Homeland Security may not confer portable H–2A status on any alien until the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Agriculture, has determined that a sufficient number of employers have been designated as registered agricultural employers under subsection (b)(1) and that such employers have sufficient job opportunities to employ a reasonable number of portable H–2A workers to initiate the pilot program.

(b) Pilot program elements.—The pilot program in subsection (a) shall contain the following elements:

(1) Registered agricultural employers.—

(A) Designation.—Agricultural employers shall be provided the ability to seek designation as registered agricultural employers. Reasonable fees may be assessed commensurate with the cost of processing applications for designation. A designation shall be valid for a period of up to 3 years unless revoked for failure to comply with program requirements. Registered employers that comply with program requirements may apply to renew such designation for additional periods of up to 3 years for the duration of the pilot program.

(B) Limitations.—Registered agricultural employers may employ aliens with portable H–2A status without filing a petition. Such employers shall pay such aliens at least the wage required under section 218(e) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1188(e)).

(C) Workers' compensation.—If a job opportunity is not covered by or is exempt from the State workers' compensation law, a registered agricultural employer shall provide, at no cost to the worker, insurance covering injury and disease arising out of, and in the course of, the worker's employment, which will provide benefits at least equal to those provided under the State workers' compensation law.

(2) Designated workers.—

(A) In general.—Individuals who have been previously admitted to the United States in H–2A status, and maintained such status during the period of admission, shall be provided the opportunity to apply for portable H–2A status. Portable H–2A workers shall be subject to the provisions on visa validity and periods of authorized stay and admission for H–2A workers described in paragraphs (2) and (3) of section 218(k) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1188(k)(2) and (3)).

(ii) Numerical limitations.—The total number of aliens who may hold valid portable H–2A status at any one time may not exceed 10,000. Notwithstanding such limitation, the Secretary of Homeland Security may further limit the number of aliens with valid portable H–2A status if the Secretary determines that there are an insufficient number of registered agricultural employers or job opportunities to support the employment of all such portable H–2A workers.

(C) Scope of employment.—During the period of admission, a portable H–2A worker may perform temporary or seasonal agricultural labor or services for any employer in the United States that is designated as a registered agricultural employer pursuant to paragraph (1). An employment arrangement under this section may be terminated by either the portable H–2A worker or the registered agricultural employer at any time.

(D) Transfer to new employment.—At the cessation of employment with a registered agricultural employer, a portable H–2A worker shall have 60 days to secure new employment with a registered agricultural employer.

(E) Maintenance of status.—A portable H–2A worker who does not secure new employment with a registered agricultural employer within 60 days shall be considered to have failed to maintain such status and shall depart the United States or be subject to removal under section 237(a)(1)(C)(i) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1227(a)(1)(C)(i)).

(3) Enforcement.—The Secretary of Labor shall be responsible for conducting investigations and random audits of employers to ensure compliance with the employment-related requirements of this section, consistent with section 218(n) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (8 U.S.C. 1188(n)). The Secretary of Labor shall have the authority to collect reasonable civil penalties for violations, which shall be utilized by the Secretary for the administration and enforcement of the provisions of this section.

(4) Eligibility for services.—Section 305 of Public Law 99–603 (100 Stat. 3434) is amended by striking "other employment rights as provided in the worker's specific contract under which the nonimmigrant was admitted" and inserting "employment-related rights".

(c) Report.—Not later than 30 months after the date on which the first portable H–2A visa is issued or portable H–2A status is conferred, the Secretary of Homeland Security, in consultation with the Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Agriculture, shall prepare and submit to the Committees on the Judiciary of the House of Representatives and the Senate, a report that provides—

(1) the number of employers designated as registered agricultural employers, broken down by geographic region, farm size, and the number of job opportunities offered by such employers;

(2) the number of employers whose designation as a registered agricultural employer was revoked;

(3) the number of individuals granted portable H–2A status in each fiscal year, along with the number of such individuals who maintained portable H–2A status during all or a portion of the 6-year period of the pilot program;

(4) an assessment of the impact of the pilot program on the wages and working conditions of United States farm workers;

(5) the results of a survey of individuals granted portable H–2A status, detailing their experiences with and feedback on the pilot program;

(6) the results of a survey of registered agricultural employers, detailing their experiences with and feedback on the pilot program;

(7) an assessment as to whether the program should be continued and if so, any recommendations for improving the program; and

(8) findings and recommendations regarding effective recruitment mechanisms, including use of new technology to match workers with employers and ensure compliance with applicable labor and employment laws and regulations.

(b) Effect of rules.—The interim final rules issued under subsection (a)—

(1) shall take effect upon publication in the Federal Register, except that the Secretary of Homeland Security and the Secretary of Labor may delay the effective date of a requirement only to the extent necessary to allow orderly implementation;

(2) shall have the force and effect of law; and

(3) shall remain in effect until superseded by final rules issued under subsection (e).

(c) Rulemaking requirements.—The interim final rules under subsection (a) may be issued without regard to—

(1) section 553 of title 5, United States Code; and

SEC. 1001. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The Constitution of the United States establishes the Federal Government by "We the People" and it exists to serve the people of the United States. However, the average person can reasonably conclude the Federal Government, and its physical core, Washington, D.C., is stacked against them.

(2) Washington is stacked against ordinary people when public institutions, including Congress itself, are captured by concentrated private interests and the gears of legislative machinery function to serve corporate power.

(3) Washington is stacked against ordinary people when gerrymandering predetermines the outcome of the vast majority of congressional contests and denies people meaningful say in selecting their representatives.

(4) Washington is stacked against ordinary people as the size of congressional districts and the cost of campaigns continue to grow, amplifying the voices of the small percent of mega-donors who deliver the lion's share of political contributions.

(5) Washington is stacked against ordinary people when Congress squanders time on wedge issues instead of core problems, and resists enacting popular, middle ground solutions to such wedge issues, where solutions would kill the golden goose who produces the twin bounties of partisan fealty and outrage-driven fundraising.

(6) Washington is stacked against ordinary people when public-facing parts of the Federal Government shut down whenever Congress refuses to meet its Constitutional responsibility to pass a budget. No other country on the planet engages in such dysfunction; it is a policy choice that can and should be changed.

(7) Washington is stacked against ordinary people when the Federal Government can conduct surveillance without meaningful checks. As artificial intelligence enables expansions of such surveillance, guidelines and guardrails for the 21st century must be established.

(8) Washington is stacked against ordinary people when complaints about government shortcomings go unanswered, if the individual can determine how to direct them through the maze of Federal bureaucracy.

(9) Washington is stacked against ordinary people when decision making and record keeping are done in darkness. Sunshine is a powerful disinfectant that can bring conflicts to light; the Freedom of Information Act and other accountability provisions can be strengthened.

(b) Purpose.—The purpose of this title is to unstack Washington by making the Federal Government more accessible, accountable, lawful, transparent, resilient, representative, and responsive to the people of the United States.

SEC. 1002. KEEPING THE FEDERAL SCHOOL FUNDING PROMISE.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Part A of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 and section 611 of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act are core Federal commitments to high-poverty schools and students with disabilities.

(2) While the POPULIST Act will reduce hunger and poverty with universal school meals and the American Union Jobs Program, it should not reduce Federal, State, or local support for public schools.

(3) Therefore, additional Federal school funding is needed to keep the United States' school funding promise.

(b) Definitions.—In this section:

(1) Covered fiscal year.—The term "covered fiscal year" means fiscal year 2027, 2028, 2029, or 2030.

(2) IDEA section 611 grants.—The term "IDEA section 611 grants" means grants under section 611 of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1411).

(3) Secretary.—The term "Secretary" means the Secretary of Education.

(1) $22,853,242,000 for fiscal year 2027;

(2) $25,464,349,000 for fiscal year 2028;

(3) $28,373,788,000 for fiscal year 2029; and

(4) $31,615,646,000 for fiscal year 2030.

(d) IDEA funding floors.—For each covered fiscal year, there are authorized to be appropriated, and there are appropriated out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, such sums as may be necessary to ensure that the total amount made available for IDEA section 611 grants is not less than—

(1) $19,531,844,000 for fiscal year 2027;

(2) $22,896,084,000 for fiscal year 2028;

(3) $26,839,795,000 for fiscal year 2029; and

(4) $31,462,786,000 for fiscal year 2030.

(e) Availability.—Amounts appropriated under subsections (c) and (d) for a covered fiscal year shall become available for obligation on July 1 of such fiscal year and shall remain available through September 30 of the succeeding fiscal year.

(f) No reduction due to universal school meals.—For each covered fiscal year, the Secretary, each State educational agency, and each local educational agency shall ensure that no State educational agency, local educational agency, school attendance area, or public school receives a reduced allocation, ranking, weighting, eligibility determination, or funding amount under Title I grants solely because universal school meals are provided without charge, household school-meal applications are no longer collected, or school meal eligibility data are no longer available in the same form.

(g) Title I allocation stabilization.—For each covered fiscal year, in making allocations for Title I grants, the Secretary shall use the greater of—

(1) the formula-child counts and other allocation data otherwise applicable for that fiscal year after application of subsection (f); or

(2) the average formula-child counts and other allocation data used for fiscal years 2024, 2025, and 2026, adjusted by the Secretary to reflect material changes in student enrollment or school-age population.

(h) Maintenance of State effort for Title I grants.—For each covered fiscal year, a State receiving funds made available under subsection (c) shall not reduce State financial support for free public elementary and secondary education below the greater of—

(1) the amount provided for the preceding fiscal year, adjusted by the Secretary to reflect material changes in student enrollment; or

(2) the average annual amount provided for fiscal years 2024, 2025, and 2026, adjusted by the Secretary to reflect material changes in student enrollment.

(i) Maintenance of State effort for IDEA grants.—For each covered fiscal year, a State receiving funds made available under subsection (d) shall not reduce State financial support for special education and related services for children with disabilities below the greater of—

(1) the amount provided for the preceding fiscal year, adjusted by the Secretary to reflect material changes in the number of children with disabilities served by the State; or

(2) the average annual amount provided for fiscal years 2024, 2025, and 2026, adjusted by the Secretary to reflect material changes in the number of children with disabilities served by the State.

(j) Local maintenance of effort.—A local educational agency receiving funds under subsection (c) or (d) shall maintain fiscal effort in accordance with section 8521 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (20 U.S.C. 7901) and section 613(a)(2)(A)(iii) of the Individuals with Disabilities Education Act (20 U.S.C. 1413(a)(2)(A)(iii)), as applicable.

(k) Supplement, not supplant.—Funds made available under this section shall be used only to supplement, and not supplant, State and local funds that would, in the absence of such Federal funds, be made available for free public elementary and secondary education, Title I programs, special education, or related services.

(l) Enforcement.—If the Secretary determines that a State or local educational agency has reduced financial support in violation of subsection (h), (i), or (j), or has used funds in violation of subsection (k), the Secretary shall reduce, recover, or withhold funds made available under subsection (c) or (d), as applicable, in an amount proportional to the reduction in required fiscal effort or the amount supplanted.

(m) Waiver.—The Secretary may waive subsection (h), (i), or (j) only for exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances, including a natural disaster, a material decline in student enrollment, a material decline in the number of children with disabilities served, or a precipitous and unforeseen decline in State or local revenues, except that a revenue decline caused by tax reductions, rebates, credits, exclusions, deductions, or other discretionary reductions in revenue shall not constitute exceptional or uncontrollable circumstances.

(n) Report to Congress.—Not later than January 1, 2029, the Secretary shall submit to Congress a report recommending permanent school funding formulas that measure educational need without relying on poverty paperwork, school-meal eligibility, or other pre-Jubilee proxies.

(A) recesses or adjourns in violation of subsection (f); or

(B) fails to establish a daily quorum pursuant to subsection (g), the automatic continuing appropriations provided under subsection (b) shall, for each account, program, project, benefit payment, or activity then subject to the lapse in appropriations, be converted into a full-year automatic continuing appropriation for the remainder of the fiscal year in which the lapse in appropriations occurs, calculated as provided in paragraph (2).

(2) Amount for fiscal year.—The aggregate amount of budget authority made available for the fiscal year under subsection (b) and this subsection for each account, program, project, benefit payment, or activity shall equal the product of the rate for operations for that account, program, project, benefit payment, or activity multiplied by the number of days in the fiscal year and multiplied by one plus the percentage increase, if any, in the gross domestic product price index for the 12-month period ending on June 30 of the preceding fiscal year. Upon activation of paragraph (1), the amount newly made available under this subsection shall equal the amount necessary to bring the aggregate amount made available under subsection (b) and this subsection to the amount calculated under the preceding sentence, but may not be less than zero.

(i) Coordination with national defense budget limitation.—

(1) In general.—For fiscal years 2027 through 2030, new budget authority provided under subsection (b) or (h) for accounts, programs, projects, benefit payments, or activities, to the extent such authority is classified in national defense budget function 050, shall be adjusted so that the aggregate new budget authority provided for that budget function for the fiscal year under this section and any other provision of law does not exceed the applicable limit determined under section 1342(a)(1) and imposed under section 1342(b)(1), including any provisional limit administered under section 1342(d).

(2) Proportional adjustment.—For purposes of paragraph (1), the Director of the Office of Management and Budget shall—

(A) determine the greater of zero or the amount by which the applicable limit exceeds the aggregate new budget authority already provided for the fiscal year for national defense budget function 050 before the adjustment takes effect, after application of subsection (e) and section 1342(g)(4);

(B) determine the aggregate amount that, but for this subsection, would become available after the adjustment takes effect and through the end of the fiscal year under subsection (b) or (h) for accounts, programs, projects, benefit payments, and activities, to the extent such authority is classified in national defense budget function 050; and

(C) if the amount determined under subparagraph (B) is greater than zero, multiply each amount described in that subparagraph by a uniform adjustment factor equal to the lesser of—

(i) 1; or

(ii) the quotient obtained by dividing the amount determined under subparagraph (A) by the amount determined under subparagraph (B).

If the amount determined under subparagraph (B) is zero, the adjustment factor shall be 1.

(3) Daily appropriations.—For purposes of subsection (b), the adjustment factor determined under paragraph (2) shall be applied to each daily automatic continuing appropriation becoming available on or after the time the adjustment takes effect. An adjustment may not retroactively reduce an obligation validly incurred before that time.

(4) Full-year appropriations.—For purposes of subsection (h), the adjustment factor determined under paragraph (2) shall be applied to the amount newly made available upon activation of subsection (h), as determined under subsection (h)(2), and no adjustment for an increase in the gross domestic product price index may cause the aggregate amount made available for national defense budget function 050 to exceed the applicable limit.

(5) Recalculation.—The Director shall promptly recalculate an adjustment under this subsection whenever the amount determined under paragraph (2)(A) or (B) changes, including upon—

(A) publication of a final or revised final baseline amount under section 1342(c);

(B) enactment of a law that changes new budget authority provided for national defense budget function 050;

(C) a transfer, cancellation, reclassification, or other adjustment that changes the amount counted toward the applicable limit; or

(D) activation of subsection (h).

(6) No double counting or reduction.—Budget authority that has already been reduced under another provision of law to comply with section 1342 shall be taken into account at the reduced amount and shall not be reduced again under this subsection except to the extent necessary to comply with paragraph (1). Budget authority charged to or superseded by a subsequently enacted appropriation Act shall be counted in accordance with subsection (e) and section 1342(g)(4).

(7) Publication.—Not later than 1 day after the beginning of a lapse in appropriations, and promptly after any recalculation under paragraph (5), the Director shall publish the determinations, calculations, and adjustments made under this subsection. An adjustment required by this subsection shall take effect by operation of law notwithstanding a delay in publication. Pending publication, the Director shall reserve from obligation the amount reasonably estimated to be necessary to prevent obligations against budget authority subject to reduction under this subsection.

(j) Limitation on official travel.—During a lapse in appropriations, no funds may be obligated or expended for official travel by a Member of Congress or a congressional employee outside the National Capital Region, except for direct travel between the seat of Government and the Member's congressional district.

(k) Exercise of rulemaking power.—Subsections (f) and (g) are enacted pursuant to Article I, Section 5, Clause 2 of the Constitution of the United States—

(1) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the House of Representatives and the Senate, respectively, and as such shall be considered as part of the rules of each House, respectively, and shall supersede other rules only to the extent that they are inconsistent with such rules; and

(2) with full recognition of the Constitutional right of either House to change the rules, so far as relating to the procedure of that House, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of that House.

(l) Applicability.—This section applies to any lapse in appropriations occurring on or after the date of enactment of this Act.

(c) Temporary preservation of cross-referenced provisions.—Notwithstanding subsection (a), any provision of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 expressly referenced or incorporated by another provision of Federal law in effect on the date of enactment of this Act shall continue in effect solely for purposes of giving effect to that reference or incorporation, and only to the minimum extent necessary to administer that other provision, until an Act of Congress eliminating or replacing the reference or incorporation takes effect. This subsection shall not revive or continue any sequestration, enforcement mechanism, limitation, authority, or requirement of the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 except to the extent expressly made applicable by that other provision of Federal law.

(2) Public digital infrastructure should help people access public benefits, public services, public information, and public rights without unnecessary delay, confusion, paperwork, or contractor-controlled chokepoints.

(3) Federal agencies require in-house technical capacity to design, procure, build, maintain, and oversee digital systems serving the public and reduce avoidable dependence on contractor-operated systems.

(4) Contractors may assist Federal agencies in building digital infrastructure, but contractor arrangements should not transfer control over public services, public data, public-facing interfaces, essential source code, or fee collection to private entities in a manner that undermines public accountability.

(5) Digital modernization should reduce administrative burden, improve service delivery, consolidate duplicative systems, build shared tools, preserve institutional knowledge, and improve public-facing digital services while preserving privacy, cybersecurity, transparency, accessibility, and lawful agency control over agency records and systems.

(3) Contractor dependency review.—Before materially assisting a major public-facing digital service project that relies on contractor operation, proprietary software, or contractor-controlled user interfaces, the Service shall provide the agency with a written assessment of whether the project increases or reduces contractor lock-in, proprietary dependence, private control over public data, private control over public-facing interfaces, and transaction fee or user fee dependence.

Subtitle C—Government and Artificial Intelligence

SEC. 1031. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Artificial intelligence presents a significant opportunity to improve public administration, expand access to services, strengthen security, support scientific and technical progress, and promote the general welfare of the people of the United States.

(2) Because artificial intelligence can influence decisions affecting rights, liberties, safety, privacy, property, the use of force, and access to essential opportunities and services, the Government bears a special responsibility to ensure that its use of artificial intelligence remains lawful, intelligible, accountable, and subject to meaningful human judgment.

(3) The Federal Government can minimize public dependence on a small number of dominant tech companies and promote competition policy by setting procurement standards that promote interoperability, portability, auditability, and technical independence over opaque and locked systems.

(b) Purpose.—The purpose of this subtitle is to establish public policy for the United States governing artificial intelligence that reflects the highest ideals of the United States, including—

(1) enabling the beneficial use of artificial intelligence to improve public administration, reduce administrative burden, strengthen security, expand access to services, support scientific and technical progress, and help public servants serve the people of the United States more effectively; and

(2) establishing safeguards against uses of artificial intelligence that are inconsistent with constitutional government, including mass surveillance, social scoring, unlawful delegation of lethal force, covert manipulation of the public, and other uses that threaten rights, liberties, privacy, safety, or democratic self-government.

(B) materially enables, increases the risk of, or otherwise contributes to an adverse government action based on materially inaccurate, incomplete, or otherwise unreliable output or process;

(C) materially defeats, evades, or undermines any implemented safeguard;

(D) results in, or materially increases the risk of, unauthorized access to, disclosure of, exfiltration of, or material misuse of Government data or personal data processed by or through the activity; or

(E) materially enables autonomous cyber operations capable of causing substantial disruption to Government systems, critical infrastructure, or major economic activity.

(2) Artificial intelligence.—The term "artificial intelligence" has the meaning given that term in section 581.

(2) the agency has tested and validated the system for its intended use;

(3) the agency has established meaningful human oversight over the activity;

(4) the agency has adopted measures to identify and mitigate reasonably foreseeable risks to safety, privacy, civil rights, civil liberties, and due process;

(6) the agency has established logging, auditability, incident reporting, and record retention procedures sufficient to permit review of the activity and its outputs;

(7) the agency has completed an independent review of the activity by appropriate officials who are not part of the sponsoring program office, including officials responsible for legal compliance, privacy, civil rights or civil liberties, cybersecurity, and records management, as applicable;

(8) if the activity is a new externally facing high-impact artificial intelligence activity, and except to the extent expressly prohibited by law or impracticable in classified, military, intelligence, national security, or law enforcement operations, the agency has published a plain language summary of the impact assessment and provided not fewer than 30 days for public comment before initial deployment; and

(9) the senior responsible official designated under subsection (c)(1) has approved the deployment or use in writing.

(f) Required safeguards.—Each Federal agency engaging in a high-impact artificial intelligence activity shall—

(6) provide, before any final materially adverse agency action materially informed by the activity, to any person materially adversely affected by such action, except to the extent expressly prohibited by law or impracticable in classified or military operations—

(A) notice that artificial intelligence was used;

(B) a description of the role that the activity played in the action;

(C) notice of the principal categories of data materially relied upon, to the extent consistent with law and the protection of classified, privileged, or otherwise protected information; and

(4) Continued use during transition.—Notwithstanding subsection (e), a Federal agency may continue an existing activity until the compliance deadline under paragraph (5), and may satisfy the testing requirement under subsection (f)(2) during that period rather than before deployment, only while—

(A) a provisional approval under paragraph (2) remains in effect; and

(B) the agency maintains meaningful human oversight, logging, incident reporting, and safeguards reasonably designed to identify and mitigate material risks.

(5) Compliance deadline.—Not later than 180 days after publication of the interim final rules under subsection (k)(1), each Federal agency shall complete the requirements of subsection (e) with respect to each existing activity and approve, modify, suspend, or discontinue the activity.

(6) Inventory status.—For purposes of subsection (i)(2)(E), an existing activity operating under a valid provisional approval shall be identified as operating under the transition authorized by this subsection and shall not be described as noncompliant solely because the impact assessment required under subsection (e)(1) has not been completed.

(7) Prior procurements.—Subsection (d) shall not apply to a procurement completed before the date of enactment of this Act, but shall apply to a renewal, extension, replacement, material modification, or new procurement occurring on or after that date.

Subtitle E—Promoting Election Integrity

SEC. 1051. ADDRESSING NATIONAL REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL COMMITTEE V. FEC.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) In National Republican Senatorial Committee v. FEC, the Supreme Court invalidated the limits on political-party coordinated expenditures under section 315(d) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (52 U.S.C. 30116(d)), while identifying base contribution limits, earmarking rules, and disclosure requirements as less speech-restrictive tools for preventing circumvention of contribution limits.

(2) This decision builds on previous findings, such as its per curiam opinion in Buckley v. Valeo, "disclosure requirements certainly in most applications appear to be the least restrictive means of curbing the evils of campaign ignorance and corruption that Congress found to exist." In Citizens United v. FEC, the Court reiterated that "disclosure is a less restrictive alternative to more comprehensive regulations of speech."

(3) Campaign finance disclosure advances substantial government interests, including fostering an informed electorate, helping the people hold elected officials accountable, detecting and deterring quid pro quo corruption, and identifying information necessary to enforce campaign finance laws, including contribution limits and the prohibition on foreign money in Federal elections.

(4) To further these interests, campaign finance disclosure must be timely and complete, and must disclose the true and original source of money given, transferred, and spent to influence Federal elections. Campaign finance disclosure is also essential to enforce the prohibition on contributions by, and solicitations of, foreign nationals under the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971.

(b) Purpose.—The purpose of this section is to strengthen the earmarking and disclosure rules identified by the Supreme Court in National Republican Senatorial Committee v. FEC without reimposing the political-party coordinated-expenditure limits invalidated in that decision.

(c) Earmarked contributions.—Section 315(a)(8) of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (52 U.S.C. 30116(a)(8)) is amended to read as follows:

"(8) Earmarked contributions.—

"(A) In general.—For purposes of the limitations imposed by this section, all contributions made by a person, directly or indirectly, on behalf of a clearly identified candidate, including contributions that are in any way earmarked or otherwise directed to the candidate through an intermediary or conduit, including a political committee or political party committee, shall be treated as contributions from that person to that candidate.

"(B) Earmarked defined.—In this paragraph, the term 'earmarked' means a designation, instruction, encumbrance, agreement, or understanding, whether direct or indirect, express or implied, oral or written, that results in all or any part of a contribution being made to, transferred to, expended on behalf of, or used for coordinated expenditures with respect to a clearly identified candidate or the authorized committee of such candidate.

"(C) Reporting.—An intermediary or conduit, including a political committee or political party committee, shall report the original source and intended recipient of a contribution described in subparagraph (A) to the Commission and to the intended recipient.".

(d) Rapid disclosure of party coordinated expenditures.—Section 304 of the Federal Election Campaign Act of 1971 (52 U.S.C. 30104) is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(j) Rapid disclosure of party coordinated expenditures.—

"(1) Initial report.—A political committee established and maintained by a national committee, State committee, district committee, or local committee of a political party that makes or contracts to make coordinated expenditures with respect to a clearly identified candidate for Federal office aggregating $1,000 or more with respect to an election shall file a report describing the expenditures with the Commission not later than 24 hours after the expenditure is made or contracted to be made.

"(2) Additional reports.—After a political committee files a report under paragraph (1), the political committee shall file an additional report not later than 24 hours after each time the political committee makes or contracts to make coordinated expenditures aggregating an additional $1,000 with respect to the same election.

"(3) Contents.—A report under this subsection shall include—

"(A) the name of the political committee making or contracting to make the coordinated expenditure;

"(B) the name of the clearly identified candidate, the office sought by the candidate, and the election to which the coordinated expenditure relates;

"(C) the date, amount, payee, and purpose of the coordinated expenditure;

"(D) whether the coordinated expenditure was made in cooperation, consultation, or concert with, or at the request or suggestion of, the candidate, the authorized committee of the candidate, or an agent of the candidate; and

"(E) for any contribution known to the political committee to be earmarked or otherwise directed for the coordinated expenditure or for the clearly identified candidate, the original source, amount, date, and intermediary or conduit of such contribution.

"(4) Public availability.—The Commission shall make each report filed under this subsection publicly available on the internet not later than 24 hours after receipt.

"(5) Coordination with other requirements.—A report required under this subsection shall be in addition to any other reporting requirement under this Act.".

(e) Effective date.—The amendments made by this section shall apply to contributions, coordinated expenditures, and contracts to make coordinated expenditures made on or after November 4, 2026.

(2) 25 percent of the portion of the aggregate political outlays that exceeds 2 times the basic wage and does not exceed 5 times the basic wage;

(3) 50 percent of the portion of the aggregate political outlays that exceeds 5 times the basic wage and does not exceed 10 times the basic wage; and

(4) 75 percent of the portion of the aggregate political outlays that exceeds 10 times the basic wage.

(f) Anti-avoidance; aggregation.—For purposes of this section:

(1) A political contribution or personal independent expenditure made by a natural person through a corporation, limited liability company, partnership, association, trust, estate, donor-advised fund, family office, agent, intermediary, pass-through entity, or other conduit shall be treated as made by such natural person.

(2) A political contribution or personal independent expenditure that is funded, reimbursed, directed, controlled, earmarked, or otherwise designated by a natural person shall be treated as made by such natural person.

(3) A political contribution made by a natural person to a political recipient and earmarked, directed, or otherwise designated for the benefit of another political recipient shall be treated as a political contribution to each recipient to the extent of the amounts so earmarked, directed, or designated, except that an amount treated as a political contribution to more than 1 recipient under this paragraph shall be counted only once in determining aggregate political outlays under subsection (d).

(4) The Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe such regulations as are necessary to prevent avoidance of tax under this section, including through affiliated entities, nominee arrangements, reimbursements, loans lacking commercially reasonable terms, coordinated expenditures falsely characterized as independent, and circular funding.

(g) Administration.—

(1) In general.—The tax imposed by this section shall be assessed and collected by the Secretary of the Treasury.

(2) Returns.—Each natural person whose aggregate political outlays for a calendar year exceed the basic wage shall file such return at such time and in such manner as the Secretary of the Treasury may prescribe.

(3) Information reporting.—Each political recipient that receives aggregate political contributions from a natural person in excess of $5,000 in a calendar year shall file such information returns as the Secretary of the Treasury may require for administration of this section, in a manner coordinated to the maximum extent practicable with reporting under chapter 301 of title 52, United States Code.

(h) Effective date.—This section shall apply to political contributions and personal independent expenditures made in calendar years beginning after December 31, 2026.

(a) Definitions.—In this section:

(1) De minimis membership association authorization.—The term "de minimis membership association authorization" means a Federal electioneering authorization that is granted upon the filing of a notice under subsection (c) and that permits a membership association to make de minimis political expenditures in connection with a Federal election, subject to the limitations of this section.

(2) De minimis political expenditures.—The term "de minimis political expenditures" means expenditures for political activities, as defined in section 13(t) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (as inserted by this Act), the aggregate value of which does not exceed the amount that would cause the membership association to become a political committee under section 30101(4)(A) of title 52, United States Code.

(3) Membership association.—The term "membership association" means an organization, whether or not incorporated, that—

(A) is composed exclusively of natural persons as members, except that a federation of local, State, or national chapters or affiliates shall be treated as composed exclusively of natural persons if each constituent chapter or affiliate satisfies subparagraphs (A) through (D);

(B) is governed by and accountable to such members under governing documents that provide meaningful member control;

(C) has no equity owners and does not distribute net earnings to any private shareholder or individual; and

(D) is not substantially controlled, directly or indirectly, by any corporation or other for-profit entity.

(4) Notice.—The term "notice" means a filing submitted in accordance with subsection (c).

(b) Grant of authorization.—Notwithstanding any other provision of law, a de minimis membership association authorization is granted to a membership association upon the filing of a notice.

(c) Notice requirement.—A notice under this subsection shall be filed with the Federal Election Commission and shall—

(2) identify a responsible person who is authorized to act for the membership association and certify compliance with this section;

(3) provide a physical mailing address and a means of electronic contact;

(4) certify under penalty of perjury that the organization satisfies the definition of membership association under subsection (a)(3);

(5) certify under penalty of perjury that the organization will only make de minimis political expenditures during any calendar year; and

(6) be filed before the first de minimis political expenditure is made.

(d) Loss of authorization; conversion to full compliance.—If a membership association that has received a de minimis membership association authorization makes or obligates itself to make a political expenditure that would cause the membership association to become a political committee under section 30101(4)(A) of title 52, United States Code, then—

(1) the de minimis membership association authorization shall terminate with respect to such expenditure or obligation; and

(2) such expenditure or obligation, and any further political expenditure or obligation during such calendar year, shall be unlawful unless the membership association complies with the applicable requirements of chapter 301 of title 52, United States Code, and section 527 of title 26, United States Code.

(e) Anti-avoidance.—

(1) Aggregation.—For purposes of the limitation under subsection (a)(2), political expenditures made by a membership association through an agent, intermediary, or affiliated entity shall be treated as made by such membership association.

(2) Prohibition on reimbursements.—A membership association may not receive funds, reimbursements, or in-kind support from any corporation or other for-profit entity for the purpose of making de minimis political expenditures under this section.

(3) Regulations.—The Federal Election Commission, in consultation with the Secretary of the Treasury, may prescribe regulations necessary to prevent evasion of this section, including through the use of nominee arrangements, pass-through entities, and coordinated spending falsely characterized as de minimis.

(12) Protected voter.—The term "protected voter" means an eligible citizen whose residential address, mailing address, physical location, shelter location, family address, Federal voting residence, or other identifying location information may not be safely disclosed to the public because of domestic violence, stalking, trafficking, witness protection, law enforcement safety, judicial safety, caregiving safety, homelessness, displacement, or another comparable safety or privacy concern.

(16) State election official.—The term "State election official" means the chief State election official of a State and any State or local official responsible under State law for voter registration, voter identification, ballot issuance, absentee ballot administration, mail ballot administration, provisional ballot administration, ballot cure, or vote counting for an election for Federal office.

(1) register an individual to vote;

(2) issue a nonprovisional ballot to an individual;

(3) fulfill an absentee ballot request or mail ballot request from an individual; or

(4) complete a ballot cure for an individual.

Nothing in this subsection shall prohibit a State election official from issuing, accepting, or processing a provisional ballot pending verification and cure under subsection (h) or section 1059.

(c) Treasury voter verification as sufficient proof.—Treasury voter verification shall constitute primary and conclusive proof of United States citizenship and valid and sufficient identification in an election for Federal office, but shall not, by itself, establish residence, domicile, or Federal voting residence.

(d) Verification methods.—

(1) In general.—The Treasury shall make Treasury voter verification available to State election officials through secure, accessible, and auditable methods prescribed by the Secretary.

(2) Permissible methods.—Methods prescribed under paragraph (1) may include card swipe, card tap, chip insertion, QR code, manual credential entry, online Treasury interface, Treasury-approved account interface, toll-free telephone verification, transaction-based verification, verification token, Treasury-issued verification receipt, or any other secure method prescribed by the Secretary. A TRUMP card shall be accepted as a valid physical credential for initiating Treasury voter verification.

(3) Transaction-based verification.—A transaction-based verification method may include a zero-dollar authorization or a nominal reversible transfer in an amount prescribed by the Secretary.

(4) No financial barrier.—No individual may be charged a fee, required to maintain a minimum balance, or denied Treasury voter verification because the individual lacks funds in a citizen account.

(e) Absentee ballots, mail ballots, and remote voting methods.—

(1) In general.—For an absentee ballot, mail ballot, or other remote voting method used in an election for Federal office, a State election official shall provide a reasonable means for an individual to complete Treasury voter verification remotely.

(2) Permissible methods.—A reasonable means under paragraph (1) may include a QR code, toll-free telephone number, online Treasury interface, manual credential entry, TRUMP card authorization, transaction-based verification, Treasury-issued verification receipt, verification token, or other Treasury-approved method.

(3) Remote voting.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to prohibit a State from adopting a secure remote voting method for an election for Federal office if such method complies with this section, section 1059, and any other applicable provision of Federal law.

(f) No additional citizenship or identity documentation.—

(1) In general.—A State election official may not require an individual whose United States citizenship and identity are verified through Treasury voter verification to present a birth certificate, passport, naturalization certificate, certificate of citizenship, State-issued photo identification, or any other documentary proof of United States citizenship or identity as a condition of registering, receiving a ballot, casting a ballot, curing a ballot, or having a ballot counted in an election for Federal office.

(2) Residence documentation preserved.—Nothing in paragraph (1) shall be construed to prohibit a State election official from requiring proof of residence, domicile, address, election district, or Federal voting residence, if such proof is required in a nondiscriminatory manner and is not used to require additional proof of United States citizenship or identity from an individual who has completed Treasury voter verification.

(3) Driver's licenses and State identification preserved.—Nothing in this subsection shall be construed to prohibit an individual from using a driver's license, State identification card, utility bill, lease, or other lawful document to establish residence, domicile, address, election district, or Federal voting residence.

(g) Express authorization and data minimization under section 623.—

(1) Express authorization.—For purposes of section 623(e)(4), Treasury voter verification under this section and section 1059 is an expressly authorized use of information associated with digital Treasury accounts, subject to the privacy, data minimization, ballot secrecy, anti-surveillance, and nondisclosure requirements therein.

(2) Authorized uses.—The Treasury may use information associated with a citizen account only to the extent necessary to confirm United States citizenship, confirm identity, authenticate account control, generate a verification token, issue a verification receipt, support ballot cure, or maintain the security and integrity of Treasury voter verification.

(3) Minimum disclosure.—A Treasury voter verification provided to a State election official shall disclose only the minimum information necessary to confirm citizenship, identity, authentication status, date and time of verification, and a verification token or nonfinancial verification receipt.

(h) No denial for system failure.—A State election official may not deny an individual the right to register, receive a ballot, cast a provisional ballot, or cure a ballot in an election for Federal office solely because Treasury voter verification, or technical equipment supporting Treasury voter verification, is unavailable, delayed, or temporarily inoperable. In such a case, the State election official shall offer the individual an alternative lawful method of citizenship and identity verification or permit the individual to cast a provisional ballot for Federal office. A reasonable opportunity to cure such verification issue shall include a remote cure process after the Treasury voter verification becomes available.

(i) Other proof preserved.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit an individual from proving United States citizenship or identity by any other lawful method accepted for purposes of registering or voting in an election for Federal office.

(j) Federal-election scope.—This section applies to elections for Federal office. A State may accept Treasury voter verification for State or local elections, but nothing in this section shall be construed to require a State to alter voter qualifications for State or local elections except to the extent required by the Constitution of the United States or another provision of Federal law.

(k) Rulemaking.—Not later than September 30, 2027, the Secretary, in consultation with the Election Assistance Commission and the Attorney General, shall issue rules to carry out this section, including rules governing verification methods, cybersecurity, accessibility, privacy, record correction, absentee ballot verification, mail ballot verification, provisional ballot cure, State election official access, protection of ballot secrecy, and coordination with section 623.

(l) Pilots, testing, and deployments.—The Secretary shall conduct not fewer than 3 pilots, limited deployments, or special election deployments of Treasury voter verification before January 1, 2028, provided the Secretary determines that such use protects ballot secrecy, privacy, account security, and the integrity of elections for Federal office.

SEC. 1059. ONE CITIZEN, ONE VOTE.

(a) Universal Federal suffrage.—

(1) In general.—Notwithstanding any State law, every eligible citizen shall have the right to register, receive the appropriate ballot, and cast such ballot in each election for Federal office.

(2) One citizen, one Federal vote.—An eligible citizen may cast only 1 ballot for each Federal office in an election and may have only 1 Federal voting residence for such election.

(3) Federal-only ballot.—If an eligible citizen is entitled to vote in an election for Federal office under this section but is not eligible to vote in 1 or more State or local elections held at the same time, the State election official shall provide the eligible citizen a Federal-only ballot.

(b) Residence attestation and verification.—

(1) In general.—A State election official shall provide a reasonable means for an eligible citizen to establish or update a Federal voting residence.

(A) Permissible proof.—A reasonable means under paragraph (1) may include—

(i) a driver's license, a State identification card, a utility bill, a lease, mail, or a sworn written or electronic attestation;

(ii) confirmation by an administrator of a residential, medical, nursing, custodial, correctional, detention, military, educational, transitional, treatment, shelter, or similar facility that such eligible citizen resides there;

(iii) confirmation by a government agency with knowledge of the residence or connection of the eligible citizen; or

(iv) any other lawful method that establishes residence, domicile, address, election district, or Federal voting residence.

(B) Unconventional addresses.—A State election official may not reject a Federal voting residence solely because the eligible citizen—

(i) lacks a conventional street address, uses a last verified residence, uses a closest-substantial-connection address, or cannot safely disclose a residential address; or

(ii) resides at, is assigned to, or is confined in a place of detention, incarceration, nursing care, medical care, shelter, transitional housing, or other institutional residence.

(2) Federal voting residence.—For purposes of elections for Federal office, the Federal voting residence of an eligible citizen shall be determined in the following order, using a residence or connection established under paragraph (1):

(A) the current residence of the citizen, provided that for an incarcerated citizen, the Federal voting residence shall correspond to the residence at which the eligible citizen is counted or assigned for purposes of congressional redistricting under section 141(h) of title 13, United States Code;

(B) if the citizen does not have a current verified residence, the last verified residence of the citizen;

(C) if the citizen does not have a current or last verified residence, the verified residence of a parent, spouse, adult child, sibling, next of kin, or other person with whom the citizen has a substantial personal connection;

(D) if the citizen does not have a residence described in subparagraph (A), (B), or (C), the place of birth of the citizen in the United States; or

(E) if the citizen does not have a residence or place of birth described in subparagraph (A), (B), (C), or (D), the place in the United States with which the citizen has the closest substantial connection.

(3) Automatic Federal registration.—Beginning on January 1, 2028, the chief State election official of each State shall establish and operate a system of automatic Federal registration for elections for Federal office in the State. The system shall register an eligible citizen, and update the registration of an eligible citizen, through automated data feeds, matching procedures, and exception-handling procedures using information transferred under paragraph (5). A State election official may not require an eligible citizen to submit a separate voter registration application after the information necessary for automatic Federal registration has been verified. A prior Federal registration may not be cancelled, superseded, or treated as inactive until the new Federal voting residence is established or the eligible citizen is otherwise protected against loss of the right to vote in elections for Federal office.

(4) Federal-only registration.—Automatic Federal registration under this section shall constitute registration for elections for Federal office. Nothing in this section shall be construed to require a State to treat automatic Federal registration as registration for an election for State or local office if the eligible citizen is not qualified to vote in that election under State law, except to the extent required by the Constitution of the United States or another provision of Federal law.

(5) Electronic transfer of registration information.—The Secretary, the Election Assistance Commission, each chief State election official, and any Federal, State, or local government agency or covered placement entity with information necessary for automatic Federal registration shall provide for the secure electronic transfer of such information to the appropriate State election official.

(A) Information transferred under this paragraph shall be limited to information necessary to carry out registration, Federal voting residence assignment, supersession of prior Federal registrations, protected-voter procedures, Federal-only ballot procedures, and provisional Federal ballot cure under this section.

(B) Statewide computerized list coordination.—Information transferred under this paragraph shall be entered on an expedited basis into the computerized statewide voter registration list required under section 303(a) of the Help America Vote Act of 2002 (52 U.S.C. 21083(a)), coordinated with other agency databases as necessary, and maintained with adequate technological security measures to prevent unauthorized access.

(C) During the period beginning 60 days before and ending 30 days before an election for Federal office, each covered placement entity shall transfer information sufficient to register each eligible citizen who resides at the covered placement entity, unless—

(i) such information has already been transferred for that election; or

(ii) the citizen will no longer reside with the covered placement entity on the day of the election for Federal office.

(6) One active Federal voting residence.—Before registering an eligible citizen at a new Federal voting residence or updating the Federal voting residence of an eligible citizen, a State election official shall use Treasury voter verification, a verification token, or another lawful method to confirm that the eligible citizen will have only 1 active Federal voting residence for the election for Federal office.

(c) Protected voters and public records.—

(1) Protected voter status.—A State election official shall designate an eligible citizen as a protected voter if the eligible citizen submits a court order, protective order, address-confidentiality-program record, law enforcement record, shelter confirmation, government agency confirmation, sworn written or electronic attestation, or other credible evidence showing that public disclosure of such citizen's address would create a safety risk. A State election official may not require a public hearing or public disclosure of protected information as a condition of protected voter status.

(2) Designated election-administration address.—A protected voter may use a designated election-administration address for election-administration purposes.

(3) Protected voter records.—A State election official may not publicly disclose protected information.

(d) Election-specific verification tokens.—The Secretary, in consultation with the Election Assistance Commission and the Attorney General, shall support election-specific verification tokens or other election-specific verification records sufficient to confirm that an eligible citizen casts only 1 ballot for each Federal office in the same election, without disclosing ballot selections or information not necessary to election administration.

(e) Provisional Federal ballot and cure.—If the registration status or Federal voting residence of an eligible citizen cannot be verified before the time for voting in an election for Federal office because of a delay, omission, outage, or failure in a Federal, State, or local government record, database, verification system, or registration system, the State election official shall permit the eligible citizen to cast a provisional Federal ballot and shall provide a reasonable opportunity to cure the issue after the ballot is cast.

(f) Treasury information.—A State election official may not publicly disclose a citizen account number, TRUMP card number, Treasury verification credential, Treasury verification receipt, account identifier, verification token, or any other information obtained through Treasury voter verification in a public voter file or public election record, except as necessary to administer this section, section 1058, or as otherwise authorized by law.

(g) Implementation grants.—The Election Assistance Commission shall make grants to each State to assist the State in implementing the requirements of this section and section 1058. To receive a grant under this subsection, a State shall submit an application to the Commission at such time and in such form as the Commission may require, containing a description of the activities the State will carry out with the grant, an assurance that the State will carry out such activities without partisan bias and without promoting any particular point of view regarding any issue, and such other information and assurances as the Commission may require. In making grants under this subsection, the Commission shall give priority to activities most likely to accelerate compliance with this section and section 1058, including secure electronic information transfer, updates to online or electronic voter-registration systems, automatic Federal registration, Federal voting residence assignment, protected-voter procedures, Federal-only ballots, provisional Federal ballots, verification tokens, cybersecurity, accessibility, staff training, and voter education. There are authorized to be appropriated $3,000,000,000 for fiscal year 2027 and such sums as may be necessary for each succeeding fiscal year to carry out this section and section 1058. Amounts appropriated under this subsection shall remain available until expended.

(h) Rulemaking.—Not later than September 30, 2027, the Secretary, in consultation with the Attorney General, the National Association of Secretaries of State, the National Association of State Election Directors, and the Election Assistance Commission, shall issue rules to carry out this section, including rules for automatic Federal registration, Federal voting residence, residence transition, no-fixed-address voters, protected voters, Federal-only ballots, provisional Federal ballots, residence attestation, verification tokens, public voter records, data minimization, State election official access, and coordination with section 1058.

(i) Pilots, testing, and deployments.—The Secretary may conduct pilots, testing, and limited deployments of automatic Federal registration, Federal voting residence assignment, protected-voter procedures, Federal-only ballot procedures, provisional Federal ballot procedures, and election-specific verification tokens before or after the issuance of rules under subsection (h), if the Secretary determines that such use protects ballot secrecy, privacy, account security, and the integrity of elections for Federal office.

(j) Mandatory implementation.—Beginning on January 1, 2028, each State election official shall implement this section for elections for Federal office.

Subtitle F—Expansion of Congress

SEC. 1061. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The House of Representatives was designed to be the chamber of Congress most directly accountable to the people. Article I of the Constitution of the United States ties representation in the House of Representatives to population, recurring enumeration, and apportionment among the States.

(2) The First Congress proposed, as Article the first of the proposed Bill of Rights, an amendment that would have further directed the enlargement of the House of Representatives as the population of the United States increased.

(3) For more than a century, Congress generally honored the principle that the House of Representatives should grow as the people grew. The current 435-member House is the result of congressional gridlock following the 1920 decennial census, not a constitutional limit on representation.

(4) Since the House reached 435 members in 1913, the average congressional district has grown to nearly 4 times its former size, weakening the connection between Representatives and the people they serve.

(5) A fixed House turns representation into a zero-sum game, in which one State's gain in representation must come at another State's loss.

(6) A fixed House also intensifies partisan conflict because, when the number of seats is frozen, the only way for one political party to gain seats is for another political party to lose seats.

(7) Expanding the House creates an abundance of new representation, allowing the people of multiple States and communities to gain a stronger voice in Congress without requiring every gain to be matched by a loss.

(8) Expanding the House also creates a fair and orderly occasion for a one-time national congressional redistricting process under uniform standards that promote equal representation, competitive elections, and accountability to voters.

(9) The 250th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence is an appropriate occasion for Congress to renew the promise of republican representation by expanding the House, restoring the House as the people's chamber.

(10) The spirit of expansion can be further served by providing a path to full representation for residents of the District of Columbia, and offering an opportunity for self-determination for the people of Puerto Rico.

(b) Purpose.—The purpose of this subtitle is to unstack the current House in a way that more closely aligns with the Framers' vision.

SEC. 1062. EXPANSION AND APPORTIONMENT OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

(a) Number of Representatives.—Section 2 of title 2, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 2. Number of Representatives

(2) in subsection (b)—

(A) by striking "Eighty-third" and inserting "123rd";

(B) by striking "one" and inserting "1";

(C) by striking "fifteen" and inserting "15"; and

"(1) In general.—For the apportionment occurring after the 25th and each subsequent decennial census, the number of Representatives shall be the number determined by multiplying—

"(A) the number of Representatives in the current Congress; by

"(5) Apportionment population defined.—In this subsection, the term 'apportionment population' means the population used for the apportionment of Representatives under this section."; and

(4) by inserting after subsection (c) the following new subsection:

"(d) If the tabulation of the number of persons in a State under subsection (a) includes an individual incarcerated in a State, Federal, county, or municipal correctional facility, or in a youth correctional facility or detention center, who is treated as a resident of the State because the tabulation attributes the individual to the individual's last usual place of residence before incarceration, as provided under section 141(h) of title 13, United States Code, the State shall treat the individual's last usual place of residence in the State before incarceration as the individual's place of residence for purposes of congressional redistricting.".

(c) Single-member congressional districts.—Section 2c of title 2, United States Code, is amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 2c. Single-member congressional districts

"(b) Comptroller General to publish.—

"(1) In general.—For each redistricting cycle, the Comptroller General of the United States shall establish and publish an official representative ensemble and a Republican electoral baseline for each State entitled to more than 1 Representative.

"(2) Deadline.—For each redistricting cycle, the Comptroller General shall establish and publish the official representative ensemble for each State not later than 117 days after the start of the final Congress of the prior cycle.

"(3) Rule of construction.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to require the Comptroller General to wait for the President's statement of apportionment pursuant to section 2(b) or 2a(a) before beginning work on the ensemble or electoral baseline.

"(4) Single Representative States.—The Comptroller General shall publish a Republican electoral baseline for a State entitled to only 1 Representative.

"(c) Representative ensemble defined.—

"(1) Minimum number of alternative plans.—

"(A) In general.—An official representative ensemble for a State shall include not fewer than the greater of—

"(i) 50,000 alternative congressional district plans; or

"(ii) 20,000 alternative congressional district plans for each Representative to which the State is entitled.

"(B) Infeasibility.—If the Comptroller General determines that the number of qualifying alternative congressional district plans required under subparagraph (A) cannot be generated for a State while complying with contiguity, the Voting Rights Act of 1965 (52 U.S.C. 10301 et seq.), and the whole election-return unit requirement under this section, the Comptroller General shall generate and publish the maximum number of qualifying alternative congressional district plans practicable and a written explanation of the constraint that prevented compliance with subparagraph (A).

"(2) Data used to generate alternative plans.—Each alternative congressional district plan included in an official representative ensemble shall be generated using only—

"(A) population tabulations furnished under section 141(c) of title 13, United States Code;

"(B) official geographic data furnished by the Bureau of the Census;

"(C) political subdivision boundaries of such State;

"(D) physical geography; and

"(E) publicly available governmental, geographic, census, public infrastructure, or other neutral public data, prescribed by the Comptroller General by rule, that is necessary to identify or evaluate objectively identifiable communities of interest, transportation connections, or other neutral geographic relationships relevant to compliance with this section, except that such data may not include restricted redistricting targeting data.

"(3) Neutral generation requirements.—Each alternative congressional district plan included in an official representative ensemble shall—

"(A) be composed of undivided election-return units;

"(B) satisfy neutral redistricting criteria to the greatest extent practicable;

"(C) be generated through a transparent, documented, and reproducible computational method; and

"(D) not be configured, weighted, optimized, selected, or excluded to favor or disfavor a political party, incumbent, candidate, or prospective candidate.

"(d) Republican electoral baseline calculated.—

"(1) In general.—The Republican electoral baseline for an election-return unit of a State shall be calculated by—

"(A) identifying 6 baseline elections according to paragraph (2);

"(B) determining, for each baseline election, the Republican vote share, which shall be the quotient of—

"(i) the number of votes received by the Republican candidate; divided by

"(ii) the combined number of votes received by the Republican candidate and the principal opposing candidate; and

"(C) averaging the Republican vote shares according to the weighting in paragraph (3).

"(2) Baseline elections.—

"(A) In general.—The baseline elections for a State shall consist of—

"(i) the 2 most recent regular general elections for President;

"(ii) the 2 most recent regular general elections for Senator; and

"(iii) the 2 most recent regular general elections for Governor; provided that if the term for Governor in such State is 2 years, the 2 most recent regular general elections for Governor held in nonpresidential even-numbered years shall be deemed the 2 most recent.

"(B) Qualification of baseline elections.—A regular general election may be used as a baseline election only if—

"(i) the Republican candidate is 1 of the 2 candidates receiving the highest number of votes in the election;

"(ii) the Republican candidate and the principal opposing candidate together received not less than 95 percent of the valid votes cast for candidates in the election; and

"(iii) reliable precinct-level or equivalent geographic returns are available for the election, except that a baseline election shall not be disqualified solely because returns are not available for an election-return unit included in the population tabulations furnished under section 141(c) of title 13, United States Code, provided the Comptroller General can allocate the returns to such unit under paragraph (4).

"(C) Replacement elections.—If any election described in subparagraph (A) is not qualified as a baseline election, the Comptroller General shall use substitutions until there are 6 qualified baseline elections or clauses (i) through (iv) are exhausted. In order, the Comptroller General shall use:

"(i) the next most recent regular general election for Senator;

"(ii) the next most recent regular general election for President;

"(iii) the next most recent regular general election for Senator; and

"(iv) the next most recent regular general election for Governor.

"(3) Weighting.—

"(A) In general.—The Comptroller General shall rank the 6 baseline elections in chronological order, from most recent to least recent, and shall weight the Republican vote share calculated for each baseline election as follows:

"(i) 19 percent for each of the 2 most recent baseline elections.

"(ii) 17 percent for each of the 3rd and 4th most recent baseline elections.

"(iii) 14 percent for each of the 5th and 6th most recent baseline elections.

"(B) Fewer than 6 baseline elections.—If fewer than 6 qualified baseline elections are available under paragraph (2), the Comptroller General shall proportionally adjust the weights specified in subparagraph (A) so that the total weight assigned equals 100 percent.

"(C) Elections held on same date.—If 2 or more baseline elections were held on the same date and would receive different weights under subparagraph (A), the Comptroller General shall average the weights applicable to those baseline elections and apply the averaged weight equally to each such baseline election.

"(4) Special case for allocation of returns among new election-return units.—

"(A) In general.—If official returns for a baseline election used under this subsection are reported for geographic units that are not identical to the election-return units used under this section, or are otherwise not available for 1 or more such election-return units, the Comptroller General shall allocate the official returns for that baseline election to the election-return units used under this section under a reproducible methodology established and published by the Comptroller General.

"(B) Required principles.—A methodology established under subparagraph (A) shall—

"(i) ensure that allocated returns for the election-return units used under this section equal the official aggregate returns from which the allocation is made;

"(ii) allocate votes received by the Republican candidate and votes received by the principal opposing candidate separately;

"(iii) use official election returns for predecessor election-return units, successor election-return units, related election-return units, and other partisan elections to the extent such returns assist in allocating the baseline election returns among the election-return units used under this section;

"(iv) use population tabulations furnished under section 141(c) of title 13, United States Code, official geographic data furnished by the Bureau of the Census, and other governmental or public data to the extent such data assist in allocating the baseline election returns among the election-return units used under this section.

"(C) Use of voter file data.—

"(i) In general.—If necessary, the Comptroller General may use voter file data to the minimum extent possible in order to allocate returns under this paragraph, and may not publish personally identifiable voter file data, household level voter file data, individual level voter file data, or any record that identifies the political preference, voting history, turnout propensity, persuasion propensity, or electoral responsiveness of a person or household.

"(ii) Not indirect use.—Any allocation made using voter file data in development of the Republican electoral baseline shall not be considered indirect use of voter file data for the purposes of section 4(b).

"(D) Other partisan elections.—For purposes of subparagraph (B)(iii), the Comptroller General may use official returns from another partisan election only if the election satisfies the requirement of paragraph (2)(B)(ii).

"(E) Uniform use.—An allocation under this paragraph shall be used in calculating the Republican electoral baseline for each affected election-return unit.

"(5) Election-return unit and district baselines.—

"(A) Election-return units.—For each election-return unit, the Comptroller General shall calculate the Republican vote share for each baseline election and the resulting Republican electoral baseline.

"(B) Districts.—For each congressional district, the Republican electoral baseline shall be the population-weighted average of the Republican electoral baselines of the election-return units assigned to the district.

"(C) Calculation.—The Comptroller General shall calculate the Republican electoral baseline of a congressional district by multiplying the Republican electoral baseline of each election-return unit assigned to the district by the population of that election-return unit, adding the resulting products, and dividing the sum by the total population of the district.

"(D) Plans.—For a congressional district plan or alternative congressional district plan, the Republican electoral baseline shall be calculated separately for each congressional district in the plan under subparagraphs (B) and (C).

"(e) Required scoring of ensemble plans.—For each alternative congressional district plan included in an official representative ensemble, the Comptroller General shall calculate—

"(1) the Republican electoral baseline of each district;

"(2) the number of—

"(C) districts in which the Republican electoral baseline exceeds 53.5 percent but does not exceed 60 percent, or is less than 46.5 percent but not less than 40 percent;

"(3) the number of districts in which the Republican electoral baseline exceeds 50 percent;

"(4) 1 or more measures of compactness prescribed by the Comptroller General by rule; and

"(5) any additional neutral statistical measure prescribed by the Comptroller General by rule.

"(f) Competitiveness benchmarks.—

"(1) In general.—For each State, the Comptroller General shall sort the alternative congressional district plans included in the official representative ensemble by the number of competitive districts.

"(A) The sorted plans shall be divided into 5 quintiles, with the 1st quintile consisting of the most favorable plans with the greatest number of competitive districts and the 5th quintile consisting of the least favorable plans with the fewest number of competitive districts.

"(B) A quintile may include more than 1 number of competitive districts.

"(2) Competitiveness threshold.—For each State, the competitiveness threshold shall be the minimum number of competitive districts contained in any alternative congressional district plan assigned to the 2nd quintile.

"(3) Competitiveness target.—For each State, the competitiveness target shall be the minimum number of competitive districts contained in any alternative congressional district plan assigned to the 1st quintile.

"(g) Use of same ensemble.—The official representative ensemble established for a State under this section shall be used to evaluate each congressional district plan proposed, adopted, implemented, challenged, ordered, or considered for that State during the same redistricting cycle, unless the Comptroller General determines that a new official representative ensemble is required because of a change in the number of Representatives to which the State is entitled, a change in controlling law, a final judgment or order of a court of competent jurisdiction, or a material error in the data, method, or computation used to establish the official representative ensemble.

"(h) Publication.—The Comptroller General shall publish and make available to the public through a government website—

"(1) for each State, a Republican electoral baseline, which shall consist of—

"(A) the baseline elections used under subsection (d) and the statewide Republican vote share calculated for each;

"(B) any allocation for incomplete election returns made under subsection (d)(4), including a summary of the method used to make the allocation; and

"(C) for each election-return unit in the State, the resulting Republican electoral baseline; and

"(2) for each State entitled to more than 1 Representative—

"(A) a machine-readable file or repository sufficient to identify, reproduce, and score each alternative congressional district plan included in the official representative ensemble;

"(B) the representative range;

"(C) the competitiveness quintiles, competitiveness threshold, and competitiveness target established under subsection (f);

"(D) the methods, assumptions, software, source code, random seeds or sampling methods, weighting rules, exclusion rules, input data, version information, and scoring formulas used to establish the official representative ensemble; and

"(E) a plain language explanation of the official representative ensemble and the benchmark thresholds established under this section.

"(i) Consultation.—In carrying out this section, the Comptroller General shall consult with the Director of the Bureau of the Census, the Election Assistance Commission, and such independent experts in redistricting, statistics, election administration, computer science, and voting rights law as the Comptroller General considers appropriate.

"(j) Technical assistance.—The Comptroller General shall provide technical assistance to States, courts, special masters, and parties in civil actions under section 5 regarding the use of official representative ensembles and benchmark thresholds established under this section.".

"(f) Single Representative States.—This section shall not apply to a State entitled to only 1 Representative.

"Sec. 5. Enforcement and judicial relief

"(a) Civil actions.—The Attorney General may bring a civil action in an appropriate United States district court for declaratory, injunctive, or other equitable relief to enforce section 3 or 4. A person who is eligible to vote in a regular general election for Representative in a State to which a challenged congressional district plan applies, or an organization with at least 1 member who is such a person, may bring a civil action in an appropriate United States district court for declaratory, injunctive, or other equitable relief to enforce section 4.

"(b) Parties, venue, and procedure.—

"(1) Proper defendants.—A civil action under this section may be brought against a State, the chief State election official, a redistricting commission or other redistricting authority of a State, or any officer or employee of a State responsible for adopting, implementing, using, administering, or certifying a congressional district plan.

"(A) The court may appoint a special master to prepare a plan, or invite interested parties to submit plans, provided that any plan to be considered by the court shall comply with section 4.

Subtitle G—Complaints.gov

SEC. 1071. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) People in the United States regularly experience harm from corporations, platforms, and institutions and often have no clear or functional way to seek help, report wrongdoing, or obtain accountability.

(2) Federal, State, and local governments maintain numerous complaint intake systems, but those systems are fragmented, inconsistent, difficult to navigate, and largely invisible to the public.

(3) Complaints submitted to government entities are critical early warning signals of market failures, abusive practices, regulatory blind spots, and systemic risk.

(4) The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau's consumer complaint system demonstrates that centralized intake, clear routing, structured responses, and public transparency can materially improve outcomes for people and regulators alike.

(5) Many complaint systems function as dead ends, providing no feedback, no visibility, and no assurance that complaints are reviewed or acted upon.

(6) The absence of shared infrastructure undermines public trust in government, weakens enforcement capacity, and allows repeat harms to persist unchecked.

(7) The public has already invested in the expertise and authority of regulators at all levels of government, but lacks the connective infrastructure necessary to make those resources accessible and effective.

(b) Purpose.—The purpose of this subtitle is to establish a modern, people-centered accountability infrastructure that—

(1) ensures there is no wrong door for submitting complaints to government;

(2) routes complaints efficiently to the appropriate agencies and authorities;

(3) improves transparency, coordination, and responsiveness across jurisdictions;

(4) preserves the authority and identity of existing agencies; and

(5) restores public confidence that government can hear, track, and act on the concerns of the people.

SEC. 1075. DATA PROTECTION, PRIVACY, AND SECURITY.

(A) address consumer issues;

(B) improve products or services; or

(c) Retaliation prohibited.—

(1) In general.—A participating business may not use complaint information received through Complaints.gov to take a materially adverse action against a complainant.

(2) Legitimate business actions.—This subsection shall not prohibit a participating business from refusing service, collecting a debt, protecting safety or security, or taking any other lawful action supported by legitimate, nonretaliatory grounds which may have been taken in the absence of the complaint.

(3) Enforcement.—

(A) In general.—A violation of this subsection shall be treated as a violation of a rule defining an unfair, deceptive, or abusive act or practice prescribed under section 18 of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 57a).

(B) Enforcement by Commission.—The Federal Trade Commission shall enforce this subsection in the same manner, by the same means, and with the same jurisdiction, powers, and duties as though all applicable terms and provisions of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 41 et seq.) were incorporated into and made a part of this subsection.

Subtitle H—Truce on Wedge Issues

SEC. 1081. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) On the 21st century political battlefield, 2 of the most polarizing issues are guns and abortion. Political parties use them as wedge issues, dividing Americans by stoking fears that the other party will take away access to one of these things.

(2) Proponents of restricting access to guns and abortion are a minority of the American people. According to Gallup polls in 2021, just 19 percent of Americans support making all abortion illegal, and 80 percent oppose a handgun ban.

(3) Proponents of restricting access to guns and abortion share a common goal of wanting to prevent needless deaths. Other provisions of this legislative package will reduce the demand for abortion as well as gun deaths, which are mostly suicides.

(4) When Roe v. Wade was reversed, Congress' failure to set abortion policy for the last 5 decades had national consequences. Antique legislative provisions such as the Comstock Act came back into relevance, and States adopted sharply divergent rules around abortion access that fragmented national policy.

(5) By declaring a truce on these issues for a period of time, where all sides both give and gain concessions, the United States can better focus on addressing the root causes of needless deaths.

(b) Purpose.—The purpose of this subtitle is to promote domestic tranquility by establishing a truce on the issues of guns and abortion and removing certain inflammatory legislative proposals from consideration for 10 years.

(d) Minimum access requirements.—The protections under subsections (b) and (c) include, at a minimum, requirements that mifepristone—

"(f) Conscience protections.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to have any effect on laws regarding conscience protection.

"(g) Enforcement.—The Attorney General of the United States or any person adversely affected by a State law, regulation, policy, or practice in contravention of this section may seek declaratory or injunctive relief in a Federal district court or State court. In any action or proceeding under this section, the court, in its discretion, may allow the prevailing party, other than the United States, a reasonable attorney's fee as part of the costs.".

"(B) approximates the action or rate of fire of a machinegun.

"(2) Any part or combination of parts that is designed and functions to eliminate the need for the operator of a semiautomatic weapon to make a separate movement for each individual function of the trigger and—

SEC. 1087. UNIVERSAL BACKGROUND CHECKS ON FIREARMS TRANSFERS.

(a) In general.—Section 922 of title 18, United States Code, is amended by adding at the end the following:

"(aa) (1) (A) It shall be unlawful for any person who is not a licensed importer, licensed manufacturer, or licensed dealer to transfer a firearm to any other person who is not so licensed, unless a licensed importer, licensed manufacturer, or licensed dealer has first taken possession of the firearm for the purpose of complying with subsection (t).

"(B) Upon taking possession of a firearm under subparagraph (A), a licensee shall comply with all requirements of this chapter as if the licensee were transferring the firearm from the inventory of the licensee to the unlicensed transferee.

"(C) If a transfer of a firearm described in subparagraph (A) will not be completed for any reason after a licensee takes possession of the firearm (including because the transfer of the firearm to, or receipt of the firearm by, the transferee would violate this chapter), the return of the firearm to the transferor by the licensee shall not constitute the transfer of a firearm for purposes of this chapter.

"(2) Paragraph (1) shall not apply to—

"(A) a law enforcement agency or any law enforcement officer, armed private security professional, or member of the armed forces, to the extent the officer, professional, or member is acting within the course and scope of employment and official duties;

"(B) a transfer or exchange (which, for purposes of this subsection, means an in-kind transfer of a firearm of the same type or value) that is a loan or bona fide gift between spouses, between domestic partners, between parents and their children, including step-parents and their step-children, between siblings, between aunts or uncles and their nieces or nephews, or between grandparents and their grandchildren, if the transferor has no reason to believe that the transferee will use or intends to use the firearm in a crime or is prohibited from possessing firearms under State or Federal law;

"(C) a transfer to an executor, administrator, trustee, or personal representative of an estate or a trust that occurs by operation of law upon the death of another person;

"(D) a temporary transfer that is necessary to prevent imminent death or great bodily harm, including harm to self, family, household members, or others, if the possession by the transferee lasts only as long as immediately necessary to prevent the imminent death or great bodily harm, including the harm of domestic violence, dating partner violence, sexual assault, stalking, and domestic abuse;

"(E) a transfer that is approved by the Attorney General under section 5812 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986; or

"(F) a temporary transfer if the transferor has no reason to believe that the transferee will use or intends to use the firearm in a crime or is prohibited from possessing firearms under State or Federal law, and the transfer takes place and the transferee's possession of the firearm is exclusively—

"(i) at a shooting range or in a shooting gallery or other area designated for the purpose of target shooting;

"(ii) while reasonably necessary for the purposes of hunting, trapping, pest control on a farm or ranch, or fishing, if the transferor—

"(I) has no reason to believe that the transferee intends to use the firearm in a place where it is illegal; and

"(II) has reason to believe that the transferee will comply with all licensing and permit requirements for such hunting, trapping, pest control on a farm or ranch, or fishing; or

"(iii) while in the presence of the transferor.

"(3) It shall be unlawful for a licensed importer, licensed manufacturer, or licensed dealer to transfer possession of, or title to, a firearm to another person who is not so licensed unless the importer, manufacturer, or dealer has provided such other person with a notice of the prohibition under paragraph (1), and such other person has certified that such other person has been provided with this notice on a form prescribed by the Attorney General.

"(4) The Attorney General shall make available to any person licensed under this chapter both Spanish and English versions of the form required for the conduct of a background check under subsection (t) and this subsection, and the notice and form required under paragraph (3) of this subsection.

"(5) (A) Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, the Attorney General may implement this subsection with regulations, including interim final rules. An interim final rule issued under this paragraph may take effect upon publication in the Federal Register, shall have the force and effect of law, and may be issued without regard to section 553 of title 5, United States Code. The Attorney General shall provide a public comment period of not less than 60 days after publication of any interim final rule issued under this paragraph and, if an interim final rule is issued, shall issue final rules not later than 180 days after the date on which the interim final rule is issued.

"(B) Regulations promulgated under this paragraph may not include any provision requiring licensees to facilitate transfers in accordance with paragraph (1).

"(C) Regulations promulgated under this paragraph may not include any provision requiring persons not licensed under this chapter to keep records of background checks or firearms transfers.

"(D) Regulations promulgated under this paragraph may not include any provision placing a cap on the fee licensees may charge to facilitate transfers in accordance with paragraph (1).

"(E) Regulations promulgated under this paragraph shall include, in the case of a background check conducted by the national instant criminal background check system in response to a contact from a licensed importer, licensed manufacturer, or licensed dealer, which background check indicates that the receipt of a firearm by a person would violate subsection (g)(5), a requirement that the system notify U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement.".

(b) Penalty.—Section 924(a)(5) of title 18, United States Code, is amended by striking "or (t)" and inserting ", (t), or (aa)".

(c) Rule of construction.—Nothing in this section, or any amendment made by this section, shall be construed to—

(1) authorize the establishment, directly or indirectly, of a national firearms registry; or

(2) interfere with the authority of a State, under section 927 of title 18, United States Code, to enact a law on the same subject matter as this section.

(d) Effective date.—This section and the amendments made by this section shall take effect on January 1, 2027.

(1) Criminal and disciplinary proceedings.—No prosecution or disciplinary proceeding under this section shall require proof of the motive, purpose, viewpoint, or legislative intent of any Member of Congress. (2) with full recognition of the Constitutional right of either House to change the rules or discipline its Members, so far as relating to the procedure or Members of that House, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule or disciplinary power of that House.

SEC. 1101. FINDINGS AND PURPOSE.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) The people of the United States have a substantial interest in ensuring that trade, commerce, and competition policy operate on terms that are transparent and fair. The proliferation of hidden fees, coercive contract terms, reduced competition, repair restrictions, and other forms of commercial manipulation undermine honest trade.

(2) Consolidation and insufficient competition policy have contributed to business profits roughly doubling since the pandemic, which a more honest economy would pass through in lower prices, higher wages, and broader productive investment. Throughout American history, periods of excessive concentration of private economic power have required public action to restore opportunity, accountability, and fair dealing in the marketplace.

(3) The Federal Trade Commission and the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice require modern rulemaking tools, improved analytical capacity, greater resources, and a 21st century mandate to police unfair, deceptive, or abusive acts or practices in commerce effectively.

(4) Algorithmic pricing systems can facilitate unlawful collusion, exploit surveillance data, and produce price increases, output restrictions, and other market harms at a scale and speed not contemplated by older law.

(5) The advertising industry thrives on manipulating consumer judgment, including through exploiting developing minds in children, and the scale of intrusive and personalized advertising imposes a burden on the overall mental well-being of society.

(6) Similar to the exploitation of workers in the gig economy, franchisees may be described as independent business owners while franchisors control essential terms of their operations. Such arrangements can shift investment, debt, and operating risk to franchisees while withholding the practical independence ordinarily associated with business ownership.

(7) In the 21st century, the scale, reach, and profitability of dominant corporations have produced a second Gilded Age, where wealth inequality creates a "K-shaped" economy. The majority of Americans on the lower leg increasingly find commerce to be extractive and unresponsive to the public interest.

(8) A reasonable person could conclude that America's system of trade and commerce is stacked against them and in favor of corporate power.

(b) Purpose.—The purposes of this title are—

(1) to strengthen the authority and capacity of the Federal Government in modern consumer protection and competition policy; and

(2) to stack honest trade in favor of the people of the United States.

SEC. 1102. ANTITRUST ENFORCEMENT APPROPRIATION AND FEE RETENTION.

(a) Appropriation.—In addition to any other amounts appropriated or otherwise made available, there is appropriated, out of any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, $500,000,000 for fiscal year 2027, to remain available until September 30, 2029, for necessary expenses of the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice in carrying out the antitrust and kindred laws.

(b) Retention and use of premerger notification filing fees.—Beginning in fiscal year 2027, and each fiscal year thereafter, all premerger notification filing fees collected pursuant to section 7A of the Clayton Act (15 U.S.C. 18a) shall—

(1) be retained, in equal amounts, by the Antitrust Division of the Department of Justice and the Federal Trade Commission, and used for expenses necessary for the enforcement of the antitrust and kindred laws; and

(2) remain available until expended.

Subtitle A—Fair Dealing

SEC. 1111. ONE-PRICE RULE AND PROHIBITION ON DECEPTIVE PRICING.

(a) Definition.—In this section, the term "consumer" means a natural person acting primarily for personal, family, or household purposes.

(b) One-price requirement.—It shall be an unfair, deceptive, or abusive act or practice for any seller of goods or services to advertise, display, or represent a price to a consumer unless such price equals the total amount the consumer is required to pay to complete the transaction.

(c) Prohibited practices.—Without limiting subsection (b), the following practices are prohibited:

(1) advertising or displaying a price to which any fee, charge, assessment, surcharge, or other amount is added prior to completion of the transaction;

(2) advertising or displaying a price that excludes taxes or other amounts the consumer is required to pay;

(3) representing any fee, charge, or payment as optional when such payment is expected, customary, or necessary to complete the transaction;

(4) soliciting, suggesting, prompting, or otherwise requesting gratuities, tips, or service charges in connection with a priced good or service.

(d) Voluntary gifts.—Nothing in this section shall prohibit a consumer from making a voluntary, unsolicited gift to an employee after completion of a transaction, provided that such gift is not requested, suggested, prompted, or implied by the seller.

(e) Business-to-business invoices.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit a seller in a business-to-business transaction from separately stating, itemizing, or invoicing any tax, duty, fee, or other charge imposed by a Federal, State, or local government.

(f) Rulemaking.—The Federal Trade Commission may issue such rules and guidance as are necessary to carry out this section.

(g) Enforcement.—A violation of this section shall be treated as a violation of section 5(a)(1) of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 45(a)(1)). The Attorney General of any State may bring a civil action in the name of the State to enforce this section on behalf of the residents of that State.

(h) Safe harbor period.—During the 6-month period beginning on the effective date specified in subsection (i), it shall be an affirmative defense to an enforcement action under this section that the seller clearly and conspicuously disclosed to the consumer, prior to completion of the transaction, that the advertised price did not represent the total amount required to be paid.

(i) Effective date.—This section shall take effect on January 1, 2027.

SEC. 1112. WAGE PRICE INDICATOR.

(a) Findings.—Congress finds the following:

(1) Because of inflation, the display of prices solely in nominal United States dollars can make it more difficult for consumers to compare the real burden of major purchases over time.

(2) A standardized supplemental indicator tied to the annual basic wage can help consumers distinguish between changes in nominal prices and changes in affordability relative to wages.

(3) Requiring such an indicator initially only for higher-priced goods and services can improve consumer understanding while permitting phased implementation.

(b) Definitions.—

(1) Basic wage.—The term "basic wage" means the annual amount calculated under section 1398c of title 42, United States Code.

(2) Commission.—The term "Commission" means the Federal Trade Commission.

(c) Wage price indicator required.—Beginning January 1, 2028, any person that advertises, displays, or offers a price subject to section 1111 in excess of $4,990 shall, in addition to the nominal price in United States dollars, clearly and conspicuously display in close proximity to such nominal price a wage price indicator for such good or service.

(d) Wage price indicator calculated.—The wage price indicator for a good or service is equal to the nominal price of the good or service divided by one-thousandth of the basic wage, with the resulting quotient rounded to the nearest 0.01.

(e) Format.—

(1) A wage price indicator shall not be preceded by a dollar sign or other currency symbol and shall not be presented in a manner that suggests that it is denominated in United States dollars or other legal tender.

(2) A wage price indicator shall be accompanied by the words "Wage Price Indicator", except that the Commission may by rule permit the use of a standardized abbreviation or label that clearly distinguishes the indicator from a nominal price.

(f) Rulemaking.—The Commission may promulgate rules necessary to carry out this section, including rules—

(1) prescribing formatting, labeling, and placement requirements for the wage price indicator;

(2) lowering the threshold in subsection (c), if the Commission determines that broader use would materially assist consumers in comparing prices in real terms without imposing unreasonable compliance burdens; and

(3) publishing tables, calculators, or other compliance guidance to facilitate calculation and display of the wage price indicator.

(g) Rule of construction.—Nothing in this section shall be construed to prohibit any person from displaying a wage price indicator for any good or service not subject to subsection (c), if such display otherwise complies with this section and any regulations promulgated under this section.

(h) Enforcement.—A violation of this section shall be treated as a violation of section 5(a)(1) of the Federal Trade Commission Act (15 U.S.C. 45(a)(1)). The Attorney General of any State may bring a civil action in the name of the State to enforce this section on behalf of the residents of that State.

SEC. 1113. COMBATTING AUTO RETAIL SCAMS.

(a) Incorporation of specified regulations.—The provisions of the final rule promulgated by the Federal Trade Commission, entitled "Combating Auto Retail Scams Trade Regulation Rule," as published in the Federal Register on January 4, 2024 (89 Fed. Reg. 590), are incorporated into this Act and shall be treated as though such provisions are set forth in this subsection.

(b) Effect of incorporation.—The provisions incorporated under subsection (a) may be altered only by means of an Act of Congress. To the extent that any provision of such regulations does not conform with any other statutory provision of law enacted before the date of enactment of this Act, the provisions of this Act shall govern.

(c) Definition of regulation.—In this section, the term "regulation" means any rule, regulation, guideline, interpretation, order, or requirement of general applicability prescribed by any officer or employee of the executive branch.

SEC. 1114. PROHIBITION ON BEST PRICE CLAUSES.

(a) Definitions.—In this section:

(1) Adverse action.—The term "adverse action" means any action that materially disadvantages a business user, including by increasing fees or commissions, degrading rank, search placement, access to data, access to application programming interfaces, access to fulfillment or logistics, or by delaying payments, suspending, delisting, or terminating the business user.

(2) Best price clause.—The term "best price clause" means any contract term, policy, algorithmic practice, or other requirement of an online marketplace, whether express or implied, that directly or indirectly prevents a business user from offering or providing the same product or service to any customer through any other channel at a price more favorable than the price offered through such online marketplace.

(3) Business user.—The term "business user" means any person that offers, sells, licenses, advertises, provides, or otherwise makes available a product or service to end users through an online marketplace.

(4) Commission.—The term "Commission" means the Federal Trade Commission.

(5) Covered platform operator.—The term "covered platform operator" means a person that owns or controls an online marketplace and that—

(A) in not fewer than 3 months during the most recently completed 12-month period—

(i) has at least 1,000,000 United States-based monthly active users on the online marketplace; or

(ii) has at least 1,000 United States-based monthly active business users on the online marketplace; or

(B) is owned or controlled by a person with gross revenues in the United States during the most recently completed 12-month period, or a market capitalization, greater than $50,000,000.

(6) Online marketplace.—The term "online marketplace" means a digital platform that facilitates transactions between 2 or more unaffiliated third parties for the sale, lease, or exchange of goods or services, and that establishes, enforces, or materially influences the terms under which such transactions occur.

(b) Prohibition.—It shall be unlawful for a covered platform operator to—

(1) impose, enforce, or attempt to impose or enforce any best price clause;

(2) take any adverse action against a business user because the business user offers a different price, or different terms or conditions, through any other channel; or

(3) restrict or deter a business user from—

(A) communicating to any customer, through any channel, the price, terms, or conditions at which the business user offers the same product or service through any other channel; or

(B) directing or referring a customer to any other channel for the purchase, license, or acquisition of the same product or service.

(c) Anti-circumvention rule.—It shall be unlawful for a covered platform operator to circumvent or attempt to circumvent subsection (b) through any policy or practice that has the purpose or effect of achieving substantially the same outcome as a violation of subsection (b).

(d) Voidness.—Any best price clause is void and unenforceable as against public policy.

(e) Enforcement by the Commission.—

(1) Rulemaking authority.—The Commission may promulgate rules relative to this section in accordance with section 553 of title 5, United States Code, including rules to prevent evasion or circumvention of the prohibitions imposed by this section.

(I) withhold progress payments or other amounts otherwise due under the contract;

(II) treat the failure as a basis for a price reduction;

(d) Limitation on contractor returns.—

(1) Limitation.—No covered contract may provide for aggregate contractor return in excess of—
